No Strike On Ferries —Williams

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

The provincial government will not allow a ferry strike and will impose a 30-day cooling off period if necessary, Labor Minister Allan Williams said today.

Williams said if ferry officers go ahead with a threatened 10 a.m. strike Thursday, cabinet will impose the cooling-off period "perhaps by 10:05."

A cabinet-ordered cooling-off period of up to 90 days is provided for under the Railway and Ferry Bargaining Assistance Act.

"The government is concerned that the ferry system continues to function. It is essential for the tourist industry and the normal flow of commerce between Vancouver Island and the mainland and the mid and north coasts," Williams said.

"The government cannot stand idly by and allow a strike when there are other avenues."

Williams said the ferries corporation and the union would be offered every form of assistance available under his ministry, including special mediators and fact finding teams.

Union spokesman was not available to comment on Williams' statement.

Members of the B.C. Government Employees Union and the B.C. Ferry Corp. were meeting to discuss with the Labor Relations Board the legality of the officer's strike vote as well as other issues in dispute between the employees and the crown corporation.

The officers voted 89 per cent in favor of a strike and filed 72-hour notice Monday allowing them to walk out at 10 a.m. Thursday.

The validity of the officer's action was thrown into question last week when the LRB ruled that they should become part of the same bargaining unit as the other ferry employees.

Prior to the ruling, the 500 officers had formed a separate component, distinct from the 1,700 unlicensed personnel.

News stories of the strike possibility have already had an effect, Williams said.

Williams said he talked this morning with a local hotel operator who said the strike threat has increased the number of reservation cancellations.

PRIVATE GROUP OFFERS FERRY

ANACORTES, Wash. (AP) — A private organization has offered to operate a passenger only ferry service between here and Victoria if Washington State Ferries cancels its service.

Lynn Campbell, owner of Harbor Tours in Seattle, said Tuesday he would be the local liaison for a California group planning to operate the service.

The toll board will meet May 24 to decide whether the Anacortes to Sidney service should be cancelled to release an additional ferry for Puget Sound runs.

The Los Angeles-based group is the same one which had made arrangements to operate another ferry between Seattle and Victoria when Canadian Pacific dropped its Princess Marguerite run. The provincial government decided, however, to resume the ferry service on its own.

Al Sewgar, Anacortes Chamber of Commerce manager, said he had been contacted by the Los Angeles firm, but was "not anxious to pursue that at the present time."

"There's too many unknowns," he said. "We're counting on trying to maintain the present run.

Grad Glut Until 1990

OTTAWA (CP) — A Statistics Canada report says the glut of university and community college educated students will continue for the next 15 years, possibly creating massive social, economic and political problems.

The report, released Tuesday by the federal agency, says young people leaving post-secondary schools until about 1990 will face grim employment prospects even if enrolment in those schools is curtailed.

Zolta Zsigmond, one of the report's authors, said it is the first time a statistical study has been done in Canada to indicate what happens to students leaving post-secondary schools.

Although the study is focussed on Ontario because it was financed in part by the provincial government, general trends and predictions can be applied to other provinces, Zsigmond said.

He said in an interview the 224-page document warns students not to necessarily expect to ever get a job, let alone expect to have a white collar job.

The 224-page report also shows that :

—The labor force is becoming increasingly better-educated. In 1966, one-quarter of all Ontario students leaving school had attended a university or community college, but by 1986 this figure will rise to 50 per cent.

—Young people began leaving Ontario in droves in 1974 to find jobs in other provinces, particularly in the West.

—The myth that a university degree is a passport to a job is effectively dead. Four months after graduation from a university in 1974, 29 per cent of students were still unemployed or underemployed.

—A second but less dramatic baby boom will start to occur this year as members of the original post-war baby boom start having children. The peak of the second baby boom will increase high school enrolments in the mid-1990s after a considerable decline.

—Despite the second baby boom and immigration, Ontario's population will decrease by about 6,000 persons a year.

The report says the second baby boom will not have as dramatic an effect on the education system and the labor force because the Ontario birthrate has dropped. The province entered the age of zero population growth in 1974, meaning that couples had on an average fewer than two children.

But the report says it may take until 1990 before the job market supply matches the demands of the labor force if new graduates end up competing with old graduates who are under-employed and trying to improve their situations.

The result could be that over-qualified young people push the less educated out of skilled and semi-skilled jobs.

I MUST go down to the sea today is a thought that enters most people's mind now that summer is near. Belfast Police Attacked

Times News Services

BELFAST — Protestant extremists attempting to enforce a general strike in Northern Ireland today attacked a police vehicle and two buses carrying workers to their jobs.

The violence flared in East Belfast when strikers attacked a police Land Rover with a hail of stones and bottles. Two buses stopped nearby and the mob surged over them, smashing the windshields of both vehicles.

Seventeen other bus drivers were injured today in attempted vehicle hijackings.

Police reinforcements rushed to the area and threw up barricades to divert traffic.

Police also called in British troops to help combat the stone-throwing demonstrators.

Government spokesmen, however, said support for the strike was waning.

The statement came despite the fact that strikers gained support today from technicians at Northern Ireland's main power station who voted unanimously to join the agitation.

Bob McSpadden, senior union official at Ballylumford power station, said he is waiting for instructions from the predominantly-Protestant United Union Actionist Council on when to let the plant "run down."

Ballylumford is the key to Northern Ireland's electricity supply and a shutdown there could reduce power to virtually zero.

A spokesman for the Ulster Unionists Action Council, which called for a total shutdown of non-essential services in the province, said Tuesday they were ready for a long campaign and would "eat grass" if necessary to insure a drawn-out victory.

The Action Council, led by Rev. Ian Paisley, wants the British government to crack down on the outlawed Provisional Irish Republican Army and to hand over control of Northern Ireland to a Protestant government.

7% Inflation Rate Forecast

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Canada's inflation rate this year likely will surpass the six-per-cent limit set for the second year of price and wage controls, Finance Minister Donald Macdonald told the Commons Tuesday.

"I hope we will not go to the seven-per-cent level," but the rate is being pushed higher than the six-per-cent target, Macdonald said in answer to Lincoln Alexander (P C—Hamilton-West).

Alexander, the Conservative manpower critic, asked Macdonald to comment on statements by anti-inflation board officials, who had said the inflation rate had been revised to seven per cent from six per cent for the second year of controls.

Macdonald replied that he had said in his March 31 budget speech that the inflation target would be hard to meet.

Revision of inflation targets would have wide-ranging effects throughout the Canadian economy because controls are linked to the inflation target rate.

The second year of controls will end this October. The government has said it intends to lift the controls, probably this year, but has refused to give a date.

Macdonald said he expects to present to Parliament this month a green paper discussing the government's idea of how it plans to lift controls.

He said voluntary targets for wage and price increases likely will be set for the decontrol period.

The government would have "to set reasonable standards parties could follow."

In a related development, the labor department announced today in Ottawa that annual wage increases negotiated for

Times News Services

PARIS — The United States has agreed to drop its opposition to Vietnam's admission to the United Nations, a joint communique issued by the U.S. and Vietnam said today.

The U.S. had previously vetoed Vietnam's application to the United Nations on three occasions. The last veto was in November, 1976.

Vietnamese deputy foreign minister Phan Hien said the two delegations will resume their talks here within two weeks "to seek a rapid normalization of relations" between the two countries.

Diplomatic sources also said an agreement may be reached within a few weeks on the exchange of ambassadors, and American aid for Vietnam's postwar reconstruction.

There was no sign at this early stage if the major obstacles to diplomatic relations — U.S. demands for co-operation in tracing 800 Americans missing in action and Vietnamese demands for U.S. aid — have been dealt with.

The two sides have agreed to keep the negotiations strictly private for the time being with few press briefings.

The chief negotiators were wreathed in smiles when they emerged Tuesday from their first 3½ hours of talks.

"We had a frank, friendly and very useful conversation," Assistant Secretary of State Richard Holbrooke told reporters.

"I fully agree with him," said Hien.

The Vietnamese say former President Nixon in a 1973 letter promised $3.25 billion in post-war aid. But former U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger denied Tuesday there was a U.S. commitment.

PHYSICAL VIOLENCE FEARED IN QUEBEC

QUEBEC (CP) — The vice-president of Quebec's human rights commission says he fears the danger of physical violence in the language debate in the province.

"It seems to me that we risk directing ourselves towards violence and we have already done so in our attitudes and language," says Maurice Champagne-Gilbert.

"The intolerance, the blackmail which some people use, the rigidity, the narrowness and the ideological narcissism which others exhibit, some of whom are in positions of responsibility which should lead them to give a better example, are so many forms of psychological or moral violence."

Champagne-Gilbert says the simplification and polarization of the debate are factors of latent violence.

Some people are looking for the "black sun" of Ireland and that situation will develop if a greater effort for peace is not made, he said.

Plumbers Negotiate Pact

Negotiators in the B.C. construction industry continued to make progress Tuesday as tentative agreements were reached with a Victoria local of the Plumbers Union and six Mainland locals of the electricians' union.

Meanwhile in Trail, it was announced a tentative agreement was reached Tuesday between Cominco and its 5,200 union employees following lengthy negotiations.

The company, the United Steelworkers of America and the Association of Commercial and Technical Workers announced in a joint statement that a memorandum of agreement would be prepared and a ratification vote taken.

Union members had been working without a contract for three days while negotiations continued almost around the clock to reach an agreement with Cominco.

Strike notice was issued Thursday by the Steelworkers, representing 4,600 employees, and ACTE, representing 585 workers, but an announced strike for Monday was postponed while negotiations continued.

In Vancouver, the construction labor relations association said terms of the agreements reached with the unions will be put to the member companies for ratification. CLRA bargains for the companies.

The tentative one-year contract, the same as that reached Saturday with 10 other building trade unions, provides an increase of 99 cents an hour.

Jim Kinnaird, president of the B.C. and Yukon Building Trades Council, said it appears all the trade unions are going to settle for the same package. Results of the ratification votes are expected in about two weeks.

Tonight, Thursday: Showers, Cool

Wine Prices Fall 20 to 40 Cents

Both domestic and foreign wine prices dropped 20 to 40 cents depending on the product.

It is all part of a plan announced in March by Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair to encourage British Columbians to develop a taste for wine and get away from hard liquor and beer.

"If there is a drink of moderation, wine is," the minister said in March when announcing the price cuts as well as other liquor policy changes.

It is too early yet to say whether Mair's move will lead to a swoop on the wine section of liquor stores but the Liquor Distribution Branch is getting ready.

Nick Clark, stocks director for the branch, said in an interview from Vancouver the inventory on domestic wines has been increased by 20 per cent and on foreign wines by 25 per cent.

He said the effect of the price cuts likely won't be evident until the end of the month or even the end of June.

The price reductions on wine were brought about by a decrease in the markup percentage.

The markup on B.C. wines was dropped to 46 per cent from 66, and on imported wines from 117 per cent to 100 per cent. The government estimates this will mean a drop in revenue of $5 million to $6 million a year.

Clark said the prices were reduced May 1, the same time a number of other changes took place, due to renegotiation of supplier contracts, changes in freight costs or devalued currencies.

Under the changes in liquor and wine prices, the cost of 784 of 800 items went down.

Clark said a reduction in freight rates for some California wines, for example, plus the government's price cut, resulted in a drop of as much as 65 cents a bottle.

The price cuts will be passed along by B.C. restaurants.

Don Bellamy, executive director of the 500-member Restaurant and Food Services Association, said most restaurants charge the maximum allowable markup of 100 per cent on wines.

Therefore, he said, they will have to drop their prices because of the government's latest move.

He said B.C. wines now are holding their own in popularity at restaurants and will no doubt be better off as a result of the price reductions.

House Prices Slumping by About 10%

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Houses are starting to sell briskly in the Victoria area — but selling prices are averaging about 10 per cent below asking prices. According to Victoria real estate firms, a home on the market for $50,000 will sell at $45,000; one listed at $80,000 will sell at $72,000.

There are exceptions. A few houses are already listed at sacrifice prices and these are selling quickly at the asking price. At the other extreme, some people are just testing the waters with a very high asking price. Some of these people have had to choose between accepting a much lower offer — down $15,000 or more — or removing their property from the market.

"In this kind of market there are some terrific bargains," says John Thomson, president of the Victoria Real Estate Board.

"The market was a little slow during January and February while buyers watched to see what would happen to interest rates. But it is clear they will not go any lower. The rate will be stable for a while and then it will go up."

In March a total of $17.8 million worth of property was sold through the Multiple Listing Service, up 34 per cent from $13.3 million the previous March.

April sales totalled about $14 million, the same as last year.

A number of recent sales were at $80,000, the type of home that was very difficult to move before March. Homes listed at $50,000 or less tend to sell within weeks but anything above $60,000 takes more than a month, on average.

A few homes that two years ago would have been listed at $150,000 are listed at $125,000 and may sell for less.

The present conditions are expected to last for at least two more months. A boost in interest rates for mortgages could cool off the pace of sales.

Mortgage interest rates have fallen from a 1976 high of 12.5 per cent to the present level of 10.25 per cent.

The next change is expected to be upwards, unless the federal government makes a counter-order through the Bank of Canada.

Wally Vogelfang, mortgage manager for Royal Trust, said he would not be surprised to see mortgage interest rates go to 10.5 per cent by summer.

"The demand for mortgage money is high and many people are refinancing their 12 per cent mortgages at 10.25 per cent."

J. A. Baines, manager of the main branch of the Bank of Montreal, said he expects the mortgage rate will eventually go to 10.5 per cent, but possibly not for several months.

Fire Pen Guards, MPs Urge

OTTAWA (CP) — A special Commons subcommittee recommends the dismissal of Warren Richardson and the retirement or dismissal of 53 other "principal offenders" among the guards at Millhaven, Ont., penitentiary.

Richardson, a guard, is president of the prison local of the Public Service Alliance of Canada.

The recommendation is contained in a confidential copy of a draft report still being worked on by the subcommittee.

Members said Tuesday they expected to complete the report by the end of the week.

The report says Richardson should be dismissed for insubordination for refusing to recognize an administrative inquiry into last fall's riot at Millhaven.

The report also singles out a guard as the cause of the riot and catalogues brutality by guards since the prison east of Kingston opened in 1971.

It says the main danger at the maximum-security penitentiary now is that the staff will provoke prisoners to riot again.

In that case, the report says, police and troops should be brought in to replace the guards.

A management team has been running the penitentiary since February, when the MPs visited it as part of a cross-country tour encouraged by violence within the prisons.

"The worst excesses of staff brutality against inmates are now fortunately in the past," the report says.

It says prisoners were gassed three or four times a week, they were shackled and beaten and dogs were made to attack them in their cells. At present, the report says, the prisoners are being harassed in a variety of ways. Guards wake them hourly at night, delay their food so it cools, and make them go to cells 10 minutes before the end of movies shown in the prison.

The report says basic changes in the whole criminal justice system are needed. The prisons, described as inhuman, were the end result of a mixed-up system that did not have clear goals.

In more than 50 recommendations, the MPs say the guards must be better trained and better paid. But the Canadian Penitentiary Service itself should become a separate agency, like the RCMP, and its employees should be held more responsible for their actions.

The Public Service Alliance of Canada should continue to represent the guards.

The Alliance unit at Millhaven had become isolated from others. The report says its members were engaged in an overtime racket, based mainly on taking time off sick, then working on their days off or on holidays, and that this cost millions of dollars a year.

Grits Eye NDP

OTTAWA (CP) — Two Quebec Liberal backbenchers who had expressed interest in joining the New Democratic Party have talked with NDP Leader Ed Broadbent, but have decided to remain, at least temporarily, with the Liberals.

An official in Broadbent's office said today the NDP leader had met Serge Joyal and Pierre De Bane.

Earlier this week, Joyal and De Bane said they did not find the Liberal party leftist enough to suit their political tastes. While they said they felt some attraction to the NDP, they did not see the party, which has no Quebec seats, as the best vehicle to promote the interests of Que-

2 Servicemen Guilty

Two servicemen were found guilty on drug counts at courts-martial held at CFB Esquimalt this week and will serve jail terms at CFB Edmonton detention barracks.

Pte. Marc Joseph Rouleau, 18, of Canadian Forces Fleet School in Esquimalt was found guilty Tuesday on three of four counts of trafficking in marijuana and on both charges of possession of the drug.

[illegible] sentenced Rouleau to six months' detention.

On Monday, Pte. Kevin Freed, 19, of HMCS Athabaskan was found guilty on one of two counts of trafficking in marijuana. He received a four-month term in the military prison.

They were the second and third cases of about 12 courts-martial expected to be held at the Esquimalt base at the order of Rear-Admiral Andrew Collier, head of the Pacific Command.

Pte. James Barrett, also of the Athabaskan, received an 18-month suspended sentence April 27 after being found guilty of trafficking in hashish. He was convicted on two counts of trafficking.

115 bargaining units in the first quarter of 1977 averaged 8.6 per cent on base pay rates, up slightly from the average 8.2-per-cent raises in the final three months of 1976.

Of the settlements in the first three months of the year, a majority of 77 were one-year agreements, reflecting the desire of unions to keep contracts short while the anti-inflation program continues.

There were 30 two-year agreements and eight three-year agreements.

The figures are based on bargaining units with 500 or more members, excluding construction.

Of the settlements, 29 provided for cost-of-living allowances. Average annual increases in base rates for settlements without the allowances was eight per cent.

Macdonald meanwhile, is meeting provincial finance ministers here today to firm up details of a planned discussion paper on how to end the controls.

The one-day closed-door session is a follow-up to meetings between business and labor representatives and Macdonald here recently.

B.C. Finance Minister Evan Wolfe, calling for continuation of wage and price controls until Dec. 31, 1978, said talk of an earlier end to the program has caused "an unacceptable degree of uncertainty and confusion" about the country's commitment to a fight against inflation.

Hanafi Muslims Face Kidnap, Murder Charges

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Twelve Hanafi Muslims were indicted Tuesday for murder, armed kidnapping, assault with intent to kill, conspiracy and related offenses in connection with the takeover March 9 of three Washington buildings and the holding of 139 hostages.

A 32-count indictment returned by a federal grand jury charged that the purposes of the conspiracy were to compel authorities to turn over to Hanafi leader Hamaas Abdul Khaalis the persons convicted of murdering seven members of his family in January, 1973, and to have the movie Mohammad, Messenger of God removed from the U.S.

"It was further a part of the said conspiracy that the hostages would be murdered if demands were not met or if law enforcement officials attempted, by force, to rescue the hostages," the indictment said.

Of the 32 counts charged, 29 carry a maximum sentence of life imprisonment.

The scope of the indictment indicated that federal prosecutors plan to press the charged to the hilt. Although only one person was killed in the takeovers, all 12 of the defendants are accused of felony murder in the first degree — that is, murder committed during the perpetration of another illegal act in which all took part. The other alleged act in this case is armed kidnapping.

All 12 also are accused of second degree murder by reason of the law of conspiracy. The indictment asserts that the murder was committted "in the course of and in furtherance of the conspiracy."

EXPORT GAS HIKE URGED

By JEFF CARRUTHERS
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — A National Energy Board report to the federal cabinet calls for an increase in the export price for Canadian natural gas sold to the United States of approximately 16 per cent, effective this fall.

The report, the result of a now-annual review of the gas export price situation, is scheduled to be given to Federal Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie later this week, for eventual consideration by the cabinet later in the month.

Government sources say that the NEB is urging that the new export price average $2.25 per thousand cubic feet, starting this fall.

The current price being charged for all but one export contract is an average $1.94 per thousand cubic feet, at the Canada-U.S. border.

British Columbia which in the past has championed a continued hike in gas export prices as one way of boosting the government's own revenues, through the state-owned B.C. Petroleum Company which buys and sells all B.C. gas production, has recently complained that the proposed $2.25 new export price might be too high.

Christmas Charters In Canada Sold Out

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada announced Tuesday that all its charter class tickets for domestic flights in the summer and Christmas 1977 season are sold out.

The airline said it has sold 173,000 of the advance purchase tickets and that no charter class seats are available before Labor Day.

Air Canada introduced charter class tickets last February after computer studies established the number of seats historically vacant on specific flights in Canada.

Pleasure Boaters Demand Gov't Assess Fishermen's Wharf Rate

A wave of resentment is rising among pleasure boaters against the increased berthing fees for public wharves which went into effect April 1.

The anger is not against the increase — more than 700 per cent — but that commercial fishermen have not had the hike levied on them.

Bon van Hardenberg is a member of the Public Wharves Action Committee which held two meetings this week, attended by more than 35 boaters. A manifesto, deploring the "economic descrimination" against every boater except the commercial fishermen is being circulated to all marinas in the southern part of Vancouver Island, as well as some on the Mainland.

Van Hardenberg, who keeps his boat, Laurel Isle, at Fisherman's Wharf on Erie, says: "We're willing to pay reasonable rent but we're most resentful of the manner in which this was done."

Up until April 1, all boaters tied up at public wharves were charged two cents per foot per day or 40 cents per foot per month. Now, every boat that is not fished commercially, is assessed as a pleasure craft and must pay 10 cents per foot per day. The commercial fishermen's fees remain the same.

Van Hardenberg's fees for wharfage and electricity, for instance, have jumped from $16 a month last fall to $102.

Van Hardenberg says he and others on the committee are concerned about retired commercial fishermen who will now be forced to give up their boats because of increased costs.

"We feel very sympathetic toward some of these old fishermen, some in their 70s and 80s. They have no driveways in which to put their boats. They can't afford to keep them at a private marina. Instead of paying $60 a year it will be $600 a year. It's the end of their boating days," he said.

Van Hardenberg lives aboard his boat and reports one wharfinger telling another live-aboard that the hiked fees are "to get rid of you guys".

But, he explains, the new regulations hit every boater.

"Say, for instance, you have a 30-foot boat and tie up at a public wharf here. One day you decide to go to Ganges. You stop off at Sidney, tying up at a government dock to go ashore and buy a quart of milk. It's going to cost you $3 each place, that's $9," he said.

Why are commercial fishermen the only exceptions to the increased wharfage?

Charles Brooks, regional manager of the ministery of transport's harbors and wharves division in Vancouver, says the fishermen were exempted "at the request of Fisheries and Environment Minister Romeo LeBanc."

He added the move was "concession to the fishing industry".

Brooks said the cost of construction, maintenance and administration of public wharves had necessitated the wharfage hike.

He conceded the new charges pos "some hardship" for such people as retired fishermen, but stressed that the wharves are "facilities constructed at the expense of Canadians for public use."

This is the point that most upsets van Hardenberg and others. They contend the rest of the boating public should not, through increased wharfage, have to subisidize commericial fishermen, who already pay less than others for electronic devices and other boating gear.

The PWAC, in its manifesto, pledges, "to use all reasonable means and methods of achieving a fair and reasonable usage of government wharves".

The PWAC intends to contact both LeBlanc and Transport Minister Otto Lang is a bid for action.

"All Canadians should have equitable access (to public wharves) no matter what activity they've engaged in," says van Hardenberg. "Perhaps, there should be an extra fee for those that tie up for a long period of time.

"We want an acceptable solution that all groups can live with."

Shoots Own Horse In Pound

SURREY (CP) — Most people go to a pound to pick up a pet, not to shoot it, but there are exceptions.

Poundkeepers Mr. and Mrs. Gill Schofield said a man walked into the pound here Tuesday, asked where the horses were kept, got a rifle from his truck and set across the field.

Mrs. Schofield said when her husband asked the man where he was going he said he was going to shoot his horse.

"Gill said, 'No you're not,' and the man said something about the animal being lame anyway," she said. "We called the police immediately but the man walked away. We could hear the police car sirens coming, and then there was a shot."

Mrs. Schofield said several RCMP officers converged on the rifleman and one policeman had to draw his revolver before he dropped his weapon. The horse was dead.

"It's hard to understand anybody doing something like that," Mrs. Schofield said. "The horse had been picked up because it was wandering along a public road, but as far as I know the animal hadn't been impounded before and seemed in good health."

Claims Precede Pipe—Indians

KITIMAT (CP) — Heber Maitland, chief of this Indian village, told Kitimat oil port commissioner Dr. Andrew Thompson Tuesday that B.C. Indians are putting their land claims before an oil port for Kitimat or a pipeline to Edmonton.

Thompson said he would accept any briefs dealing with Indian land claims as they pertain to the proposed north coast port, but he is not in a position to settle them.

He said a separate hearing for a pipeline will be carried out by the National Energy Board and other land claims in the north should be brought before that hearing in August.

Members of the Indian community said their entire way of life could be destroyed by a single oil spill in Douglas Channel where the village is located.

Thompson said the purpose of the hearing was to find out what is at stake and what can be done to protect it.

Some members of the community suggested that the hearing will be a waste of time and money as politicians will trade off ill effects of the port for benefits reaped by easterners..

"That's whay they are," Thompson said. "Tradeoffs. That is how a politician makes his decisions."

He said all they could do was feed information to cabinet and let them know the hazards and the way people felt about it.

One person said if he could show everyone in B.C. was against the port the government would say the need for oil in Ontario is great so go ahead.

Thompson said in cases like this it would make it very difficult for the government to make a decision.

"This is what makes a country," he said. "One region respects the wishes of another."

Thompson, who told the meeting that much of his background had been in law and energy, said he is an environmentalist and is working with environmental law.

Asked what the government is doing about environment law, he said if the project goes ahead, chronic spills caused by loading or unloading or dumping bilge in water can be dealt with by legislation.

Spills caused by grounding or collision are a different matter, he said.

Thompson said he is going to Ottawa May 11 and hopes to announce by the end of the week what money will be available to finance adversary briefs.

He assured the meeting that there is no doubt that people who live on Douglas Channel will qualify for a grant.

Davis' Pipeline Remarks Ignorant, Bigoted: Skelly

Transport Minister Jack Davis' recent remarks about the desirability of a Kitimat pipeline terminal are both ignorant and bigoted, MLA Bob Skelly said Tuesday.

Skelly (NDP—Alberni) said in a news release that the "assertion that an oil spill near Kitimat would in some way be preferable to an oil spill near Cherry Point, Wash., reflects Davis' contempt for northern people in general and his unusual ignorance of the whole issue surrounding the oil ports."

Davis confirmed Monday the contents of a news report quoting the transcripts of a February meeting with Washington State energy officials.

The minister said then that "in the Kitimat area, there's practically nobody, and then the shoreline's almost straight up and down. It's rock."

"Who's going to sue you? he asked, "who's hurt if a spill occurs?

Davis said at the meeting thtt native Indians "are really the only people who are physically located along that route with permanent residence."

He said Monday that the statements were taken out of context and were made during a lengthy discussion of all the pros and cons for each respective site for reception of Alaska oil.

Davis also pointed out that the thrust of his argument was that most people that would be affected by a Kitimat spill don't have many tangible assets and therefore a spill wouldn't be as costly.

"It is incredible to believe that Jack Davis was once the federal minister of the environment," said Skelly.

He added that Davis does not understand that even if the Kitimat plan goes ahead, Cherry Point would still receive some oil..

Building Future Shock

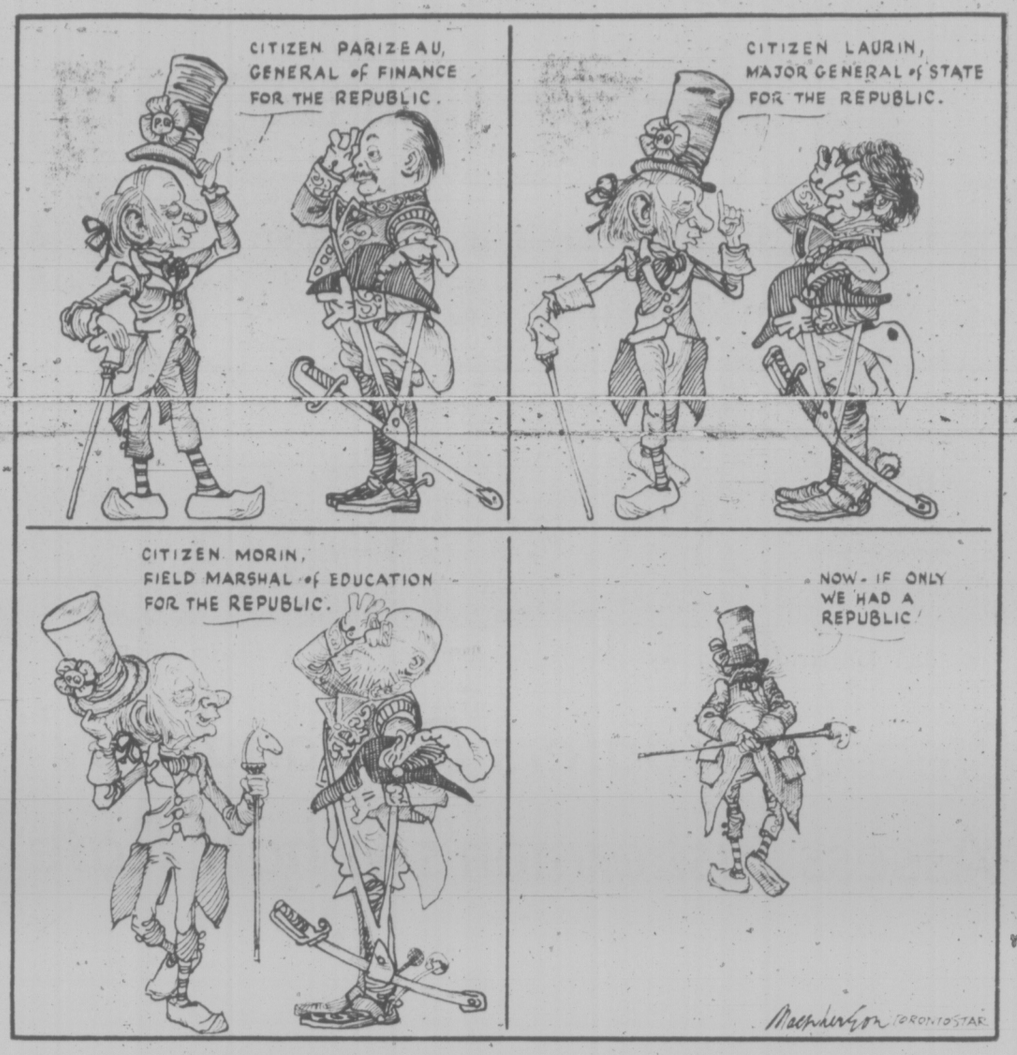
As the venerable provincial ministry of public works melts into the British Columbia Buildings Corporation we are soothed by promises of greater efficiency and continuing employment for those human beings found to be surplus. That a provincial government can put on a pious face, sacrifice 800 jobs at a time of record unemployment, and look for applause, absolutely jars the mind. If we have been the victims of some melodic public relations, the gaps in Highways Minister Alex Fraser's litany raises serious questions about the orchestration of the whole government.

The minister assures us that no one will be laid off. Attempts are being made to retrain or relocate people in other civil service positions. As these "other" positions come open, they might have been filled by some of the 100,000 British Columbians who can't find jobs today. Now they will just absorb a percentage of 800 people who thought they were secure in employment. In fact, 800 jobs will simply disappear from the civil service. Eight hundred jobs are to be abolished with the stroke of a pen at a time when one in 10 British Columbians can't find work. Despite Social Credit's election promise to trim the civil service, a wholesale cutback at a time of record jobless lists, is like treating a severed artery by ordering more bleeding.

One also has to question Fraser's sensitivity in announcing the change to a news conference, rather than to affected employees. How did those people feel picking up a newspaper one day to find they might be pushing a broom in Pouce Coupe or drafting in Fort Nelson? It was a callous way to announce a new policy which will all but eliminate the ministry of public works. At present the ministry has 2,200 employees of which 1,200 will be transferred to the BCBC, while another 800 positions will be eliminated leaving the ministry with 200 employees, or one-eleventh of its original manpower.

Perhaps it's all as the minister says, in the interests of greater efficiency. But when governments start talking about "efficiency," it usually means that things done before just aren't done at all anymore. If the BCBC is the most efficient crown corporation in the world, how will it measure up against the wrenched lives of 800 people? These things are not easily measured by computers, although they show up as lines on the face of human beings. Of course recent history shows this administration has difficulty understanding any emotion that goes beyond a profit and loss statement.

In the interest of this "efficiency" much of government is being shifted into crown corporations. First we had the B.C. Ferries Corporation, followed by the B.C. Systems Corporations, which absorbed people from a number of government ministries, and now we have the B.C. Buildings Corporation. Soon most of the economic hardware and software of this province will be safely tucked away in streamlined crown corporations, taking the heat off government, and keeping prying public eyes away from government machinations. Too much efficiency in a democratic government is cause for worry. It would be reassuring if this administration would show as much concern for democracy as it does for efficiency.



Ill-advised Comments on Port

As has become painfully apparent, intemperate, ill-considered and hasty remarks by cabinet ministers have become something of a hallmark of the Social Credit government since the day it was elected in 1975. We have heard Education Minister Pat McGeer on selling one's car, Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm on picking up shovels, Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair on kicking posteriors and a variety of other callous comments uttered by ministerial mouths.

So it is more with exasperation than surprise that we learn that Energy Minister Jack Davis has been in the U.S. freely venturing opinions on the merits of a Kitimat oil port several months before the first hearings of an inquiry commission struck to study the proposal in detail. According to reports, Davis told Washington state officials in February that, if he were an oil company, he would chose Kitimat over Cherry Point, Wash., as a port site because the dollar-value damage of a spill would be more obvious in the well-developed Puget Sound than at the sparsely populated Kitimat Inlet. Noting that the north coast is inhabited only by relatively few Indians, the minister is quoted as saying: "Who's going to sue you? Who's hurt? How do you quantify it?"

Now, anything can be said during a long, free-wheeling discussion. Any number of possibilities can be tossed about and context may change from moment to moment. In this case, the matter has been further obscured by Davis initially denying the statements altogether and later admitting them, with some qualifications.

That is not the point. What the minister appears to miss is that any statement at all by a minister of the crown — especially one on such a sensitive issue as the handling of oil — can be interpreted as official policy and set off reaction in all directions.

The particular danger here is that release of Davis' comments and his fumbling denial cum explanation coincides with the opening of commissioner Dr. Andrew Thompson's inquiry into the feasibility of a Kitimat oil port. Perhaps coincidence, perhaps a carefully orchestrated leak. But we can guess how the north coast Indians and other concerned parties will interpret the minister's ambiguous and ill-advised remarks. We can also guess the reaction of Thompson, who has spent the last few days reassuring the people of the Kitimat region about the independent and thorough nature of his inquiry commission. Unwittingly, perhaps, but almost certainly, the minister has made Thompson's job considerably tougher.

HAROLD GREER

Ont. Vote May Antagonize

TORONTO — An Ontario election having been called, it appears the first and perhaps persistent issue will be why. Both the NDP and Liberal leaders have pronounced it unnecessary and Premier William Davis is defensive enough about it that he announced dissolution of the legislature with a 23-page statement on why it was, allegedly, necessary.

Every election, of course, brings a certain degree of public antagonism — and why not — which usually disappears after the first week or two of the campaign. But sometimes the resentment is such as to influence the campaign and the outcome — witness the fate of David Lewis and the NDP federally in 1974 and that of Robert Bourassa in Quebec in 1976. This Ontario venture by Davis could be another case in point.

There is no question most voters decidedly do not want an election because they see no reason for it. The public perceived that minority government was "working." All the polls show that and all the politicians agree on it. For this reason, amongst others, the two opposition parties turned cartwheels in the past 18 months to keep the minority Conservatives in power, and for this reason Davis wants the voters to understand that somehow he did not so much call the election as that the opposition parties caused it.

Issue Abandoned

It will take some understanding because it involves a lot of esoteric talk about parliamentary "want of confidence," about which the general public couldn't care less. Suffice it to say on this score that Davis chose to regard a government defeat on a clause in a bill extending rent control as "want of confidence." He didn't have to do that and the legislature would have carried merrily and perhaps productively on if he hadn't. There would have been no election.

In more practical terms, Davis would have the voters understand that he had their interests at heart when he decided the legislature no longer had confidence in him. The defeat which the premier found so unnerving was against a government proposal to allow "base" rent increases of eight per cent (higher increases would have been possible, but subject to review board approval). The opposition parties wanted, and got, base increases tied to the federal anti-inflation guidelines, with a maximum of eight per cent. Since the guidelines control wage increases, the opposition argued, they should also control rent increases.

Obviously it is not going to be easy for the voters, especially the tenants of Toronto and other cities where rent control is a fairly big issue, to understand how the Conservatives were protecting their interests by insisting on higher rent increases than the other parties would allow.

Having made the argument, moreover, Davis then found himself saying, at his press conference when he announced the election, that rent control would not be on the list of "unfinished" business for a summer legislature to be called as soon as the election is over — assuming, of course, the government is returned. The government would live with the legislation as passed, he said, and would not attempt to restore the eight per cent.

STUART SMITH
. . . Liberals in trouble

In short, having called the election over eight per cent, the government is not prepared to legislate the eight per cent even if it is returned with a majority. It does rather suggest Davis had other reasons for calling the election.

The real reasons, which everyone knows as well as his own birthday, are that Davis succumbed to the tremendous pressure which had built up in the Conservative party, from candidates and organizers, for an election while the polls showed a big swing in voter support from the Liberals to the Conservatives, making a Conservative majority likely.

No doubt Davis would have preferred some other crunch than rent increases — indeed, it was precisely because the opposition parties thought he would never insist on the eight per cent that they were prepared to push him for less. Perhaps he would even have preferred to complete most of the legislative program which the speech from the throne, only a month before, had held to be so vital for the province — there were 45 government bills and orders on the legislature's order paper at the time of dissolution, including the budget tax changes.

But time and circumstance were against him. He could not process his legislative program and still get in a June election; July and August were out, and who knows what the polls may say in the fall? Nor could he count on a combined opposition on any other issue; bad as it was, the eight per cent would have to do because had he not said many times that minority government was working, that he would govern as long as the opposition let him? The scriptures had to be fulfilled.

Spots Unchanged

Davis, of course, will admit none of this and perhaps nothing will be heard of it after the campaign is two weeks old. That depends on how quickly the voters forget and whether the other political parties are disposed to let them. NDP leader Stephen Lewis seems only mildly interested but Liberal leader Stuart Smith feels strongly about it, and understandably so: it was Smith who was made to look foolish when he flip-flopped from one position to another in order to make minority government "work."

But the political potential of the situation can hardly be denied. The Conservatives were reduced to a minority government in 1975 partly because of scandals and partly because Davis was perceived as being too slippery, too manipulative, too politically partisan by half. The premier has tried to live the image down but he hasn't changed his spots — that would be impossible — and it may well be that his manner of calling the election will remind a significant number of voters that he's still the same old Bill.

Quebec

The article on page five of the Times April 25 by J. D. B. Miller (Separatism: Its Success Rate Has Not Been High) suffers from inaccuracies. A preamble through several "emerging" new nations, separated from colonialism, is followed by broad inaccurate statements on two nations which are far removed from "emerging" category, and who seek not separation but self-determination! The Welsh have been reduced to living in a principality, with the probability of obliteration. The Scots, by a king's edict, were to unite with English, both to become British; and the Scots parliament never ratified the Act of Union because their people did not wish this; this parliament adjourned. The Scottish National Party seeks a federation similar to our Canadian federation, with no dominant party with a vast preponderance of voting power.

Separation cannot be stopped by either force or coercion. Nor bribery. Stop here and now the usage of the words English-Canada and French-Canada. It is a vast conceit to lump everyone who is not of Quebec as English. John A. Macdonald revisiting the Canada he first premiered would hardly accept the appellation. We must acknowledge the differences amongst our components, and we should respect the differences. The federation called Switzerland has three official languages. They are among the smallest of peoples and the most affluent. Maybe we should try accommodating our French component by attempting to converse with them in their tongue. We get awfully uptight when in Quebec and we are shrugged off when we speak English. Let us not make a bitter enemy of Quebec, even if they separate, but establish better relations than exist between Britain and the republic of Ireland. — New Canadian of 30 Years Residence.

Freedom of Choice

In his letter to the editor (Times, April 27) Mr. M. P. B. Wrixon states that although he is in no way opposed to independent schools as a free choice for parents, he is bery much opposed to supporting, through taxation, the children of Pat McGeer and other who freely choose to send their children to independent schools.

Surely he realizes that the parents of children in independent schools could use an identical argument, if they felt so inclined. How do they feel when their tax monies are taken to support children in the provincial school system, while they have to finance their childrens' education out of their own pockets? If that is what he calls a real freedom of choice, then I'm afraid that I can't agree with him. Surely a real freedom of choice, would enable those parents who choose independent schools for their children to apply their school taxes to the independent school concerned.

It has been my experience with socialists that when they talk about "freedom of choice", what they really mean is the freedom to make a socialist choice. For example, when the New Democratic (?) Party was in power, the freedom of choice (?) for provincial civil servants, and others, was to join the union. There was no freedom of choice not to join. Another famous NDP "freedom of choice" enabled us to drink wines and spirits as long as they did not come from South Africa.

But what came through really loud and clear in Mr. Wrixon's letter was his statement that the English Public Schools (independent schools) created a class differential or an elitist group and that he is opposed to any policy which creates class differences. Although that is a smart argument, because it is nicely calculated to appeal to the strong egalitarian streak in most Canadians, I suspect that the real reason socialists have always opposed independent schools is because these schools either teach an independence of mind that would find the restrictions of a socialist system intolerable, or else give the child a religious background that may incline it to be hostile to socialism.

In any case, I am opposed to any policy that would either force all children into the state controlled educational system or, alternatively, offer parents the invidious choice of sending their children to independent schools, as long as they pay their school taxes to the provincial system and pay for their childrens' education out of their own pockets. In my humble opinion, that particular "freedom of choice" is as phoney as the proverbial three-dollar bill, or the word "democratic" in "New Democratic Party". — Peter Gage, 250 Douglas Street.

Jack Wrong

After months of silence from the transport minister's office one may have been led to believe that Jack Davis had finally relinquished his attempts to justify the horrendous ferry fare increases imposed on Vancouver Islanders. It's now apparent the silence was only a temporary pause while Jack searched for new material and Eureka! He's found it, even if it is located many thousands of miles away from Victoria.

In his latest letter (Times 27th April) Jack enlightened us that ferry fares across the English Channel between England and France are more expensive than those charged by B.C. Ferries to cross the Strait of Georgia.

Such a comparison is of course utterly ridiculous and clearly illustrates that Jack fails to grasp that the English ferry service is a link between two foreign countries and consequently no one need travel the route other than to take an occasional holiday abroad, while on the other hand the B.C. Ferry service is a vital link within one province and as many Islanders have close family and business ties on the Lower Mainland they must commute frequently.

Jack's consistant references to ferry fares and tourists is indicative that he is continuing to put the cart before the horse, for it seems he has either forgotten, or was not yet informed, that the primary reason for establishing the B.C. Ferry fleet was not to bring hordes of tourists here, but was to provide Island residents with an inexpensive and efficient means of transportation to and from the Lower Mainland.

As soon as Jack takes steps to once again give priority to this purpose then he may begin to achieve some credibility with Vancouver Islanders.

Jack certainly need not go as far as England to compare ferry fares, for right on our own doorstep we have the Princess Marguerite which is run by the B.C. Government mainly for the convenience of Americans and is transporting them and their cars from Seattle at approximately half the cost per mile charged on Canadian routes, an the reason for this inquiry be that after already switching his political alliance from federal Liberals to provincial Socreds, Jack is now out to gain popularity amongst Washingtonians in preparation for a bid to unseat Dixie Lee Ray in the next governorship race. — C. Blair, 930 Reeve Place.

Mair Replies

Our plan to hire senior university students as part-time liquor inspectors has drawn some rather interesting comment in the media, including the suggestion that these are gestapo tactics and, in fact, one Victoria radio station even suggested that this was the start of a "police state." What utter nonsense.

First of all, let me state that probably 95 per cent or better of liquor licencees more than adequately police their own establishments and are honest law-abiding citizens. Secondly, let me point out that, particularly since the lowering of the age of majority to 19, teenage drinking has become an enormous problem to society. Thirdly, I need hardly emphasize the enormous carnage on the highways as a result of people driving after having consumed too much liquor.

Since time immemorial, the government liquor agency has had licence inspectors whose duty it is, among other things, to see that licencees do not disobey the law. Surely, there is nothing sinister in this. What we have found, however, is that because there are so few establishments involved in inspection problems, the licence inspectors become very well known indeed, particularly in areas where underage drinking is a problem. We propose, therefore, that some of our liquor inspectors will not be quite so readily known in these areas.

I want to make it very clear that our inspectors do not make it a practice of being "picky" and we're not looking for opportunities to prosecute for minor violations of our regulations. We are attempting to curb two very serious abuses of alcohol, the serving of minors and the over-serving of patrons with the resultant social cost.

Presumably, those who oppose this method of inspection would have us give the licencee 24 hours advance notice to our intention to inspect his premises and have our inspectors wearing large badges clearly indicating their role. That makes as much sense as it would to try and curb shoplifting by dressing store detectives in readily recognized uniforms.

In closing, may I say that it is obvious that we have the support of responsible licencees as indicated by the remarks by Mr. Frank Burger, President of the B.C. Hotelmen's Association. Those who do not break the law in a flagrant manner have nothing to fear from our inspection methods. — K. Rafe Mair, Minister, Consumer Corporate Services.

Significant Group

You are probably aware that the reverend Bill Vander Zalm recently decided to cut off the funds from Community Action Group. This seems consistent with the government's policies — protect its own interests first, then take care of the people who elected them.

The thing that concerns me is, what if Community Action is completely shut down? They are the most significant group of their kind in Victoria. If they get closed down, sooner or later other groups will go too. Also, social workers who really care about people may very possibly get cut off too, and removed from positions where they can help.

If Community Action bites the dust, a lot of people will be cut off from an essential service.

The government should not be so surprised that some people don't like what they are doing. They are playing games with people's lives. If they choose to ignore basic human needs they may not be so popular one of these days. I mean, the government is only a collection of individual people. Do they care more about economic manipulations than about sincerely helping people? — David Dawes, 1125 Fort Street.

In Defence of 'Democratic' Automobile

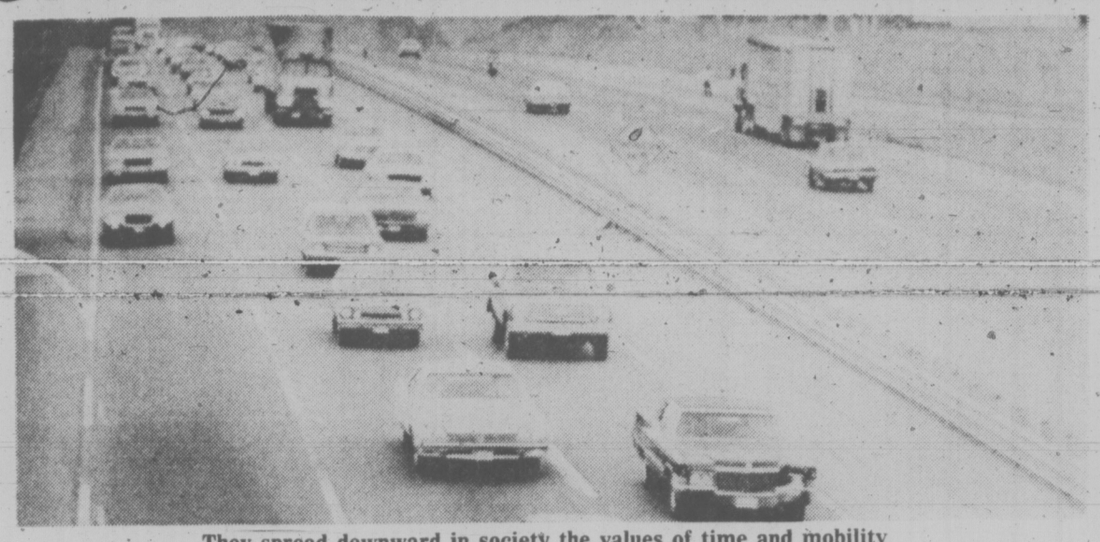
By WILLIAM GREIDER
Washington Post



They spread downward in society the values of time and mobility

My daughter at this moment loves horses, and as sometimes happens when children develop intense interests, it educates the parents.

On a Sunday afternoon I learned something about the true nature of horse shows. I thought horse shows, especially jumpers going over fences, belonged to rich people, the town-and-country tweeds.

What we discovered at one of the stables in Rock Creek Park was an extraordinary scene — hundreds of ordinary folks gathered to ride and jump in friendly competition. Scores of well-muscled horses. Friendly banter. The easy ambience of a country fair, right in the city.

But more startling still was the awesome fleet of monster vehicles assembled for this horse show. Bumper-to-bumper horse vans were parked around the ring. Not just your little single-horse trailers, but huge trucks with fancy interiors, capable of hauling four horses or six horses —gas-guzzling horse stables on wheels.

'Regular People'

Only in America, right? The puritan in me was naturally offenced by the grossness. All that mechanical horsepower assembled for the purpose of playing horse-and-rider. You could probably run Europe on the oil Americans devoted to such non-essential marvels as horse vans.

But the small-d democrat in me felt good. I would like the kings and queens of Europe to come to Rock Creek Park some Sunday afternoon and try to guess who these people are. They are just regular people, ordinary Americans, enjoying a sport invented for dukes and earls.

Automobiles, camper vans, pickup trucks — they are gross, luxurious, wasteful vehicles. But they are also democratic. The horse show reminded me that someone ought to say this, now that the puritans are mounting another offensive.

I think cars and interstate highways and even those ridiculous summer-homes-on-wheels called "recreation vehicles" spread egalitarian values through America — the values of time and mobility — and they spread these qualities downward in our society, more directly than any patch-up government programs.

Cars give poor people more choices. If government regulation were to cripple the automobile society, in the name of saving oil, it would most surely hit the poor first and hardest, then ripple upward on the economic ladder to the rich, whose lives would not suffer at all. (I am reasonably certain that government regulation will not be allowed to cripple the automobile, because too many politicians understand that the very idea contains the seeds of class war.)

I can't prove these claims with statistics, but anyone who has travelled much around this country has seen what I mean. The new pattern of country living is a man or woman who drives 100 or 150 miles a day from their farm or small town to a job in a medium-sized city.

In Kentucky people who live in benighted mountain counties drive the turnpike to good jobs in Lexington. In Illinois a woman drives 140 miles a day commuting from Carbondale to Mt. Vernon. In the West the distances are more awesome still.

The range of these working people in the country has been defined by the interstates, and it has greatly increased their job choices. The practice of long-distance commuting, outside metropolitan areas, has increased dramatically in the last few years; so has the population in those places. The energy statistics may put that mileage down in the luxury column, but I doubt that it looks that way to those people.

Here's another thing that doesn't show up very clearly in the statistics: cars help people, especially poor people, to create their own private "social security" systems to cope with their big problems — unemployment, family trouble, poverty.

You can run away from home in a car (and also return when you get homesick). The Okies drove to California in the 1930s, and that process, less obvious and dramatic, is still in motion today, all over the country.

I first saw it years ago in Cincinnati, my hometown, where thousands of Appalachian mountaineers — "hillbillies," we called them — came north to look for work. They lived in the slums and were widely despised, and many could not find jobs.

Painful Times

But they did not just migrate to the city — they went back and forth, frequently. They might return to the home place in eastern Kentucky during lean times, come back to the city when jobs opened up, drive home to the mountains on the weekends, where friends and family were around for comfort.

These were painful times, but the old cars they drove were part of easing the pain. The Cincinnati bridges are still jammed with cars heading south on Friday afternoons.

You can find the same thing on Indian reservations. Talk to the most impoverished families in a remote canyon of a South Dakota reservation, and it is likely that some of them have been to Chicago or Cleveland or San Francisco. There are no jobs on the reservation; they do not like the wretched life in the cities. So they move back and forth, searching earnestly for modest improvement in their lives.

And it is not just the travelling around, private and unplanned by the economists. It is the idea of travelling that is important to us, transcending all class lines. This notion, the roaming American, is as old as the republic, but it has survived, miraculously, in a new mythology built around the automobile (and lately the van).

The car is a subterranean linkage in this broad country; expressed in mad nonstop dashes from coast to coast, burning across the heartland's all-night radio band, tripping the continent on adrenalin. If you have not done it, if you don't understand why other people do it, read Kerouac's On the Road or Algren's Walk on the Wild Side.

Cars are our leap into sensational experiences: I remember leaving lower Manhattan at midnight, plunging into the greasy air of the Lincoln Tunnel and 30 hours later sitting in a drugstore in a steamy small town of Mississippi, drinking Coke and listening to the dead voice of the counterman. Thirty hours later we were in the rain forest of Mexico, where tarantulas sometimes cross the highway.

I remember a wreck on the West Coast, coming back north, when a Mexican nun in a white habit sewed up my forehead. We limped north on buses and hitchhiking, feeling suspicious of ourselves without a car. I knew I was home at a used-car lot in Tucson when the salesman warned us: "This car ain't got no garn-tee you know." He was from West Verginia, a familiar voice and I can still hear it, though this was 20 years ago.

These cars, I think, burned images in all our young minds — painful, frantic, gaudy moments, sometimes suicidal, occasionally triumphant. I am thankful that I lived through it (a few friends did not) and I can still say that it seemed necessary, those escapes by car. Adults, I discovered later, are not so different, only more cautious as drivers.

This is all very untidy. Economically wasteful. In a better world people would not wander around like this, burning up gasoline in futile searches (in a better world, people would not be poor or spiritually desperate). Still, there's an explosion waiting, I think, if the government tries to price Americans out of their wandering.

If you want to see what it looks like, examine a Latin American city where the poor lack mobility — where they stack up in the cities and build tarpaper slums, unable to find work and unable to return home.

Right now the puritans are bringing up Europe again, to make us feel bad: Europe is more efficient, less wasteful. Europe does not squander oil the way we do. This is beyond dispute, but there are reasons which the puritans do not mention.

For one thing we have lots of people in this country who drive the equivalent of halfway across France every day, just getting to work and back. The French do not do that much, especially the poorer French. It is a smaller place, more crowded, with less wandering.

Also the poor people in France do not own cars. They have motor scooters or bikes or they walk. With good fortune, they buy the bottom-of-the-line Citroen, a noisy, sluggish beast that would strain its guts out driving halfway across France every day.

Closer Together

These are my impressions from Europe. I looked up some statistics that confirm them.

For starters, there are 245 million cars in the world — and 45 per cent of them are owned by Americans. In the United States there is more than one car for every two citizens. In France there is less than one car for every three citizens. In thrifty West Germany, which we are supposed to emulate in energy matters, there is one car for every four citizens.

People in West Germany or France don't need cars as much — they live closer together in villages and town and they move around less (and besides, gasoline costs more than $1.60 a gallon). The population per square mile in America is 60 people. In France it is 250 people. In Germany it is 650.

I could not find any statistics to show who owns cars in Europe and who doesn't. I would be happy to bet my 7-year-old Ford station wagon that it is not the rich who sacrifice their mobility to save oil. (If you saw the condition of my station wagon, you would not take the bet.)

But Europe does have something America doesn't have in automobiles: efficient design. European cars are smaller, less exotic, less powerful, but in the medium and upper-price range they are as comfortable for families as American cars, merely less gross. (If Detroit would sell Americans the same cars that it markets overseas, it would save us a lot of oil.)

But here is something else that Europeans enjoy: speed. Strange but true that Frenchmen are driving along their Autoroute in smaller cars at 80 to 100 miles an hour, while America chugs along the interstates in their behemoths at 55 m.p.h.

If we are talking about inefficiency, this is one of the grossest inefficiences in America today. This nation spent billions of dollars building a rational system of high-speed highways; yet now millions of Americans are wasting millions of hours of their lives, driving slow in order to save a little oil. I know all the pieties about how slower is faster, but folks are already defeating that anyway with CB radios and native American stealth. If Americans drove better-designed cars, they could drive a lot faster, more efficiently.

Time and mobility. What I'm getting at is that the political solutions to the energy problems will make a lot more sense — and will have at least a prayer of popular acceptance — if the energy debate recognizes the importance of those values in the automobile, especially for the less privileged. The solutions could aim to preserve those social values — even enhance them — instead of denouncing us for statistical luxuries.

So why not make a deal with American car owners when the nation's fleet of gross monsters becomes smaller and less wasteful, they can go back to driving 80 miles an hour on the interstates. Make a trade: size for time, grossness in exchange for speed.

Or, since we are subsidizing everything in life and commerce, how about a federal program to help people buy new cars — more efficient cars, naturally — for the people who are driving old clunkers and can't afford new models? This sells cars for Detroit, reduces air pollution, saves oil and helps poor people.

Who could be against all those good things? It's as American as stock-car racing.

Oil Blowout Foreseen

By JEREMY BUGLER
London Observer

LONDON — As American engineers finally shut off the massive blow-out in the North Sea platform Ekofisk Bravo, it became clear the disaster will have wide-ranging political as well as environmental effects. Both the Norwegian and British governments are under fire for their hasty development of the North Sea and their lack of supervision of the oil companies.

Norwegian Premier Odvar Nodli has admitted that Norway was not prepared to cope with oil pollution on the scale of that caused by the Bravo disaster. He told trade unions that the disaster dramatically underlined the need to improve equipment.

The off-shore oil operators themselves are being attacked by environmentalists for "technological arrogance" and, most woundingly, for not being up to the job.

Environmental danger is that the oil will damage mackerel spawning grounds nearby, kill plankton and fish larvae and ruin shorelines in Britain or Europe.

The major row that the British and Norwegian governments and the oil companies face is based on their evident lack of protection. Only three weeks ago, Red Adair, the famous Texas oil fire-fighter whose men eventually controlled the blow-out, warned about the North Sea operation: "The hardware to deal with a disaster? At the moment, for a real blowout you don't have anything . . . Everything sitting out there wide open with nothing to protect it."

When the blow-out occurred, Adair was proven right. Despite immediate action, it was 18 hours before his men could be near the site. By that time, everyone knew the rig could have caught fire and been out of control.

Three and a half years ago, Adair came to Britain to try to persuade the oil companies to buy semi-submersible fire-fighting and anti-pollution craft to deal with emergencies. The U.K. Offshore Operators Association rejected his idea on the grounds of expense. The British government did nothing to encourage the association to buy the equipment. Instead, British Petroleum converted an old tanker into a fire-fighter. The ship is not a specialized vessel.

In the House of Commons last week, energy secretary Tony Benn was attacked for his slow reaction to the impending crisis. He and the government are embarrassed by new attention to an official report published a year ago. The report by a government watchdog, the Central Unit on Environmental Pollution, said that there was a 50 per cent probability of more than one blow-out in the North Sea operation occurring before 1980.

It recommended a series of proposals for increased safety, many of which have not yet been agreed to, let alone acted upon.

Benn is embarrassed by the fact that only within the last month has he visited Norway to plan joint emergency operations in the North Sea. The first oil strike in the North Sea was made eight years ago. Benn could offer Parliament only details of agreements and plans made for an emergency. He could not list any hardware.

Norway and Britain are now urgently seeking new controls over the oil companies, after the blow-out has blown. The oil companies' financial liability for pollution is to be increased and rig discipline tightened. The Norwegian government is holding an official inquiry into the blow-out. It has been attacked by the opposition parties for over-rapid exploration.

The oil companies may also find life harder in the North Sea. Recently, they rejected some plans put forward for pollution control by the Central Unit on Environmental Pollution and even complained to BBC Television for giving air time to Red Adair's warnings. Most worrying for them, both Britain and Norway have new areas of the seas around their coast coming up for oil licensing. In Norway, there is strong pressure on the government not to issue licenses in the new area off the North Coast, a rich spawning ground for fish. Many Norwegians believe the oil would be better — and safer — left in the ground. In Britain, the oil companies will be under pressure to show they have the hardware and the competence for more off-shore exploration.

"Ekofisk Bravo has undone five years good public relations," said one American oil man in London.

B.C. Tel

British Columbia Telephone Co. Ltd. reports that in spite of an 11.2-per-cent increase in revenues in the three months ended March 31, net earnings fell 37.5 per cent.

The company said net earnings were $3,945,000 or 21 cents a share compared with $6,307,300 or 33 cents a share in the corresponding 1976 period.

Chairman Gordon MacFarlane said the company is "caught in the squeeze between continuing cost increases and insufficient revenue growth."

He said that if the Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission approves the company's rate increase application, it would add $28.3 million to gross revenue from May 1 to the end of the year, and $42.6 million in a 12-month period.

Block

Block Bros. Industries Ltd. reports lower net earnings for the year ended Jan. 31 in spite of higher revenues.

Net earnings were $5,042,000 or 92 cents a share on sales of $98.2 million compared with $5,712,000 or 91 cents a share on gross revenue of $89.6 million the previous year.

The company said its brokerage division experienced greater competition, higher costs and slower market conditions which affected its record sales.

The company, through various subsidiaries, is engaged in a wide range of real estate activities and services in British Columbia and Alberta.

Pilley

Trevor Pilley, president of the Bank of British Columbia, has been named chief executive officer of the bank.

He will take over the position Sunday from Albert Hall, who will continue as chairman of the board.

Placer

Placer Development Ltd. reports first-quarter net earnings of $7,369,000 or 61 cents a share, compared with $3,547,000 or 29 cents a share for the corresponding 1976 period.

The company said in a news release the increased earnings were due to improved prices for molybdenum and an unusually-high volume of copper concentrate shipped by its subsidiary, Gibraltar Mines Ltd.

Earnings of Canadian Export Gas and Oil Ltd. were consolidated for the first time in Placer's first-quarter earnings.

The company said with more than 90 per cent of the outstanding shares of CEGO tendered, it plans to utilize the provisions of the Alberta Companies Act, which allow it to acquire the remaining shares on the same terms as the offer.

White Pass

White Pass and Yukon Corp. Ltd. reports net earnings for the three months ended March 31 were $220,324 or seven cents a share, compared with $84,209 or a loss of half a cent a share for the corresponding 1976 period.

Gross earnings from operations were $15,948,987, compared with $13,904,111.

Pac Northern

Earnings of Pacific Northern Gas Ltd. for the three months ended March 31 increased to $457,612 or 29 cents a share after preferred dividends from $434,234 or 36 cents a share for the corresponding 1976 period, company president John Anderson said.

Anderson told the company's annual meeting that the drop in per share earnings reflected an increase in the number of shares outstanding to 1.6 million from 1.2 million.

He said the company is awaiting a decision by the British Columbia Energy Commission on its rate increase application submitted last October. The application seeks an average increase of 15.8 cents a thousand feet.

Renn

Renn Industries Ltd. of Vancouver has applied for listing on the Toronto Stock Exchange, Renn President Tom Tyson told the annual meeting.

Renn, primarily a manufacturer of agricultural equipment, is the former Four Seasons Manufacturing which rose to $9.50 a share several years ago on the Vancouver Stock Exchange before collapsing. It was revived as Renn under new management and currently trades for about $1.40.

Renn recently reported 1976 net income of $707,000 or 38.2 cents a share compared with $789,000 or 48.2 cents a share in 1975. Sales last year were $16.3 million compared with $14.3 million in 1975.

Cyprus Anvil

Cyprus Anvil Mining Corp. reports profits of $1.9 million or 25 cents a share in the first quarter this year, compared with a loss of $1.3 million or 16 cents a share for the comparative period a year ago.

As previously announced, the company lost $1.2 million during the whole of 1976 compared with a profit of $20.5 million in 1975. Last year the company was heavily hit by strikes.

Company president John Bruk says the company now is meeting its production targets and has continued to enjoy good markets for its concentrates. The demand for lead concentrates has strengthened substantially during the last six months.

HB Mining

Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co. Ltd. made suddenly cash-rich by the sale of its potash mines to the Saskatchewan government, continues to run a deficit, shareholders were told at the company's annual meeting.

The company had a loss for the first quarter of this year of $274,000 to go with a deficit of $8.2 million for fiscal 1976. It finished 1975 with a profit.

Despite the deficits, Hudson Bay Mining announced to the meeting a dividend of 20 cents a share, payable June 1.

E. P.Gush, president, told shareholders Hudson Bay Mining was particularly disappointed with the first quarter because the red ink would have been worse except for a windfall of almost $2.5 million from premiums on the devalued Canadian dollar earned in export sales.

The company had hoped to start 1977 strongly as this is its golden jubilee year — 50 years in business in mining — set off with its principal mines at Flin Flon, Man.

Gush blamed the decline chiefly on weak metal markets.

Cook

N. B. Cook Corp. Ltd. reports a net loss of $239,959 or eight cents a share for the three months ended Feb. 28, compared with a net loss of $296,587 or 10 cents a share for the corresponding period in 1976.

Gross revenue for the period was $6,098,381 compared with $5,260,269 the previous year.

For the nine months ended Feb. 28, the company had a net loss of $898,414 or 30 cents a share on gross revenue of $17,897,190 compared with a net profit of $1,943,216 or 65 cents a share on sales of $20,972,153 in 1976.

The Vancouver-based company constructs, owns and operates nursing homes in Calgary, Regina and the Toronto area and manages several private hospitals in British Columbia.

Steintron

Steintron International Electronics Ltd. reports net earnings of $1,079,146 or $1.49 a share for the year ended Dec. 31, compared with $937,322 or $1.25 a share for the previous year.

Consolidated sales were $50,289,415, up from $41,249,142. Stentron specializes in wholesale and retail sales of audio, record and electronics products. Its subsidiary is Kelly Deyong Sound Corp Ltd.

Genstar

Genstar Ltd. reports net income for the first quarter of 1977 was $8.9 million, or 70 cents per common share on revenues of $194 million compared to net income of $7.5 million, or 61 cents per common share on revenues of $172 million for the same period of 1976. The average number of shares outstanding as of March 31 was 12,385,000 compared to 11,658,000 at the same date a year ago.

The increase in income over last year is attributed to strong earnings in the California housing division, improvement in the building materials and marine operations located in British Columbia and income resulting from the sale of the Abbey Glen revenue properties. As well, serviced land in Western Canada continued to sell at a satisfactory pace in the first three months.

IU International

IU International Corporation reports net earnings of $21.5 million, or 64 cents per share, for the first quarter, compared with $9.9 million, or 29 cents per share, in the first quarter of 1976. Revenues total $549.1 million, compared with $473.2 million a year ago.

IU's after-tax earnings before foreign currency adjustments were $16.3 million, compared with $16.1 million in the first quarter of 1976. The company's earnings were increased by $5.2 million, or 16 cents per share, in the first quarter of 1977 as a result of currency adjustments. A year earlier, currency adjustments reduced IU's earnings by $6.2 million, or 19 cents per share.

Boeing

The Boeing Co. reports higher first-quarter earnings and prdicted 1977 sales will rise above the 1976 records of $2.9 billion.

Chairman T. A. Wilson said earnings for the first three months of the year were $28.2 million, or $1.35 per share, on sales of $755.9 million.

During the same period in 1976, Boeing reported earnings of $15.5 million, or 74 cents a share, on sales of $741.9 million.

Coke

Coca-Cola Co. reports record profits for the first quarter, due mainly to increased sales and higher prices for coffee and tea.

Shareholders approved a two-for-one stock split May 31 for shareholders of record May 9.

Coca-Cola reported profits for the quarter of $65.675 million or $1.08 a share, up 11 per cent from $59.016 million of 97 cents a share in the same period of 1976.

Sales for the quarter totalled $785.2 million, up 18.8 per cent from $660.7 million last year.

Chairman J. H. Austin told shareholders at the annual meeting that sales gains were especially strong in Europe, Africa, Asia and most of Latin America.

Mobil

Mobil Corp. reports first-quarter profits of $219 million, or $2.07 a share, compared with $213 million, or $2.09 a share, on fewer shares, for the same period last year.

U.S. petroleum profits for the first quarter increased to $112 million from $86 million last year, foreign petroleum profits rose to $191 million from $79 million.

Mobil said the period profits reflected a new reporting basis for its Montgomery Ward and Container Corp. subsidiaries.

It said Ward had contributed $17 million to last year's first-period profits, including the Christmas season results, compared with $5 million for this year's first period, which did not include the holiday results.

Container Corp. contributed $11 million for this year's first quarter compared with $6 million last year, Mobil said.

Mobil acquired a 100-per-cent interest in both companies July 1, 1976. It previously had a 54-per-cent voting interest in the two companies.

The Government of Canada may, however, in any quarter of any year apply to this undertaking the purchase of those bonds made during the immediately preceding twelve months and not previously credited. Bonds of both forms will be in the same denominations and fully interchangeable as to denomination and/or form without charge (subject to statutory transfer requirements where applicable).

The new bonds are authorized pursuant to an Act of the Parliament of Canada and both principal and interest are a charge on the Consolidated Revenue Fund of Canada.

Applications for the new bonds may be made, subject to allotment, through any investment dealer eligible to act as a primary distributor or through any bank in Canada.

Brokers Tout B.C. Stocks with Faith in Recovery

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

Stocks of British Columbia companies rate highly in brokerage offices this spring, reflecting the belief that this province (and Alberta) will lead Canada's economic recovery.

MacMillan Bloedel and Bank of B.C., in particular, are highly regarded. Westcoast Transmission also has some support as a stock to watch.

MacMillan Bloedel is rebounding strongly from its past disasters. In 1975 it had recorded its first net loss ever. The company had a loss equivalent to 89 cents per share.

In 1976 the company had net earnings of $1.07, or an improvement of $1.86 per share over 1975.

This year, net earnings are expected to reach $2.25 per share, up more than 100 per cent from $1.07 last year.

The company has cut its losses in the shipping sector and will benefit from improved lumber markets and a favorable exchange rate on the dollar.

Therefore, MacMillan Bloedel is expected to outperform not only the market averages but also most other forest product companies.

Bank of B.C. is a small but growing company that is well-liked in the brokerage industry. It had net income of $4.05 per share in 1976 and this is expected to rise to $4.75 per share this year.

More speculative is Westcoast Transmission which is in the middle of several controversial pipeline proposals. The company has steady earnings transporting Alberta crude oil to British Columbia (as well as bringing B.C. crude to market on the Lower Mainland).

However, whether the company's earnings will grow rapidly is an open question. The company has applied for permission to transport Alaska crude oil from Washington State through its existing pipelines to Edmonton, reversing the normal flow.

This type of major contract would have a strong effect on the company's earnings potential. Without a major breakthrough in terms of contracts, the earning pattern would continue to be steady but unspectacular.

The company had net earnings of $2.24 per share in 1976 and could have earnings of $2.50 per share this year, or more if additional contracts are signed.

The shares of B.C. Tel, which were devastated by rumors of a takeover by the former NDP government, now are more solid but not yet strong.

The share price is considered about right, considering the company's immediate prospects, and while there is no longer a "sell" sign on the shares there is little enthusiasm to buy large holdings at this time.

The prospects for Cominco, a CPR subsidiary, are mixed. The company is normally the most profitable one in B.C. but it is vulnerable in a labor contract year.

It will benefit from higher prices for lead, coal and possibly fertilizer as well. Net earnings in 1976 were $2.66 per share. These could rise as high as $2.50 this year but the estimate assumes that every good thing that could happen will happen.

All forecasts are assumed to be good for six months. Changing economic conditions could alter these views beyond that period.

Active Life Keeps 103-Year-Old Going Strong

PRINCE PEORGE (CP) — Louise McCabe was chopping firewood at his home last week when an old war wound flared up.

That put him in hospital for his 103rd birthday Monday.

He lost several toes in the First World War and his foot became infected April 26, necessitating treatment.

But friends and hospital staff threw a birthday party for him.

"We had a good party, but there was no drinking," McCabe said. "If there had been I would have thrown them out."

McCabe attributes his good health to the active life he has led.

"My only bad habit is chewing snuff," he said. "When I drink beer I think I am drinking rat poison."

He says younger people are too well-educated today and unwilling to do hard work.

"When I was a young fellow, you had to make your own work," McCabe said. "You took an axe and a saw and went out and cleared the land."

Born in Detroit May 2, 1874, McCabe went to Nanton, Alta. when he was 18. His family homesteaded a section of land there, which McCabe continued to farm until two years ago when he came here. His two adopted sons are still farming there.

McCabe says that unless something is done about unemployment another world war is inevitable.

He served in both world wars, although he said he had to lie about his age to enlist in the Second World War.

McCabe is enjoying his stay in hospital but thinks he will be back home in a few weeks.

"At my age you can be satisfied almost anywhere," he said. "I feel good, that's the main thing. As long as you have your health, nothing much else matters."

Faulty Chlorine Pump Shipped for Inspection

PORT EDWARD (CP) — A Hooker Chemicals Ltd. spokesman said today that a faulty pump which led to six workers inhaling deadly chlorine gas at the Canadian Cellulose Co. Ltd. pulp mill April 26 was being shipped to Vancouver for examination.

Leslie Schnurstein, Hooker's general manager in Vancouver, was in this northern coastal village to investigate the mishap with company officials.

The chlorine leaked as 300 tons of it was being unloaded in liquid form from a barge into Hooker's tank farm adjacent to the mill.

None of the workers was seriously hurt, but the incident caused temporary evacuation of a school, cannery, airport and lighthouse.

Grant Delay Rapped

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Jack Volrich has criticized the federal government for its delay in announcing a decision on a $6 million urban demonstration fund.

Volrich blamed the British Columbia causus of the federal Liberal party for the delay because members of the caucus were demanding that more funds go to other municipalities.

Identity Error

CRANBROOK (CP) — Crown counsel in a drug trafficking case are considering their next move after an RCMP undercover officer who gave evidence said he made an error in identification.

As a result of the error, a stay of proceedings was entered against Robert Hunter, 21, of Cranbrook. Three other men were convicted.

An RCMP officer who was giving evidence in the case Monday saw a man who resembled Hunter sit down in the courtroom. The officer immediately told the prosecutor of his error and said it was the other man who had sold him drugs and not Hunter.

New Paper Starts

TERRACE (CP) — Terrace Herald began daily publication Tuesday with a 12-page newspaper and a press run of 10,000.

Managing editor Allan Krasnick said the Herald will publish five times a week, Monday through Friday, and serve the Terrace and Kitimat area about 350 miles northwest of Vancouver.

Raises for Profs

VANCOUVER (CP) — The University of British Columbia board of governors Tuesday ratified a one-year salary agreement that would give faculty members a 6.25-percent wage increase.

The 1,900 faculty members still have to vote on the pact but acceptance has been recommended by the faculty executive.

The agreement includes carreer progress payments, which, coupled with pay increased, cannot exceed $2,400.

Buy-Back Rot

BURNABY (CP) — Owners of government-built condominiums with condensation problems have another 15 months to decide if they want the provincial government to buy back their units, Deputy Housing Minister Larry Bell said Tuesday.

He said that since only four or five of the owners in the 216-unit development have taken up the offer it will be extended until August, 1978.

The damp rot and mould-infested suites will be renovated and new ventilating units will be installed in other condominiums, Bell said.

Early Hours Backed

SURREY (CP) — A convenience store proprietor's effort to restore evening hours to the adjacent Whalley liquor store failed to gain council's sympathy Monday and it voted to re-affirm its support for the Liquor Administration Board's decision to maintain a 6 p.m. closing time. Edith Thornton, who said the early closure was ruining business, had taken her problem to Premier Bill Bennett.

Mortgage Fraud

VANCOUVER (CP) — Businessman Alvin Zipursky and lawyer Arnold Sigesmund were charged Tuesday in a mortgage fraud case involving $308,000.

The two men face 17 counts of fraud relating to the obtaining of investment funds, and two counts of fraudulent registration of title relating to assigning the same mortgage to more than one person.

Land Speculators 'Just Got Lucky'

MATSQUI (CP) — Two Matsqui municipal employees who made a $260,000 profit on a land deal just got lucky when council decided to extend sewer lines to the area, a real estate agent testified Tuesday.

Marlin Loepky told an inquiry into possible conflict of interest in the Matsqui land dealings that he acted for M.S.A. Development Ltd., a company owned by Matsqui municipal treasurer Bruce McIntyre and works foreman David Laxton, in the 1974 purchase of an 18-acre property next to Matsqui prison.

Leopsky told the inquiry, headed by former Victoria alderman Alfred Hood, that he was sure McIntyre and Laxton did not know sewers would be built when they made the purchase in this Fraser Valley community.

M.S.A. bought the property from Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Mitchell for $170,000 and sold it to a consortium of builders in May 1976 for $430,000.

Leopsky, a former Matsqui alderman, said it was common knowledge that sewer lines would eventually be extended to the area but he was surprised the decision came as quickly as it did.

$1M Fund for TV Promised

VANCOUVER (CP) — Western Broadcasting Co. Ltd. said Tuesday it would set up a $1-million television development fund to finance new Canadian programs if it wins approval for a $19.4-million merger with Premier Cablevision Ltd.

Western president Frank Griffiths told a Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC) hearing into the merger proposal that amalgamation of the two firms would strengthen Premier without creating undue concentration of media ownership.

Under the terms of the proposal, Western would acquire control of Premier through the purchase of Premier shares held by Sydney H. Welsh, company president, and a number of his associates. The Welsh group, in turn, would acquire a 16-per-cent interest in Western.

Premier was the subject of an attempted takeover bid last fall by Rogers Cable of Toronto.

CRTC approval of the deal would give Western control of Premier's cable networks in Vancouver, Victoria, the Fraser Valley, Toronto, Oakville, Ont., and Quebec.

Western already owns radio stations in Vancouver, New Westminster, B.C., Calgary, Winnipeg and Hamilton. It also has a 45-per-cent interest in British Columbia Television, which owns two television stations, and a 45-per-cent interest in Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League.

Welsh, who would become a director of Western as part of the merger, said Premier would benefit from Western's substantial borrowing ability and financial strength without risking the exodus of staff which might result from the outside takeover. Both firms are Vancouver-based.

Griffiths said that despite Western's large share-holding in BCTV, Western does not control the television operation. Western's other subsidiaries are given general managerial guidelinnes but each company has local management and is locally-oriented.

Griffiths said the $1-million television development fund would aim to improve the financing of pilot programs that have already attracted some funding from other sources. He said programs would have to meet the CRTC's Canadian content guidelines but financing would be available to any producer or production company, primarily in Western Canada.

Although Western would not expect to make a profit on the fund, he said, the company would ask for a five-or 10-percent carried interest in any long-term production that resulted from a pilot as repayment.

Victoria Holds Line on Property Tax

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Victoria city council has succeeded inh olding the line on property taxes.

Council wrapped up its 1977 budget on Tuesday by approving a staff proposal to juggle some revenue and expenditure estimates and produce a one-mill reduction in the city's general purposes levy.

Coupled with a nine-mill drop in the education levy, that means a total tax bill 6.85 per cent lower than in 1976.

The budget bylaw will be introduced at a special council meeting on Tuesday and given final approval at the regular council meeting two days later.

At last week's caucus meeting, when 3½ hours of debate failed to produce any budget savings, city manager Jim Bramley and comptroller Mason Sheldrick were asked to suggest ways of lopping about one mill from the budget.

Their recommendations, endorsed Tuesday after only brief discussion, produce the required reduction by raising some revenue estimates and slashing more than $172,000 from the special contingencies fund, which previously stood at $810,500.

Finance committee chairman Ald. Murray Glazier expressed some doubts about depleting the contingencies reserve, as most of the axed sum had been earmarked to meet the city's costs if it is unsuccessful in litigation involving OK Paving Company.

(The firm has launched an action in B.C. Supreme Court seeking damages in connection with the delayed construction of its Store Street paving plant, for which it alleges the city is responsible).

But Mayor Mike Young said he is confident that the money need not be set aside for that purpose, indicating his belief that the city will win the case.

Revised revenue items account for more than $119,000 of the one-mill ($246,757) net decrease in the operating budget. The bulk of this, $85,000, is expected to come from the sale of building and electrical permits, now running at a level higher than earlier forecasts indicated.

Among other items that received last-minute shuffling on Tuesday, $35,000 was reinstated in the street lighting budget, which had been chopped back from $220,000 to $185,000.

Bramley advised restoring the original spending allocation, pending council review of a report on street lighting recently prepared by city engineer John Sansom.

Glazier told council he believes significant economies can be achieved by ensuring that street lights are turned off as soon as it turns light in the morning.

He said he is not advocating any cutbacks in lighting for the downtown area, because "there is a correlation between lighting and crime," but savings were possible in residential areas.

On a recent day, he said, the sky was light at 5:30 a.m. but street lights at the Richardson-St. Charles intersection were still burning at 7 a.m.

Ald. Ron McKenzie, chairman of the parks and recreation committee, told council he hopes to obtain more use and revenue from Royal Athletic Park by encouraging outdoor concerts and similar attractions.

McKenzie later told reporters that city recreation manager Jack Morgan has already booked two or three such shows for this summer and he hopes more will follow.

"Royal Athletic Park is definitely not getting the use it should," he said.

It's all smiles as Peter Montgomery (Peter Pun) and Karia Leschke (Markaria) lead the Maypole dance, which has survived to become present-day tradition

An Imaginative Return to Middle Ages

'Twas May Day on Sunday and being such, I decided to slip away to the Shire of Seagirt for a right royal May revel.

There under the giant boughs of the speading oak trees, Lady Ceridwen y Gwenneth, Cathal Sean O'Connlan and his lady Makaria danced softly through the daisies and bluebells to the lilt of medieval music.

While Daphne of Avalon and Dafydd ap Rolland sat engrossed in the ancient game of chess, nearby at a large bench Bryan and Joan of Faversham, Giles Fitzjohn, Peter Pun the poet and the others sipped wine and feasted on herb fritters, daryols, stuffed tuna, mete dishes of lamb and pork hocks, rosewater junket and barley frumenty.

Later, well rested from the feast, after they'd all been presented to the visiting Baron and Baroness of Lions Gate, after Peter Pun had read his epic saga detailing the creation of the Shire of Seagirt, there was more frollicking on the lawns, ending with a wild dance around the Maypole.

All this in Oak Bay and in the 20th century? Right.

But why?

Well, the residents of the Shire are members of the newly-formed Vancouver Island branch of the Society For Creative Anachronism. It's a world-wide society and, in case you didn't know, North America is divided into four kingdoms. The king of the West — King Terrence of Halliday — lives in the San Fraqcisco Bay area.

The society, Vancouver's baron told the gathering amidst much mirth, was founded 11 years ago in protest of the 20th century.

Members — and that included everyone there except for the hosts of the day, Rolland and Mimi Jones, who nevertheless wore costumes and said they felt the whole thing was "very delightful idea" — choose a "persona" from some period in which they are interested.

Karen Jones chose Lady Ceridwen, a Welsh person from the 12th century as her persona. Karen works in a bookstore, has studied medieval literature and loves music and dancing.

But why do they do this? Is it another form of escape? Are they dissatisfied with life as it is today?

"Oh, no," says Karen, "it's just fun and it's nice to have someone kissing your hand and saying 'Good day, my Lady'."

She looks distant, as though she's gazing back in time.

"Lady Ceridwen loved to dance . . . and when I'm in costume, I become her. It's kind of fun, really, to become someone else for a while. This is the Middle Ages as we would have liked them to be, rather than the way they were. That's where the creative anachronism bit comes in."

max low

Karia Leschke becomes Markaria for the day and says she does it because she's interested in fantasy and because her husband is into it.

"But also, I think we can't go anywhere new because it's too expensive to take a space ship to Mars; so we can go into the past."

The Society knows no age limits. There are retired people and the youngest to join are 13-year-old Pamela Hay (Daphne of Avalon) and 14-year-old David Jones (Dafydd).

Of course, they expect it to grow, but right now the society has 12 members ranging in backgrounds from a journalist (Times staffer Bryan Hay was one of the founding members) to a retired minister, a professor of English and a waiter.

Peter Montgomery, who teaches English at Camosun College, chose Peter Pun as his persona.

"Apparently, we're allowed to have very ridiculous names and, as punning is one of my hobbies, I thought I might as well live up to it," he explains. He joined, he says, mostly for the fun of it, although he has had some training in medieval philosophy and so was sympathetic.

"We do this, I think, not so much for an escape, but for a way to enable the imagination to grow," Peter adds.

"Because television has created a desire for our imagination to grow, but frustrated the possibility for it to grow . . . we do this instead. Subconsciously, this is a way of being in a television show."

It's definitely not escape, says Peter, because it takes a lot of effort to make costumes and to prepare authentic food using only ingredients that were known of in the Middle Ages (no things like potatoes or tomatoes which weren't developed at that time).

"But it's like a museum putting you in the right environment," he explains. "We're a sort of living museum, if you like."

Baron Gerhard Kendal of Westmoreland, the Baron of Lions Gate, regaled the ladies and gentlemen with his tales of jousting and battles on the Lower Mainland and in the States. But Bryan of Faversham says the Shire of Seagirt has no immediate plans for such hostile stuff.

"Right now, I think this is about our speed, feasting and dancing," he says.

You can tell the Baron loves every minute of it.

"It's great and glorious fun," he says. "I find I can be a totally different person from the one I am in the 20th Century. It's kind of nice to be able to be chivalrous and do a lot of hand-kissing without someone saying 'You can't do that to me, I'm a Ms.' There is no such thing as a Ms. in our society."

Baron Gerhard is ad man Gerry Stevens. He works for a Vancouver ad agency.

"That's what I am in the fantasy world," he says with a grin. And he glances down at his splendid costume, ". . . this is what I am in the real world!"

Driver Unnamed By Jury

A coroner's jury Tuesday found that the death March 16 of 18-year-old Peter John De Haan was due to dangerous driving.

The jury, however, did not indicate in its finding who drove the car which crashed causing the death.

Earlier in the inquest, witness Jennifer Jean Green, 29, who was also in the car, testified she could not remember being involved in the accident, in which De Haan's sports car left the Trans-Canada Highway near Malahat Chalet.

De Haan died of head injuries.

RCMP who investigated the accident found evidence which, according to Crown counsel Armand Petronio, suggested Green had been driving.

However, counsel Humphrey Waldock, representing Green, told the jury this evidence could also be construed to indicate De Haan was the driver.

Before retiring, the jury was told by coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre that Green was "either the cleverest actress in the world" or had actually suffered a temporary loss of memory.

Green testified the last thing she recalled was eating pizza with De Haan and another employee of the Century Inn during a staff party she thought was Saturday or Sunday, three days before the accident.

Study Two Years Old, Fire Chiefs Impatient

Victoria Fire Chief Eric Simmons today called for the provincial government to act on some of the 37 recommendations in the Keenleyside report on firefighting.

The government got the report two years ago, Simmons said, and provincial fire chiefs are growing impatient for action.

Simmons' comments were made in a telephone interview from Penticton where he is attending the 46th College of B.C. Fire Chiefs' convention.

The firefighting report was prepared by Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, a former co-chairman of B.C. Hydro.

One of the recommendations given high priority by college members is the establishment of a firefighters' academy in the province — similar to the training centre for policemen in Vancouver.

Before a Victoria city policeman even dons his uniform he receives 10 to 12 weeks training in the academy, Simmons said.

But a firefighter starts his first shift without any training.

"We begin training him ourselves from the start, but it's possible for a fireman to start his first shift at 8 a.m. and be involved in a major fire at 8:10," he said.

What course of action members of the chief's college take to get the government to implement the Keenleyside recommendations will be discussed Friday.

The fire chiefs also want a fire commission that would operate like a police commission in governing municipal forces in the province.

A third recommendation the college wants implemented is the creation of a Fire Act setting province-wide standards, including the number of men per vehicle and the minimum amount of training needed.

Training is a key issue. Simmons said the police department in Victoria receives $48,000 annually to train men, while the fire department receives $4,000.

Attorney-General Garde Gardom was invited to attend the convention, but he was too busy to come, Simmons said.

MEDIATOR CALLS MEETINGS

Mediator Ed Sims is to meet next week with negotiators for six Canadian Union of Public Employees locals and the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association.

Meetings are set for Tuesday and Wednesday.

Sims had been involved earlier in the negotiations but stepped out during discussion of non-cost items. However, talks broke off April 21 and the mediator was recalled.

Union spokesman Bob Cunningham said today there are still some unsettled non-cost items but the talks next week will centre initially on the cost items.

He said he hopes GVLRA negotiator Carl Anshelm will budge "from the same offer he has given us four times."

"Otherwise, I can't see much hope for Mr. Sims."

Police Promotion Sparks Grievance

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

The Esquimalt police union has launched a grievance over the promotion of former constable Peter Merriott to inspector, the second top position on the 32-member force.

A union spokesman said today the action was decided on after a meeting of union members Monday night.

He said that according to the grievance procedure Chief Art Burton has five days to try to resolve the problem. If he is unsuccessful the union will take the matter to the police board and if the matter is not resolved, a government-appointed board of arbitration.

The union spokesman refused to say how many of the 13 members who applied for the position are protesting Merriott's promotion.

Mayor Art Young, chairman of the Esquimalt police board, said today that although he expected "some rumblings," he hadn't heard of anyone launching a grievance.

But he said he is not surprised by the move.

"If I was a sergeant and felt I had done a good job and then had a constable jump over me in a promotion competition, I'd probably take the same action."

But, Young said, the decision to promote Merriott was based on a number of factors and "we're not running a popularity contest."

Merriott came out the winner in a department competition to fill the vacancy created by the retirement last week of Staff Sgt. Jim Owens, a 30-year veteran of the force.

At age 37, Merriott is the youngest-ever policeman to achieve the rank of inspector in the Greater Victoria area.

NO SNOW JOB AT CITY HALL

The white stuff may fall in Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt, but there will be little or no snow in Victoria this winter.

That's the comforting word from the long-range weather forecasters down at City Hall.

In the city's 1977 budget approved Tuesday, city council has confidently earmarked only $1,000 for snow removal — $9,000 less than the sum originally requested by the public works department.

The argument appears to be: As it was, weather-wise, in 1976, so shall it be in 1977.

Last year the department had budgeted $10,000 for snow removal but actually spent only $200 during the exceptionally mild winter.

Medicine Today: Patching Up the Gluttons

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

A lot of today's medical care is devoted to patching up people who have consumed too much of too many things and society is due to enter an era of more self discipline, says a local doctor.

Dr. Robert Peet, chairman of the B.C. Medical Association's Health Planning Council, says each of us has to make a personal decision on whether to be healthy or not.

"It will not be an easy decision for some of the flabby, unhappy consumers abused by over-eating, alcohol, smoking and lack of exercise."

He also says that the age of our population is rapidly shifting "and we must be ready for the geriatric explosion which is almost upon us."

Peet's comments are part of reports from each committee of the council, for presentation next week at the annual meeting in Victoria of the B.C. Medical Associaiton.

He says that historically, doctors improved health by good hygiene and vaccination programs, but progress beyond this point is complex and difficult in a consumer society.

"The large vested . . . interests are the producers, often as not allied with the professions, unions and politicians. These power and economic forces, aided by the vast sales-oriented media, are continually moulding and manipulating the individual to consume more, much of which is detrimental to his health."

People have been 'programmed "to develop insatiable appetites and expectations," he says, "to keep politicians in power and the coffers of their symbiotic allies full."

But the pattern runs in cycles.

"When greedy appetites build to rapacious levels, the individual consumer becomes alarmed. The politician senses danger. He turns off the taps to allow the consumer to thin down by belt-tightening.

"Finally his allies scream to turn on the taps again, and so the cyclic process."

Today's consumer medicine spends much of the time "patching up accelerated degenerative diseases and injuries due to super consumption," Peet says.

Future medicine may even provide spare parts rather than repairs.

"We are about due to return to an era of self discipline and obviously less consumerism by the individual to promote his positive good health.

"To be healthy or unhealthy will be his decision."

Self-discipline by bloated government is not evident yet, he says, but there is a lot politicians can do.

"Harder decisions must come to curb alcoholism in teenagers and young adults. This is our most serious health hazard.

"Harder still will be the decision to deal in a positive way with narcotic addicts.

"The non-addicted consumers now demand it, if only for the selfish reasons of protecting life and property from unfortunate addicts who commit most of the crime in B.C., to support one of the biggest and wealthiest industries on the west coast."

The lawmakers can make it easier for communities to vote on fluoridation by a simple majority vote, Peet says.

"They can improve physical fitness programs for our children and adults through to a happy, active old age."

On the swing to an older population, he said the work of public health nurses in particular must change radically, allowing for more innovation and responsibility.

TRIUMPH FOR ISLANDERS is indicated as Billy Harris raises arm in jubilation after poking puck past Montreal goalie Ken Dryden to give New York club 4-3 overtime victory over Canadiens in Stanley Cup playoff game Tuesday in Montreal. Islanders Shock Habs in Overtime

MONTREAL (CP) — Boston Bruins are going to have to wait a little while longer to find out who they will be meeting in the best-of-seven National Hockey League Stanley Cup final.

And if New York Islanders have their way, the Bruins will not know until sometime Saturday night whether they will be playing the Islanders or Montreal Canadiens.

The Islanders, counted out of their semi-final series with Montreal after losing 4-0 last Saturday night to fall behind 3-1 in games, came back with a dramatic 4-3 overtime triumph Tuesday night to force a sixth game in Uniondale, N.Y., Thursday night.

The goal came with 3:58 gone in the first overtime period and brought all the members of the New York club racing to the Montreal crease where Harris stood with his arms waving.

Jean-Paul Parise, Denis Potvin and Jude Drouin scored the other New York goals with Jacques Lemaire, Mario Tremblay and Yvon Lambert replying for Montreal.

But it was a goal that the Islanders did not gain credit for which may have turned the game around for them. It was put in the net by Lewis early in the second period, but referee Bob Myers ruled the Islanders defenceman had gloved it past Dryden.

"We've had some big wins, but I'd have to say that this has to rate as one of the sweetest," said Glenn Resch, the diminutive New York goaltender who was making his first start of the playoffs.

"I think what really got us going was the referee. When we saw everything going against us, it really picked us up. He called the goal back that Louie scored. It was a good goal. You watch it on the replay and you'll see it was good.

"There wasn't a person alive who thought we would win. I'll be honest with you — we were kidding about it ourselves. But it's like a defence mechanism for us."

Resch was sharp when he had to be, kicking out 26 of 29 shots directed his way. The Islanders had just 19 drives at Dryden, with the shot by Harris the only one New York managed in the extra period.

The Montreal loss was even more stunning considering the Canadiens' home-ice unbeaten streak was snapped at 36 games. Montreal had not lost since last Oct. 30 when Boston defeated them 4-3. Since that date, Canadiens had won 32 and tied six in front of their Forum fans.

AVOID PENALTY BOX TEAM CANADA PLAN

VIENNA (CP) — It doesn't take long for Dallas Smith to describe his feelings about European referees.

The veteran defenceman, who quit Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League early in March, then joined Team Canada for the world championship, says:

"You can't trust them. This high-sticking they frown upon but they let spearing go."

Smith has been a steadying influence on Canada's young defensive crew which faces a tough task in tonight's opening games of the playoffs involving the top four teams from the first-round-robin segment of the eight-country tournament.

To be successful in the playoffs, the 36-year-old Smith believes the Canadians will have to stay away from the penalty box, starting today against Sweden.

It was quite obvious that we couldn't keep taking penalties the way we did in the earlier games," said Smith, referring to the rash of minors the Canadians took against Sweden and the Soviet Union.

"They were putting us behind the eight-ball all the time. You certainly can't give Sweden, Czechoslovakia or the Russians the power play because they're just too strong and eventually they'll catch up to you."

Defending champion Czechoslovakia met the Soviet Union in tonight's first game of the single round-robin four-country series for the medal chase, then Canada took on Sweden.

The Swedes, third in last year's tournament, wound up first after the initial round-robin series with a 6-1 record, the same as the Soviets. However, the Swedes got first place because they defeated the Soviets 5-1 in Monday's final game of the first tournament.

On Tuesday, the United States scored a 4-1 victory over West Germany. It was the first game of the playoffs for the U.S. and they came out of it looking certain to avoid finishing in last place.

Romania is firmly in the bottom after losing its eighth consecutive game, a 14-1 thrashing by Finland, Tuesday.

The United States defeated Romania in the first round. Jukka Alkula scored three goals for Finland.

The top four teams continue their playoff games Friday night, with Canada meeting the Soviet Union, then conclude their portion Sunday, with Canada facing Czechoslovakia. All points from both round-robin series will be counted in the final standings.

Later Start in '78 For World Tournament

VIENNA (CP) — The International Ice Hockey Federation decided Tuesday at its three-day congress meeting to start its world championship later next year, hoping it will give Canada more time to send a stronger team to Prague.

This year's eight-country tournament began April 21 and ends Sunday with final playoff games among the top four teams. The IIHF is committed to the same type of format with a similar number of teams for its 1978 championship in Czechoslovakia.

? Alan Eagleson, chairman of international hockey for Canada, told a news conference that next year's tournament will get under way April 26 and finish May 14.

The marathon schedule, initiated last year in Poland, has been the target of much criticism and it is believed the IIHF will change the system, including a reduction in the number of teams, after the Prague championship.

Walter Wasservogel, general secretary of the federation, says a decision on a new format won't likley be undertaken until the IIHF's general congress meetings are held in Italy next year. The general congress meets every four years, at which time the IIHF can make constitutional changes.

In conjunction with the discussion on that tournament, Eagleson said, "I proposed that a couple of adjustments be made insofar as player personnel is concerned and perhaps an increase in the number of players allowed to participate."

Eagleson also said that Canada was confirmed as host country for the 1978 world junior tournament, although a site has not yet been chosen.

He said it will be called the world junior Canada Cup and will be held from Dec. 18-30.

Eight teams will compete in the junior tourney, including the United States, Czechoslovakia, the U.S.S.R., Sweden, Finland and West Germany with the eighth team being either Poland or Switzerlad.

"On the understanding that if Montreal is the base we would use such cities as Sherbrooke, Verdun, Quebec City, Hull and Cornwall for part of the games.

"If Toronto is selected," he said, "such cities as London, Oshawa, Kitchener, Peterborough, St. Catharines and Niagara Falls would get some of the games."

"If Edmonton is the choice, we'd be looking at places like Lethbridge, Medicine Hat and Calgary."

The difficulties in travel were raised by some of the countries, Eagleson said, "and they're preference would be either the Montreal or Toronto site."

An all-star team will be selected to represent Canada from the Western Canada, Ontario Major and Quebec Major junior leagues.

"It's our understanding from previous meetings with the three Canadian Major Junior A leagues that they will suspend operations early in December and have a two-week period during which they will determine what players will represent Canada on an all-star basis," Eagleson said.

McDonalds Show the Fans Why the Boss Was Excited

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

General manager Bob Reid of the 1976 Canadian junior lacrosse champions, Victoria McDonalds, said before Tuesday night's opening game of the Western Canada Major Junior "A" Lacrosse League that he "felt excited about this year's club."

But better still, last year's league champions lived up to their manager's expectations.

They were exciting all right, a little unpredictable and they'll probably drive their manager and coaches straight up the wall on occasions this season.

Just as they did Tuesday before coming from behind a five-goal deficit in the first period to defeat Richmond Roadrunners 14-13 at Esquimalt Sports Centre before about 700 fans.

Minus 11 of their Minto Cup clubmates through eligibility and four others because of retirement, the Bakers went into their opener with only four players from last year.

And when the first period was over, there was some question if that would be enough to see them through.

Because Richmond came out running and gunning and caught McDonalds up-tight and with the first-game shakes. When the period had ended, the Roadrunners had a 6-2 lead, Rob McKay starting McDonalds back from a 6-1 deficit in the final two minutes.

"During one stretch, the Runners ran in three short-handed goals through Ian Cleary (2) and Dave Cochrane, and scored four goals in three minutes and two seconds.

That was exciting, too, but it was from the wrong side.

Then, in the second period, McDonalds erupted, turned the game completely around, scored eight goals, allowed Richmond only two and had a 10-8 lead. Now Richmond apparently was on the run.

But no. Just as quickly, it was the Roadrunners' turn to show their grit. And, in six minutes of the third period, they had regained the lead through goals by Fred Klomp, Gary Penway and Cleary, his fourth.

Richmond's Bob Carl then put the Runners ahead 12-10 and it seemed the bubble had burst again and for sure for the Bakers.

But not quite. Scott Brown-ing rapped in a power-play goal. Young-Rhys Wicks, who showed some speed and class, broke free to tie the score at 11:30. Doug Angrove took a pass from Jim Boyd to notch a shorthanded goal at 15:22 to give hit team the lead again. After Penway had scored for Richmond, Angrove took a neat pass from Randy Bryant to break clear and fire home the winner at 17:21.

All of which prompted Reid to comment: "I guess there'll be many nights ahead like this." So who wouldn't be excited?

McDonalds had six power-play and three shorthanded goals while Richmond had three power plays and three short-handed counters.

Bryant and Tej Labh each had three goals for McDonalds, Angrove his fourth-quarter pair. Singles went to McKay, Wicks, Paul Michael, Tarey Pollock, Browning and Boyd.

Cleary had four goals for Richmond. Cochrane, Davinder Deol and Penway each had a pair and singles went to Ciminelli, Klomp and Carl.

Rookie Rick Baines played in goal for McDonalds and, although nervous and apparently on edge in the early going, stayed on to become one of the heroes of the piece in the final minute when he made several key saves on shots from point-blank range as Richmond pulled their goalkeeper in favor of a sixth attacker.

McDonalds outshot the visitors 56-52. Reg Foreester, a former London, Ont., player, and Dave Lemire divided goal duties for Richmond. Each allowed seven goals.

COOL STILL HOPING FOR TIMBERMEN DEAL

Bob Cool, the first-round junior draft choice of Victoria Shamrocks of the Western Lacrosse Association, said he still hopes to be traded to Nanaimo Timbermen. After meeting Tuesday with Shamrock president Chris Randall and WLA commissioner Roy Burton, Cool said nothing had been resolved, but that the Shamrocks indicated they would try and arrange a trade with the Timbermen.

Cool, captain of Victoria McDonalds last year when they won the Canadian junior lacrosse championship, has declined to report to the Shamrocks.

Nanaimo drafted Kevin Alexander, Cool's clubmate, as their No. 1 choice, and has since made offers to Cool and to the Shamrocks for his services. Cool has asked permission to join the up-island club. So far it has been denied.

Cool feels he can't help the Shamrocks after what has gone on before in negotiations this spring. He said he was pleased with the meeting and hopes that a trade may be arranged shortly.

If no deal is made, Cool would be forced to sit out the season and both Randall and Burton have indicated they don't want to see this happen.

Shamrocks open the WLA season tonight at Memorial Arena — against Vancouver Furtards. Game time is 8 p.m.

DORSETT LIKES RICK'S GAME

Bell, the star running back from Southern California, was the No. 1 selection in the first round of Tuesday's National Football League draft, picked by his former college coach, John McKay of the NFL Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

Within a few hours, he'd flown from New York to Tampa and had signed what was reported to be five one-year contracts worth close to $1.5 million.

Dorsett, the Heisman Trophy-winning running back from unbeaten Pittsburgh, was only No. 2. And he was trying harder the moment Dallas Cowboys dealt four draft picks to Seattle for the chance to grab him.

"I do feel I'm worth as much as anybody in professional football," he said.

Dorsett said: "I'd love to play for $1.5 million." He just might get it, considering that Mike Trope, Bells agent, is Dorsett's man, too.

McKay, Tampa, coach has his all-star alumni, Bell and Anthony Davis, who spent two post-graduate years in the World Football League and with Toronto in the CFL.

McKay has already decided what to do with Bell. "Ricky runs with power and speed," he said. "He's an excellent blocker as well as pass receiver. He can play both fullback and tailback and we plan to use him at both positions."

With No. 1 out of the way, Seattle passed on Dorsett, who had told them he had no desire to relocate in the Pacific Northwest.

Instead Seattle went for quantity—Dallas draft choices. In the first round they picked Tulsa guard Steve August. In the second round they picked Boston College offensive tackle Tom Lynch and Kansas linebacker Terry Beeson. Then the Seahawks dealt the last of the four Dallas draft picks back to the Cowboys and got secondyear wide receiver Duke Fergerson.

Metros Acquire Scottish Winger

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Metros-Croatia of the North American Soccer League have acquired Kenny Aird, 30, a five-foot-five winger who recently received his outright release from Heart of Midlothian, the Scottish League team that was relegated this season for the first time in 103 years.

Ruskowski Spark In Houston Win

HOUSTON (AP) — Getting caught behind a high-speed rush by Winnipeg's lightning skaters is not unusual, but Houston's Terry Ruskowski turned it into an addvantage Tuesday night that kept the Aeros alive in the World Hockey Association playoffs.

Ruskowski scored two goals in the second period, including a breakaway goal after he was out of position, to lead the Aeros to a 3-2 victory over the defending WHA champion Jets.

The victory narrowed Winnipeg's lead in the best-of-seven semi-final series to 3-2 and takes the series back to Winnipeg for Thursday's sixth game.

"I was sort of caught back there," Ruskowski said of his first goal. "I just came up behind him (Winnipeg's Barry Long) and got the puck. I wasn't even thinking about a goal then, just trying to check him."

The Aeros had fought off three Winnipeg power plays in the first period and a fourth at the start of the second period when Long took off on the Winnipeg rush.

Ruskowski skated in behind Long, got control of the puck and then skated right up to Jets' goalie Joe Daley and rammed home the game's first goal at 10:36 of the period.

Ruskowski scored his second goal at 18:59 of the period to give Houston a 2-1 lead after Mike Ford had scored his first playoff goal at 13:34 for the Jets.

Winnipeg's Perry Miller faked a pass and then fired a tying goal past Houston goalie Ron Grahame at 2:24 of the final period before Houston's Ted Taylor scored the clinching goal at 6:09.

The Aeros still face an uphill battle if they are to win the series. They must win at Winnipeg Thursday and then take the series finale in Houston on Sunday.

"We didn't lose it, we gave it to them," Jets coach Bobby Kromm said. "We'll have to play much better at home than we did here if we expect to win. We rarely miss opportunities but we did tonight."

Canadians Fall In First Round

SUTTON, England (Reuter) — Canadians were defeated in first-round action at an international hard-court tennis tournament Tuesday. David Becker of Vancouver lost 1-6 6-2 6-2 to W. Hampson of Australia and Kathy Morton of Cambridge, Ont., was beaten 6-0 6-3 by K. Pratt of Australia.

Seaboard, Sooke Softball Winners

Seaboard Construction packed all their runs into the first three innings en route to a 7-2 victory over Molsons in a Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League game Tuesday night at Central Park.

In the other league game, Ron Fedosenko came up with a strong two-way punch to help Sooke Merchants to a 5-1 decision over Juan de Fuca Builders at Sooke.

Scott Sinclair tagged a solo home run in the first inning for Seaboard and Pete Devana hurled a four-hitter, allowing only five bases on balls, for the pitching victory.

Clive Johnston led Seaboard batters with two singles, one in the second and one in the third inning, to score twice and drive in one run during three trips to the plate.

Gary McGinnis, two for three, Devana, one for two, were the other top hitters for Seaboard.

Fedosenko fired a three-hitter and hit a three-run triple to lead Sooke while clubmate Bob Wilson contributed a home run.

Elsewhere in Greater Victoria softball action:

Victoria Bate topped Ingraham Hotel of the Stuffy McGinis League 4-1 in an exhibition game at Royal Athletic Park.

Pete Songhurst led Bates with a two-run homer as the defending Canadian senior "A" champions prepare for the opening of their exhibition schedule this weekend at Abbotsford.

Lou Vermette provided the lone Ingraham run with a homer off winner Stan Kern.

In Heywood Men's League play, Hygrade Radio capitalized on 10 errors and 11 wild pitches to crush Taylor House Moving 16-2.

Barry Werbowski led Hygrade batters with a triple and two singles in four trips to the plate. Mike Reid contributed a homer and a single in the same number of turns and pitcher Jack Petrie picked up the win by firing a two-hitter.

In Victoria Senior Women's League play at Hyacinth Park, GSV Combos downed MacDonald Furniture 6-1, and Hygrade Radio whipped Ingraham Hotel 17-5.

And in Macdonald Park Men's League openers, Central Station defeated Victoria Athletics 7-3, Cliff MacKay downed Davidson Cement 13-5 and Mayfair Insurance tripped Trafalgar Lelion 10-2.

Team Canada Moving

VIENNA (CP) — Alan Eagleson, head of international hockey for the Canadian government, announced at a news conference Tuesday that the Canadian club would be moving Thursday out of hotel they've been sharing with other teams at the world hockey tournament.

Eagleson said the move would be made to head off any trouble that might arise with opposing players in the heat of the playoffs.

He said there had already been some minor incidents at the tournament hotel and he wanted to prevent any further hassles.

Eagleson mentioned a shouting match Monday night between Canadian and Swedish players and a shoving match between Swedish and Soviet players but declined to identify the players involved.

Fertilized Lake Waters Lead to Better Fishing

Researchers working under the federal-provincial salmonid enhancement program are in the process of replacing a valuable link in the life-cycle of some coastal sockeye salmon which will also have a beneficial effect on other species of fish.

The practice of cultivating fish in nutrient-enriched waters has been used for centuries in Europe and Asia but is a relatively new concept in North America.

It is particularly effective in sockeye nursery lakes and the results from a pilot program conducted by the federal Pacific Biological Station in Great Centreal Lake have led to an expanded program this year.

"Under natural circumstances, adult salmon returning to the lake die after spawning. They enrich the lake waters with their carcasses and so provide nutrients which are eventually transfefred to the phytoplankton (plants) and zooplankton (animals); the latter is the principal food of the young salmon who spend a year or more feeding in the lake before migrating to the sea," observes a federal fisheries spokesman.

Man, however, has upset this natural process through highly-efficient harvesting techniques. Commercial fishing can remove more than 50 per cent of the adults returning to the lake, which may in turn cause a decline in the ability of the lake to produce both sockeye salmon and sports fish.

In order to increase the zooplankton on which the developing fry feed, a chemical fertilizer was released into Great Central Lake between 1970 and 1973 with the amount carefully calculated to maintain but not exceed the highest nutrient level reached in the surface waters under natural conditions.

It proved effective. The return of adult sockeye increased from 50,000 in years immediately preceeding the experiment to 700,000 in 1976.

This success was achieved with little modification of the lake environment or that of it's outlet stream and with a cost-benefit ratio ranking among the highest in enhancement work.

Lakes to be enhanced by this method must be steep-sided with a minimum amount of shallow area and must meet certain critieria of water temperature, clarity and layering to be effective.

In additon, they should have a minimum amount of human impact from residential or industrial development.

Consequently, as a result of the initial experiment, plans are now underway to carry out further work in Great Central Lake and start pilot-scale projects in Henderson, Hobiton, Kennedy (Clayoquot Arm) and Mohun Lakes on Vancouver Island as well as Long Lake near Smith Inlet on the Mainland.

Work actually started on Henderson Lake last year when a fertilizer solution was dropped from an aircraft rather than being distributed in the wake of a boat.

Fish and wildlife branch regional biologist George Reid confirmed fertilization also has a beneficial effect on the native trout stocks of a lake in terms of increased size.

He also stated the Mohun Lake project was especially desirable from a provincial point of view. The aim of the project there will be to increase the size of kokanee — sockeye that appear resident in fresh water — to a "keeper" size of nine inches from their present six-inch average.

It appears likely that this work will be carried out by the local fish and wildlife club under the supervision of branch personnel and with scientists from the Pacific Biological Station acting in an advisory capacity.

Reid said one of the management problems which has to be solved in Alberni Inlet is to fine-tune the commercial fishery so that a minimum of steelhead are taken with the returning sockeye.

But that problem can be overcome.

A program spokesman cautioned, however, that "tactics of enrichment must be matched to the characteristics of the lake, and to changes in lake characteristics."

"The maximum amount of fertilizer we plan to add to each lake is minimal. In fact, it compares to the historic levels of natural fertilization by salmon carcasses when these lakes had much larger escapements of sockeye salmon. Thus, in essence, our lake enrichment program is one of restoring nutrient levels to those which prevailed historically."

In addition, the program isn't likely to increase the algae level in the water to a visible degree.

Phosphorus is the element which determines algae growth and the critical yearly loading level for phosphorus can be established for each lake on the basis of mean depth and flush rate.

The amount of phosphorus to be added through fertilization is a tiny fraction of the level above which algae blooms and reduced water transparency begin to take place.

Another interesting possiblity envisioned under the Salmonid enhancement program is the use of this enrichment technique in steelhead rearing areas of streams.

Appeal for Funds To Save Bombers

FLIN FLON (CP) — Flin Flon Bombers of the Western Canada Hockey League will be put up for sale unless a fund drive can offset a $75,000 deficit the community-owned team accumulated this year.

Announcing that the league's only community-operated team has been faced with growing deficits over the last few years, the board said that unless significant progress is made in the drive by midnight Sunday the club will be put up for sale.

An absence of draft money in recent years was cited as one of the reasons for falling revenues which left deficits of $20,000 in 1974-75, $40,000 in 1975-76 and $75,000 this year.

The board is appealing to team supporters to make contributions in the amount of $100 each.

First-Game Overtime Win Key to Success in Series

BRANDON (CP) — Both coaches agreed the first game in the series was the key in New Westminster Bruins successful defence of the Western Canada Hockey League title, taking out Brandon Wheat Kings in five games with a 4-1 victory Tuesday night.

Bruins' coach Ernie McLean said his team's 3-2 win in overtime in the first game of the best-of-seven final here was the key to the series.

"It swung the momentum over to us," said McLean who now looks forward to the Memorial Cup final against Ottawa 69s in Vancouver starting Sunday.

Brandon coach Dunc McCallum also looked upon that overtime loss as the single most important game. He said that by losing it, his team lost any advantage it might have built up with the first two games at home.

The Wheat Kings opened a quick 1-0 lead Tuesday on a goal by Bill Derlago but Ray Creasey of the Bruins tied it before the period ended.

Defenceman Barry Beck got what proved to be the winner for the Bruins in the second period before Don Hobbins and Dave Orleski added the insurance markers in the third.

McLean said he thought another important reason for his team's victory was in staying close in the early going.

"I said all the way through that if we kept it close there was no way they would be with us in the third period."

McCallum, too, felt that was a factor. He said the Wheat Kings got the first goal in four of the five games but couldn't extend the lead.

"We could never get the second goal," he said.

McCallum said the officiating in the five games wasn't what he expected. He said he thought the games would be called closer but they weren't.

"Essentially we had to play their type of hockey game. We had to try gooning it up."

Horton Strokes a Mean Bat Against Former Mates

By The Associated Press

Part of the scene was familiar. Big Willie Horton was spraying hits around Tiger Stadium.

But one difference was that he was wearing a Texas Ranger uniform. And another change of pace was that the fickle fans of Detroit were on his side.

"It's a funny thing," mused Detroit manager Ralph Houk, "the fans who were cheering him tonight were probably the ones booing him here a few weeks ago."

The 33-year-old Horton, who began playing for Detroit in 1963 but was traded to Texas last month, had a terrific homecoming Tuesday night. He stroked four hits in leading the Rangers to a 13-0 win over his former team-mates.

Horton had three singles and a double, scoring twice. The fans couldn't get enough of him, showering him with a standing ovation when he moved into the on-deck circle in the first.

"It was a great feeling," he said. "It's sad I have to come back against my old teammates. I tried not to look at them . . . I still have a lot of love there. I wish the guys the best after we leave here tomorrow."

In other American League baseball action, Chicago White Sox downed Kansas City Royals 8-4, Seattle Mariners beat Boston Red Sox 10-8, Minnesota Twins edged Cleveland Indians 4-3 in 10 innings, Milwaukee Brewers defeated Toronto Blue Jays 6-2 and New York Yankees beat California Angels 8-1.

Texas pitcher Bert Blyleven also had a return of sorts, taking the mound for the first time since incurring a three-game suspension for intentionally throwing at Kansas City's Darrell Porter.

The suspension was mostly symbolic, since it coincided with Blyleven's normal three days' rest. The star right-hander tossed a four-hitter and fanned 12 batters for his second shutout in a row.

Barry Cort, the rookie Milwaukee pitcher who was born in Toronto 21 years ago, will now remember the city as the site of his first major league victory as he tossed a nine-hitter.

In the National League, Montreal Expos beat San Francisco Giants 3-2, Chicago Cubs defeated Houston Astros 9-0, Philadelphia Phillies edged San Diego Padres 8-7 in 10 innings, Los Angeles Dodgers turned back the New York Mets 4-1 and Pittsburgh Pirates beat Atlanta Braves 8-7.

Montreal shortstop Chris Speier, traded from the Giants last month for Tim Foli, was jeered by the San Francisco fans while playing a big part in the Montreal win. He hit a double and a single, scored two of the Expos' runs and put on a strong performance in the field, even fielding the last out of the game, a grounder hit by Foli with the potential tying run on third base.

DAVIS CUP FORMAT TO REMAIN THE SAME

LONDON (AP) — Despite growing demands in the tennis world for the revamping of the Davis Cup, the organizers of the competition said Tuesday that they plan no major changes.

"Most countries prefer it just as it is," said David Gray, secretary of the Davis Cup Nations.

"The Davis Cup attracts huge crowds all over the world, far greater than those at Kansas City this week for the WCT doubles championships or in Dallas next week," said Gray.

The Kansas City tournament and the WCT World Championship Tennis singles finals at Dallas both carry prize money of $200,000.

WCT executive director Mike Davies, blasting the Davis Cup in a statement Tuesday, said the Cup should be restructured as a World Cup contest with the leading countries facing off in two weeks of finals in one city.

Davies' attack was prompted by the withdrawal from the WCT doubles of Romania's Ilie Nastase and Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia who chose to play Davis Cup this week.

On the other hand, America's Eddie Dibbs and Poland's Wojtek Fibak let their countries down by pulling out of Davis Cup contests.

The United States went on to lose its American Zone preliminary match to Brazil in Buenos Aires last Sunday. It marked the fourth consecutive year that the United States has been knocked out in early rounds.

Apart from the battle for top players, the Davis Cup also has been plagued by political protests in recent years, mostly against the participation of apartheid South Africa.

But the Davis Cup Nations, announcing plans Tuesday for their annual general meeting to be held in London on June 29 during the Wimbledon championships, said their agenda contains no proposals for sweeping changes.

Clear Margin For Liverpool

LONDON (Reuter) — Liverpool went four points clear at the top of the English Football League's First Division when they beat Manchester United 1-0 Tuesday night.

Kevin Keegan, captain of the English national team, headed the 15th-minute winner from a cross by centre-forward David Johnson Liverpool now has 54 points with four games to play. Manchester City is second with 50 points.

Liverpool's next match with Manchester United will be in the English Football Association Cup final in London on May 21. Four days after that Liverpool plays West Germany's Borussia Moenchengladbach in the European Cup final in Rome.

Derby County edged farther away from the First Division relegation zone when they gave an ultra-defensive performance to draw 0-0 at Arse al.

NASL Building Game on People-to-People Approach

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The North American Soccer League, determined to move into the ranks of major league competition, has begun a campaign to Americanize the sport and sell it as a package of fun for the whole family.

In their off-hours, players become public relations ambassadors, youth coaches, speakers, soccer clinic helpers and buddies with fans at neighborhood pubs.

They turn up at schools, mass gatherings, business luncheons, shopping malls, parades and hospitals.

An attempt at creating league soccer play in the United States country in 1976 went bust in two years. But in 1973 a renewed effort was made with nine clubs and imported players. Today, there are 18 NASL franchises with about 400 players, 150 of them Americans. An estimated 750,000 children are involved in soccer youth programs. In 1972, a franchise went for $25,000. Today it costs $1 million.

It has been an uphill battle, admits Phil Woosnam, NASL commissioner.

"You have to educate the people about soccer," he said.

But based on growth in the last two years, Woosnam predicts soccer will be a major American sport within the next decade.

In Dallas, attendance at the Tornado games tripled in one year — from 4,500 a game in 1975 to 14,000 last year.

Tampa Bay Rowdies played an exhibition game against a Soviet Union team this year and 42,000 packed the stands.

Minnesota Kicks have been drawing an average of 25,000 a game despite fan loyalty to the football Vikings and baseball Twins.

But in cities such as Los Angeles, New York and Chicago, turnout has been poor.

Chicago Sting, for instance, last year drew an average of 6,000 a game.

"The whole approach to the NASL is to be a people-to-people organization," said Francisco Marcos, spokesman for Tampa Bay. During its games, fans are invited to meet the Rowdies afterwards at a nearby restaurant. The place usually is packed.

To generate interest, Chicago publishes a 16-page soccer tabloid and gives it way at sports stores and parks. San Jose prints its game schedule on cleaning bags and season ticket offers on bread wrappers. Other teams have booked half-time shows ranging from animal acts to model airplanes.

Dallas had a $25,000 money scramble on the field before one game. Four fans were given 20 seconds to get as much as they could.

Soccer has caught on in the suburbs as a relatively inexpensive sport. Clubs for young girls have been formed.

"We will have more women interested in the game in the future because they have played it," Woosnam said.

Munich Ace Purchased By Cosmos

MUNICH (Reuter) — Franz Beckenbauer, on of West Germany's all-time soccer greats, was sold Monday by Bayern Munich to New York Cosmos of the North American Soccer League for $750,000.

Bayern chairman Wilhelm Neudecker said he and Cosmos general manager Clive Toye agreed on the sum after Bayern's original demand for a $1-million transfer fee had been rejected.

Neudecker also said he understood the 32-year-old Beckenbauer agreed to sign with the Cosmos for a three-year contract worth $2.8 million.

Beckenbauer, a former captain of the West German national team, will play his final game for Bayern May 21, the club's last home game of the season, against the current West German first division leaders, Borussia Moenchengladbach.

Beckenbauer's first appearance with the Cosmos probably will be in Tampa against the Rowdies May 28.

Greenwood Wins Final

Victoria's Mike Greenwood provided the major surprise of the inaugural tournament at the Harbor Square Squash Club on the weekend with a 3-1 victory over former British professional David Morgan of Calgary in the "A" division final.

Mike Nesbitt of Winnipeg defeated Ken Treleaven of Calgary, 3-0, in the "B" final; Wayne Limbert of the University of Victoria downed Dean Henderson of the Sussex Club, 3-2, in the "C" final, and William McKenna of New Westminster defeated Doug Campbell of Duncan, 3-1, in the "D" final.

Burrards Sign Ex-Linebacker

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Burrards of the Western Lacrosse Association have announced the signing of Bryan Ansley, who played four games for British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football Legue during the 1976 season as a linebacker.

A Shortage of Stars

TORONTO (CP) — Lineups for the Canadian Football League's East-West all-star game were announced Tuesday and the most significant feature was the absence of 12 players named to the Eastern and Western conference all-star squads last fall.

The game will be played at Exhibition Stadium in Toronto Saturday, June 4, at 8 p.m. EDT and will be televised nationally by the CTV network with the Toronto-Hamilton area blacked out.

Injuries, defections to the national Football League and pay disputes were among the reasons for some of the missing. Notable absentees from the East offensive backfield are Johnny Rodgers of Montreal Alouettes, now with San Diego Chargers of the NFL, Art Green of the Grey Cup champion Ottawa Rough Riders and Jimmy Edwards of Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

George Reed, the CFL Players' Association president who announced the lineups, said the reason Green was dropped is that he isn't sure whether he'll be in the CFL or NFL this season. And Edwards was left off the team because of the possibility he'll sit out a season or two if he is unable to renegotiate his contract.

Western absentees include running back Steve Beaird of Winnipeg Blue Bombers. Saskatchewan guard Ralph Galloway is also missing along with defensive tackle Tim Roth and defensive back Paul Williams, both of Saskatchewan.

Tackle Jim Coode of Ottawa is the other absent Eastern offensive all-star. And missing from defence are tackle Glen Weir and defensive backs Dickie Harris and Phil Price, all of Montreal, and middle linebacker Larry Cameron of Ottawa. Harris and Weir are still recuperating from knee operations.

Ron Lancaster of Saskatchewan will run the Western offence with Willie Burden and Rudy Linterman of Calgary Stampeders as running back fill-ins along with all-stars Jim Washington of Winnipeg at the other running back posiiton, Rhett Dawson of Saskatchewan at flanker and George McGowan of Edmonton Eskimos at split end.

BRANTFORD CAPTURES ALLAN CUP

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — Fred Speck's tip-in shot in the final minute of the first overtime period enabled Brantford Alexanders to defeat Spokane Flyers 6-5 Friday night and win the Allan Cup senior hockey championship.

Brantford, winning its first-ever Allan Cup, took the best-of-seven series 4-1. All five games were played in Brantford.

"I had been working hard in front of the net all night," said Speck. "Finally their guy, let me alone for a bit."

Speck's goal, scored while defending champion Spokane was shorthanded, climaxed a strong comeback by the Alexanders who trailed 5-3 with three minutes to play in the game.

Guy Smith narrowed Spokane's margin to one and then Steve DeGurse, Brantford's leading scorer during regular season play, put the game into overtime when he scored at 19:07. For DeGurse it was his first goal of the series.

Brantford's other scorers were Mark Dumesnil, Jack Egers and Steve Atkinson. Egers, the leading scorer in the series with nine goals, was named the outstanding player in the series.

Spokane's goals were scored by Nels Venerus, Ken Gustafson, Dale McMullin, Don Dirk and Ernie Gare.

The Biggest Display of MOVIE EQUIPMENT Ever Seen on Vancouver Island

The organizers of the Film Festival to be held at Malaspina College in Nanaimo on May 6th asked us months ago if we would contribute in some way to the Festival. Since then we have spent a considerable amount of time and effort in organizing a display of equipment produced by most of the major manufacturers of movie equipment. At this time we can confirm that the following manufacturers will be exhibiting and will have representatives present:

Bauer	Yashica	Elmo	G.A.F.
Beaulieu	Canon	Eumig	Minolta
Bolex	Chinon	Fujica	Nikon
	Sanyo

Others may also participate.

We would like to draw the attention of movie enthusiasts to this display. it will be a very unusual opportunity to see the latest in movie cameras, projectors, editors and other movie equipment.

SPECIAL PRICES WILL BE OFFERED AT THIS DISPLAY. TAKE ADVANTAGE — COME PREPARED TO BUY

Because of the special nature of this display in which manufacturers are participating directly, the prices for equipment shown will be much lower than would normally be available through conventional marketing methods. Prospective buyers should, however, be prepared to order during this event and take delivery one or two weeks later. Only a very limited amount of equipment will be available for sale during the event.

Nielsen Says PCB This Year's Problem

Environment Minister Jim Nielsen has termed recent spills of the toxic chemical polychlorinated Biphenyl (PCB) "not really comic, but rather odd" situations, and concern over them as being "very contemporary."

Nielsen made the remarks at a February meeting in Olympia with Washington State environment and energy officials.

"Our pollution problem of the current season is PCB," said the minister, referring to contamination incidents near Prince Rupert and in the Cariboo region.

"We've had some outbreaks of PCB concern and some, not really comic situations, but some rather odd situations.

"We had mild panic in the Cariboo because they found traces of PCB in their ground water ... what did deer, because there was just no evidence of any damage.

"And then soon thereafter, we had a transformer explode with 180 gallons of PCB leaking.

"Some of it found its way into the harbor up in Prince Rupert, but that wasn't played up because the other (incident) didn't reach the conclusion that the press had hoped for.

"They were looking for dead bodies of some kind — animal or man or anything as long as something was killed by it. They weren't able to find it, so now they're looking for crabs in Prince Rupert, hoping they'll find something. It's very contemporary."

The Cariboo incident occurred in December, 1976, when it was discovered that about 200 buried B.C. Hydro capacitors were leaking PCB. A study found that the surrounding water supply was not contaminated.

At Prince Rupert, a transformer containing 180 gallons of PCB at the Canadian Cellulose mill exploded on Jan. 22 and spilled about 60 gallons of the chemical into Porpoise Harbor. Environment Canada laid charges in connection with alleged earlier PCB leaks following an investigation of the spill.

No contamination dangerous to humans has been found at the Prince Rupert spill.

In an interview today, Nielsen confirmed that he made the remarks and explained what he meant by them.

He said the concern over PCB is contemporary because only 10 years ago no one knew the chemical was dangerous.

Nielsen said that contemporary concern over the chemical has reached the point where it is close to going out of production.

He said the Cariboo incident was rather odd because of confusion surrounding acceptable levels of PCB in water.

The minister said there was a lack of information and confused — almost contradictory — statements made about the chemical.

He also said that part of the problem in the Cariboo was that PCB was leaked after the capacitors were discovered, while they were being removed.

Speech, Hearing Convention Here

Some of North America's leading speech and hearing specialists will be in Victoria for the three-day Canadian Speech and Hearing Association convention to open at the Empress Hotel Sunday.

One of these will be Dr. William Cruickshank of the University of Michigan, director of the Institute for the Study of Mental Retardation and Relative Disabilities.

He will address the convention next Monday at 9 a.m. Seats are limited for his lecture and people wishing to attend are asked to pre-register.

The convention ties in with Hearing Awareness Month which opened on May 1.

One of the basic aims of the month's program is to make people aware of the growing problem of hearing disabilities and the lack of resources to help adults and children suffering from hearing loss.

A spokesman for the Deaf and Hard of Hearing Institute says that one of every ten Canadians is deaf or hard of hearing — one in 1,500 babies has a hearing loss.

By age 5, four per cent of Canadian children suffer some degree of deafness, he said, and 30 per cent of senior citizens lose their hearing.

Noise pollution is a growing factor in increasing deafness among adults, he said.

The Hearing Awareness Month program opens today with a panel discussion on various aspects of deafness and its implications, on Channel 10 at 8 p.m.

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday a display in the Hillside Mall will include a van for testing hearing.

The display will feature slides, video tape, a raffle of handicraft items, sign language and information pamphlets on deafness and hearing loss.

Tag volunteers will also be out Saturday canvassing throughout Victoria in the various malls and downtown areas. Funds will be used to support the activities of the Deaf and Hard of Hearing Institute of Vancouver Island.

Other activities include:

Canadian Theatre of the Deaf will present a performance of mime at the Belfry on Sunday, May 8, starting at 8 p.m. Admission charge for children is $2 and for adults $4.

A parent conference sponsored by the Teachers of the Hearing Impaired of Vancouver Island, will be held at Margaret Jenkins School, 824 Fairfield, on May 27 and 28. All parents of hearing impaired children are welcomed.

RCMP TRIES COMPACTS

RCMP on Vancouver Island have begun to replace some of its full-sized cars with intermediate and compact models as an economy move.

Cpl. Brian Copp, head of the RCMP transport division, said eight "police specials" have been bought from Chrysler Corp. (Plymouth Volare and Dodge Aspen) and General Motors (Chevrolet Nova).

One is now in service at Pat Bay airport, another expected to be put in service soon at Sidney and six more are on order for other Isand detachments.

Copp said the switch to smaller cars will mean savings which he calculates at about $552 over the life of the vehicle.

The RCMP's long-range plan aims at replacing 85 per cent of vehicles used for administrative duties and 25 per cent of those used for actual operational purposes with the smaller compact models.

Court Cuts Tax Levy On Firm

A Victoria factory has had its business tax assessment cut by $18,600 by the B.C. Supreme Court.

Judge Peter Millward, sitting as a local judge of supreme court, reduced the gross rental value to $53,580 from $72,180 set by a court of revision for Nicholson Murdie Machines Ltd., 327 Harbor.

The company had appealed the court of revision ruling, made April 12, which had reduced the original assessment of $74,210. This figure compared with $21,259 for 1976.

Millward said the company, which makes machinery used in the wood processing industry, expanded its manufacturing shop to 25,600 square feet from 18,634 square feet at a cost of $250,000.

After reviewing how the assessments had been arrived at, Millward said in a written judgment that the court of revision assessment being appealed "is, in my opinion, unfair, inequitable and not representative of rental values within the municipality at the present time . . ."

He said he was "having regard" for the specialized nature of the company's manufacturing business that its building was specifically designed for this, and that business now is running at one-third capacity because of economic factors beyond its control.

"That the expansion of the appellant's premises was unwise and due to an error in judgment is not, to my mind, relevant to the matters in issue," he said.

Millward noted that the company wanted the $53,580 figure reduced, but in the absence of further evidence, he found in favor of an assessment for 1977 of $53,580.

Mair Fills Senior Posts

Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair Tuesday appointed three new senior civil servants to his ministry.

Former federal civil servant Perry Anglin will take on the job of assistant deputy minister in charge of consumer affairs and Keith O. Saddlemyer becomes assistant deputy minister in charge of the corporate side of the portfolio.

Kamloops lawyer Allan Gould has been appointed director of legal services for the ministry.

All three positions are newly-created, brought about by the merger of corporate affairs with consumer services last year.

The pay range for assistant deputy ministers ranges from $32,000 to $40,000 while the scale for Gould's position ranges from $26,700 to $34,000.

Anglin, 36, is a former reporter with the Toronto Star and has spent the past three years with the federal department of Indian affairs and northern development.

He will be responsible for all activities relating to debt assistance, development and enforcement of consumer legislation, and information and storefront programs operating in Victoria, Vancouver, Kamloops, Prince George and Nanaimo.

Saddlemyer, 47, has held the position of deputy minister of industry and commerce in the Saskatchewan government and secretary to the cabinet and senior staff officer in the federal department of regional economic expansion.

He is responsible for all corporate activities of the ministry including the registrar of companies, the superintendent of brokers, and the director of film classification.

Gould, who has been a lawyer in Kamloops and Prince Rupert for nine years, will supervise lawyers who are acting on behalf of the director of trade practices and provide consumer-oriented legal services to the ministry.

MS CARNATION BLITZ SATURDAY

Hundreds of volunteers in Victoria and other island centres will be out Saturday distrubuting 20,000 carnations to raise funds for the Victoria and Vancouver Island Multiple Sclerosis Society.

Proceeds will go towards research to eradicate this major health problem.

"We hope the general public will co-operate," said president Norman W. Thomson. "The society believes that better community knowledge of multiple sclerosis — the mysterious crippler of young adults — will strengthen the united effort to eradicate the problem."

He said there are about 250 known cases of MS in the Greater Victoria area.

"There are probably more but they haven't come to us yet," he said.

About 150 volunteers, including members of the Saanich police department and the Intet-Cultural Association of Victoria, will participate in the carnation day campaign.

Democrats a Threat to Carter

U.S. SUBSIDY FOR SUGAR

WASHINGTON (WP) — The Carter administration has decided to help the nation's ailing sugar farmers with a maximum two cents-a-pound subsidy payment, sources said Tuesday.

The direct federal payment, which could cost taxpayers up to $240 million a year, is said to be cheaper than an artificial, government-created rise in sugar prices. One sugar industry estimated says each penny-a-pound increase in prices costs consumers $225 million.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Carter has been told by one of his key political strategists that he faces "more dangerous" threats from within the Democratic party than from Republicans.

"To be frank, Jimmy Carter is not particularly popular with major elements of the Democratic party, whether it be activists, the Congress, labor leaders or the political 'bosses,'" said Carter pollster Patrick Caddell.

"I think it is fair to say that more of the opposition to Carter programs will come from Democrats than from Republicans," Caddell said.

The 57-page working paper on political strategy was prepared for Carter by his campaign pollster and adviser in December.

It proposed the groundwork to be followed by the new administration. Many of the suggestions have been followed.

Caddell said there are "two major groups of potential opponents ... the Democratic party — the Republican party. In many ways, the former may be more dangerous than the latter."

Caddell said the strongest potential political challengers to Carter in 1980 are within his own party, and California Gov. Jerry Brown "must be viewed as the single largest threat on the horizon."

Brown "speaks well, has a new definition of American politics, and is shrewd and ambitious to boot," the analysis said.

It said other "young turks" to keep a presidential eye on were Sens. Gary Hart, Dick Clark, Joe Biden, Don Rieigle and West Virginia Gov. Jay Rockefeller.

The study found Republicans, on the other hand, "in deep trouble ... they have few bright lights to offer to the public."

Saying it was "antiquated machinery," Caddell said "the Republican party seems bent on self-destruction."

Much of Caddell's advice on how Carter should handle himself in the early days of the administration was followed.

The report recommends the president hold fireside chats, town meetings, personally visit federal agencies in Washington, hold frequent press conferences, and cut back on "imperial frills and perks." Carter has done all of these.

He also said Carter should early concentrate on convincing the public there is an energy crisis and that the welfare system should be overhauled.

Unhealthy Coal Policy Attacked

WASHINGTON (WP) President Carter's proposed coal conversion program will create "major environmental damage" by dramatically increasing nitrogen oxides, which cause respiratory problems and are linked to lung cancer. Sen. Gary Hart (Dem.-Colo.) said Tuesday.

Hart, who was just elected co-chairman of the environmental study conference, a House-Senate group, said the administration should compensate for the increase in industrial and power plant pollution by adhering to a strict nitrogen oxide emission standard for automobiles.

Carter has proposed relaxing the nitrogen oxide standard for autos, but not as much as industry would like.

Cuts in Military Aid Backed by House, Senate

WASHINGTON (WP) — Senate and House committees Tuesday voted major cuts in U.S. military aid and military advisory groups stationed in friendly countries throughout the world.

Ignoring Carter administration warnings of a negative political impact, the Senate foreign relations subcommittee on foreign assistance, voted to stop long-standing U.S. military grants to Indonesia and Thailand. A letter from the state department, read to the senators just before their decision, expressed concern about an Asian perception that "the U.S. is losing interest in its long-time friends" now that the Indochina war is over.

The executive branch had requested $15 million in military grants to Indonesia and $8 million to Thailand in the international security assistance bill. The Senate subcommittee, which has opposed U.S. military grants except in "extraordinary circumstances," shifted the Indonesia and Thai programs to government-backed loans for arms purchases.

The executive branch recommended advisory groups in 25 countries, a substantial reduction from the 38 countries where U.S. advisory groups are now stationed. The House committee Tuesday reduced this to 10 countries and the Senate subcommittee to 17 countries.

Among the countries that lawmakers decided should lose military advisory groups (now renamed "defence field offices") are:

— Ethiopia, which has closed U.S. installations and expelled many Americans.

— Argentina, which has rejected future U.S. military aid following U.S. criticism and a recommended aid cut on human rights grounds.

$20M Suit Filed By Lineman

SEATTLE (AP) — A $20 million suit has been filed against the manufacturers of an aerial lift by a Seattle City Light lineman, who lost both arms in an electrical accident while ridng in a lift.

Kenneth South, 32, of Seattle, claims the design of the lift was "defective and dangerous" and that the manufacturer was aware of the defect.

Named in the suit are A. B. Chance Co., and its division, Pitman Manufacturing Co., both of Kansas City, Mo. The lift is called Hotstik.

South contends the control handle of the lift was metal, causing a defect that led to the accident.

Chlorinated Water Linked to Cancer

By MORTON MINTZ
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Several new scientific studies link death rates for cancer — mainly of the bladder — with the extent to which water is chlorinated to make it safe to drink.

One study showed that women in seven New York state counties served by chlorinated water ran a 44 per cent greater risk of dying from cancer of gastrointestinal or urinary tract organs than comparable women whose water was not chlorinated.

Another study of cancer mortality and chlorinated water sources in 200 counties across the country found increased rates of fatal cancer of the bladder and large intestine in older persons, particularly those over 60, but very low rates in persons under 40. The latent period of bladder cancer is 30 years or more, so it is unlikely to be detected in young persons.

The principal suspected cause of the deaths is chloroform, which is produced in reactions between chlorine and organic chemicals. Such chemicals occur naturally in water systems, run off the land into them, or enter as sewage or effluents. Chloroform is a known cancer-causing agent, or carcinogen, in laboratory animals.

In 1974, the Environmental Protection Agency and a Dutch scientist each reported the presence of chloroform and another known or suspected chlorine-related carcinogens in treated drinking water.

Later in 1974, the EPA reported that drinking water taken from the Mississippi River at New Orleans contained these carcinogens.

In the same year, the Environmental Defense Fund, a non-profit group, disclosed that a year-long study showed that in New Orleans and other communities in southern Louisiana that derive drinking water from the Mississippi, fatal cancer in organs of the gastrointestinal and urinary tracts was 10 to 20 per cent more common than in parts of Louisiana where water comes from other surface sources and wells.

Cancer deaths attributed to the use of Mississippi River drinking water accounted for 15 to 20per cent of the total in southern Louisiana, the EDF estimated.

And last September, Dr. Nancy A. Reiches of Ohio State University reported on a study of cancer mortality in the 3.5 million to 4 million Ohioans whose drinking water comes from two heavily polluted sources: the Ohio River, which forms the state's southern boundary, and Lake Erie, which bounds much of the state on the north.

She said their cancer mortality is 8 per cent higher than that of about 1 million other Ohioans — residents of Columbus and three rural counties whose water comes from the Scioto River. The EDF and Resources for the Future co-operated in her study.

"To our knowledge, this is the first time a significant statistical relationship has been demonstrated between human gastrointestinal and urinary tract cancer mortality and chlorinated drinking water," the scientists wrote in a report to the EPA. They did not break down rates by particular body sites.

Overall, Reiches found that for each 1 million women of all ages, the rate of fatal bladder cancer was 27.5 when the exposure to chloroform was 100 parts per billion — 38 per cent more than with an exposure of 10 ppb.

She cautioned against concluding that chloroform alone was necessarily responsible, pointing out that humans are exposed to numerous environmental carcinogens, including saccharin, and that in some persons the chemicals interact in ways that make them more dangerous.

Reiches said that a third study, done for the EPA by Dr. Kenneth Cantor of the National Cancer Institute, generally supports her research.

Cantor analyzed data in the 1975 EPA study on 79 urban countries where at half of the population relied on a single source of chlorinated drinking water. Like Reiches, he found elevated rates of fatal bladder cancer, especially in women.

Potluck Meatballs Creole not 'same old thing'

Potluck Supper

Mary Moore

A potluck supper once a month strains the imagination but not Maureen's. To her dog-training class she took what we are calling Potluck Meatball Creole and had to snaffle a plastic containerful to bring to me next morning. I reheated it and had it for my supper and thought it was good.

It has two ingredients that will please and influence the cooks who depend on convenience foods: spaghetti sauce mix and minute rice, so it is fairly easily prepared.

POTLUCK MEATBALLS CREOLE
(serves 4 to 6)

Meatballs:
1 lb. ground chuck beef
¼ cup water
1 egg
½ cup rolled oats
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp. M.S.G. (accent)
½ tsp. onion powder

Ingredients for Base:
1 28-oz. can tomatoes
1 envelope Spaghetti Sauce Mix
½ cup green pepper, finely chopped
2½ cups water
1½ cups minute rice

To make Meatballs in large bowl thoroughly combine all meatball ingredients. Shape into 16 to 18 meatballs 1" in diameter. Put in cold frying pan, turn heat to medium, turning to brown on all sides. Drain on paper towelling and set aside.

In large shallow baking dish combine tomatoes, spaghetti sauce mix, green pepper, water and minute rice. Top with meatballs. Bake uncovered, at 350 degrees F for 1 to 1¼ hours.

Confession is good for the soul. I was having so much fun playing Scrabble with Pete on a Saturday afternoon that I asked 14-year-old Jennifer to make dessert. (I was the baby sitter for six of my grandchildren while Margaret was visiting her mother in England.) A big casserole of Oven Beef Stew was already in the oven.

I gave Jen my one-egg cake recipe and told her to use a can of pears and a can of peaches to make a cobbler. She grinned because she knew we were being mischievous but all turned out fine. For good measure she made a shredded cabbage salad too.

JEN'S PEACH-PEAR COBBLER
(serves 8)

1 19-oz. can peaches
1 19-oz. can pears

Batter:
1¾ cup sifted all-purpose flour
1¼ cup granulated sugar
4 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
⅓ cup shortening (room temperature)
⅔ cup milk (first amount)
1 egg
⅓ cup milk (second amount)

The first step is to open the cans of fruit and tip them, juice and all, into a 7½x12x2" pan. Set oven temperature at 375 degrees F and at once put pan full of fruit in oven to heat through while you make this quick BATTER: Into beater bowl measure sifted flour, sugar, baking powder, salt, shortening and ⅔ cup milk and beat on "medium" speed for about 2 minutes, scraping down sides of bowl several times.

Add egg and remaining 1-3 cup milk and beat for another 2 minutes, scraping bowl often. Remove pan full of hot fruit from oven and carefully spoon batter all over. Bake at 375 degrees F 30 to 40 minutes. Slip a sheet of foil under pan to catch syrup which may bubble over.

NOTE: As you realize, the fruit should be hot so batter will start baking quickly.

A delicious quick dessert for eight and again I have made use of canned goods.

Rosy Rhubarb Is First Fruit

FOOD & nutrition

Rosy rhubarb is a sure sign of spring, like the red-breasted robin. It's Canada's first fruit to appear on the market. Tender young rhubarb sold in April or early May may never have seen direct sun until after it was picked. This hothouse spring rhubarb is the forerunner of field rhubarb, which comes on the market toward the end of the month.

Spring rhubarb is easy to identify because it is a light rosy pink color with yellow-green leaves. The stalks are long and slender and have a very mild flavor.

Field rhubarb on the other hand, has thicker, bright red stalks and dark green leaves. It is somewhat stringier than spring rhubarb and has a more pronounced tart flavor. The rhubarb you'll see in the stores is graded as Canada No. 1, the top grade, or occasionally Canada Domestic.

Whichever type of rhubarb you choose, cut off the leaves and put the stalks in a plastic bag in the refrigerator as soon as possible to prevent wilting. For best flavor, use within a couple of days.

To retain color, don't peel the rhubarb before cooking. Wash the stalks in cold water and chop. Any extra rhubarb can be frozen successfully. Simply pack the chopped rhubarb with or without sugar, or cook it first to save on freezer space.

For variety in your rhubarb fare, Food Advisory Division, Agriculture Canada suggests you tease your palate with this "Rhubarb Cocktail." Keep the recipe handy for a repeat performance . . . you'll probably have one!

RHUBARB COCKTAIL

6 cups rhubarb, cut in 1-inch pieces (about 2½ lbs.)
2 cups water
1 cup sugar
1 tblsp. lemon juice
Crushed ice
2 cups ginger ale

Combine rhubarb, water, sugar and lemon juice. Cook until rhubarb is tender (about 15 minutes). Strain syrup and discard rhubarb. Chill. Just before serving pour syrup over ice and add ginger ale. Makes six 6-ounce servings.

Tasty Salads Simple, and Cut Weight

hilda beastall

Overweight and iron deficiency are still the two top nutritional problems of Canadians as brought to public notice in the Nutrition Canada Survey of 1973.

The two problems were noted as common to all age groups from young children (even pre-school age were overweight) to those over 60.

Both conditions are capable of being relieved by use of low-priced, satisfying foods prepared at home so that sugars, fats and highly refined ingredients are kept to an absolute minimum. Indeed sugar and highly refined ingredients can be practically eliminated.

Recommended years ago as part of everyday good meals, a fresh green salad at one meal each day should be the aim of all homemakers responsible for family health. The habit is just as important when preparing meals for one or two.

Salads need less preparation for one; ingredients of a pleasing variety of color and texture need only be put on a plate. The lone eater has only one to please.

If at present you are buying all your salad greens, try to grow some for summer and fall, and again a supply to provide fresh greens all winter and early spring.

This is not only to save money, but to get around inevitable shortages occurring as less produce is being grown commercially in the Victoria vicinity. Also for the pleasure of home grown, fresh food to share among family and friends.

A balcony tub or two, pots on a windowsill or a small patch of soil at the door entrance to an apartment — any or all are capable of growing enough green food to supplement what must be bought. A rented allotment plot is perfect for a full range of vegetables, with exercise, relaxation and fun thrown in.

Here is a sample formula to start.

GREEN SALAD

3 cups (after preparation) mixed green leaf lettuce, chickweed tops, green cabbage, young turnip greens, kale shoots
1 tsp. chopped chives
1 tsp. chopped parsley
2 hard boiled eggs
Home-made yogurt (from skim milk powder)
2 cubes Cheddar cheese (1-inch each way)

Wash your choice of fresh greens; dry by patting in a clean dry dish towel to remove all free moisture. Meanwhile, have eggs cooking and then cooling. Crack shells while cooling to make easier peeling.

When ready to make salad, tear and cut the greens into sizes as preferred; some like large pieces, others fine shredding.

Add enough yogurt to coat all pieces as soon as cut. Toss with two forks briefly.

Slice eggs (or dice), lay in pattern on top of each portion of salad, sprinkle with chives and parsley.

Cheese cubes can either be diced and put in a circle around the salad, or grated over all.

There are no rigid rules about salad making at home except freshness of ingredients, cleanliness of handling, texture combinations and color to be attractive to the sight. Notice that ice-coldness (from refrigeration) is omitted, for much experience in restaurant salads proves that flavor of vegetable (and fruit) ingredients is changed or entirely lost in chilling. In fact many people are entirely opposed to salads because they have no flavor other than the dressing. Have the salads cool and crips by all means but omit the final chilling; note the difference.

An oil dressing made at home is far less expensive than bought kinds, and you can have just the amounts of flavorings that you like and need for enriching the particular salad served.

OIL DRESSING

½ cup sunflower (or other) oil
4 tblsp. lemon juice
½ tsp. sugar
Few grains salt

Combine ingredients in small screw-top glass jar. Shake well until mix seems completed. This dressing must be kept refrigerated. It makes about ¾ cup, and keeps several days.

The addition occasionally of a few grains of dry mustard, paprika, or of a dried herb of your choice, will effect change enough to satisfy all tastes. But the basic oil dressing can be used for children's salads or for all who are not on a medically restricted diet.

The same quantity of mixed fresh green saladings combined with cut-up dates, prunes and raisins, ground raw unsalted peanuts, sunflower seeds, sesame seeds, these make salads of an entirely different flavor.

Mixed vegetables and mixed fruits offer a wide range of nutrients in the form of minerals and vitamins, and are good to use when not sure of the nutritional value of each kind.

Another advantage of mixing is to use small amounts of leftovers, fresh or cooked. It is safer and more economical to add a spoonful of cold potato, peas, or winter squash to a fresh green salad than to leave it in the refrigerator another day.

One banana, one orange, and a half dozen dates are foundations for building a large fruit salad with green vegetables.

For lunches serve with a small bowl of soup or with wholewheat bread with cheese or peanut butter. For suppers, serve an omlete made with wholewhet flour, wheat germ, wheat bran, brewer's yeast, and as few as two eggs for three servings.

Eating slowly and making good food last the length of a normal mealtime are two points in weight control, for it has been proved to the satisfaction of many that overeating is the chief cause of unwanted weight. Yet variety of good food carefully chosen and prepared is needed for good health.

indoor gardens

BY LYNN and JOEL RAPP

Dear Lynn and Joel: A year ago in April I bought a very beautiful black pagoda plant. In July it started to bloom and before it was through it had 42 blossoms. Now, I'm wondering if it will ever bloom again. It is nice and green, and I would appreciate any advice you could give me about food, light, water and so forth so that it might bloom again. Sincerely F. P.

Dear F. P.: The black pagoda, member of the Aeschynanthus or Trichosporum family, is a trailing houseplant that's related to African violets, though you'd never guess it. It has dark green, maroon mottled leaves and is actually grown more for its foliage than its blooms.

Very good in hanging pots, this plant needs high temperatures, high humidity and much light. If you change its location, and make sure you have it potted in loose, open, fibrous potting mix, you should be rewarded with another set of blooms.

eating right

By RUTH FREEMES and ZAK SABRY

DEAR RUTH AND ZAK:

You state that an infant should be on skim milk. My doctor says 2 per cent for our five-month-old son and the nutritionist at our Health Unit says whole milk. All of your reasons make sense and I would like to know which is best.

I am breast-feeding our son as I did our daughter until nine months of age. He is supplemented at the 6 p.m. feeding by cereal, vegetables and/or fruit. So, what milk do I use? — K.C. — LINDSAY, ONT.

DEAR K.C.:

Our column on lowering the fat in the diet from early on in life was based on a recent study reported in the Journal Pediatrics. Our advice in that column was not intended to interfere with the recommendation of your pediatrician on how to feed your baby in the first year. You should always take your doctor's recommendation over that of ours or your Health Unit nutritionist. The pediatrician knows your baby and is in a better position to judge his needs.

Why not take our column to your doctor? After reviewing the study we referred to in our previous column, your pediatrician can judge the right time for the baby to change to skim milk. While many babies don't get a varied and mixed diet until their second year, your baby may reach that stage earlier, at which time he may change.

You certainly have nothing to worry about since you are breast-feeding your baby. Mother's milk has a better type of fat than cow's milk. The human milk has more polyunsaturated fat, which keeps the blood cholesterol down. One solution that you should discuss with your doctor (and your Health Unit nutritionist) is replacing the fat in milk with one that has more polyunsaturated fat, such as corn or safflower oil. If you mix 2 tablespoons of corn or safflower oil in a quart of skim milk, you will get the equivalent to whole milk in terms of the ratios of protein, fat and carbohydrates and you will have a more polyunsaturated fat, which will be closer to human milk.

As more evidence emerges from scientific research about the fat in our diets and its relationship to ill-health in later years, doctors will become increasingly careful about infant feeding.

It is importannt to think about the fat in the milk we give our babies, and we should also remember that as their diet expands, to watch for the other sources of fat in their diet. Their meat should be lean, their chicken skinned and their foods broiled or boiled, but never fried.

(Dr. Z. I. Sabry is a professor of nutrition at the University of Guelph. Ruth Fremes is a home economist and a reporter on consumer issues on CTV's program W5.

Green Spear Of Delight

Fresh asparagus is one of the best things that ever happened to spring. The tender shoot grows like Jack's famous Beanstalk — like magic. It all but pops up overnight and is a fair-weather friend, here today and gone tomorrow. So gather ye asparagus while ye may; Ol' Time is still a flying!

Really fresh asparagus should have a green stalk, a tightly closed tip and feel moist at the base. Keep it cold and moist until ready for table preparation so its distinct, sweet flavor is retained. Refrigerate it unwashed and untrimmed in plastic bags and plan to use it within a day or two. Keep the stalk bottoms moist with damp paper towels. Before cooking, break off the base where it snaps easily and wash carefully but thoroughly and remove any large scales where sand may collect. For six servings, allow 1½ pounds or 18 to 24 stalks. Don't discard the tough woody bases. They can be cooked for use in soups and so you increase the acutal number of servings per pound.

Asparagus scores well as a "weight-watcher's" delight too! Four ½" diameter spears provide only 10 calories. And on a calorie basis it carries more than its share of other nutrients: one serving of cooked asparagus contributes more than fifty percent toward the recommended daily intake of vitamin C and ten percent toward that of vitamin A for people of all ages.

As befits an aristocrat, asparagus has its own accoutrements such as asparagus tongs, cooking baskets, shaped molds and serving dishes to show off its delicate form and color. But even the kingly vegetable can be cooked and served in the simplest ways, yet maintain its royal status. Asparagus can be baked at 425 degrees F for 40 minutes. For six servings, place the vegetable prepared in 2-inch lengths in a greased baking dish, sprinkle with ¾ teaspoon of salt, dot with 2 tablespoons of butter and add 1 tablespoon of water and cover. Stir or turn several times during cooking.

To boil asparagus for six servings, pour 1 inch of boiling water over whole stalks in a frypan or enough to cover halved stalks in a saucepan. Sprinkle with ¾ teaspoon of salt, cover, return water quickly to the boil, then reduce the heat and boil gently until tender, about 6 to 12 minutes. Drain well and serve with ¼ cup of butter.

Panning is another simple method of cooking the tender tips. Melt ¼ cup of butter in a large heavy saucepan, add the asparagus in ¾ inch diagonal slices, and sprinkle with ½ teaspoon of salt. Cover, heat quickly to form steam, then reduce the heat and cook gently until crisp-tender, about 10 to 12 minutes. Shake or stir frequently to avoid sticking and serve the asparagus in its own buttery sauce.

Top asparagus with crumpled cooked bacon; condensed cream of chicken or mushroom soup; grated or melted cheese; or sour cream, plain or mixed with curry powder. For a simple serving suggestion, drizzle a little melted butter over the cooked vegetable. Season the butter with allspice, basil, caraway seed, nutmeg, paprika, slivered almonds or lemon juice.

ASPARAGUS CONTINENTAL

1½ pounds asparagus
¼ cup butter
½ cup sliced mushrooms
2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon dry mustard
1 cup milk
1 beaten egg
1 tablespoon liquid from pimiento
2 tablespoons diced pimiento
½ cup grated cheddar cheese
⅓ cup crushed potato chips

Cut asparagus in 2-inch pieces, leaving tips whole. Melt butter in frypan, add asparagus (except tips). Cover, heat quickly and cook 8 minutes. Add tips and mushrooms; continue cooking until tender (5 to 7 minutes more). Shake or stir frequently to prevent sticking. Remove from pan. Stir flour and seasonings into pan. Gradually add milk.

Stir and cook until smooth and thick. Blend small amount of cooked mixture into combined egg and liquid from pimiento, then stir egg into remaining cooked mixture. Add pimiento and cooked asparagus. Pour into greased baking dish and bake 10 minutes at 350 degrees F. Combine cheese and chips. Sprinkle over casserole and bake 5 minutes more, 6 servings.

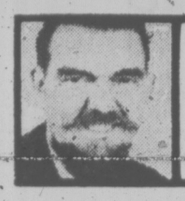
It's Easy to Scramble Eggs But Few Do It Perfectly



tiny bennett

Scrambled eggs are one of my favorite dishes but there are only three places I would eat them—at home when I've cooked them myself; in a slap-it-together diner with a good short-order cook; in a restaurant where a skilled waiter prepares it right at the table. This dish should be prepared close to the table so one can enjoy rich moist scrambled eggs at the exact moment the dish has reached perfection.

The common egg is such an important food for most of us and is in such general use that all too often it is ruined in the cooking because of a general belief that it is the easiest thing to prepare.

A common cliche used about poor cooks is, "they can't even boil an egg." And even the choice of wording is off key because eggs should never be boiled, but in the shell should be lowered carefully into a generous amount of boiling water, the heat turned down so the water is just below boiling, then carefully timed to the cooking stage preferred.

At three minutes, the egg is lightly done and quite runny, at the four minute stage, the yolk will be runny and the white almost set, while at five minutes the white will be set, while the yolk is still soft.

Hard-cooked eggs for pickling, taking on a picnic or sliced when cold for salads and garnish, should be given exactly 10 minutes and then plunged into cold water to stop them cooking on and to make them easier to peel. Overdone hard-cooked eggs have a green tinge on the outside of the yolk that is bitter and spoils their looks as well as the natural flavor.

My preference for a soft-cooked egg to be eaten from the shell is exactly 3½ minutes.

Most recipes for scrambled eggs call for double-boilers and low heat and slow cooking but I do mine in a heavy skillet.

The double-boiler system works beautifully but at breakfast time, this is time consuming and when I discovered how to cook this dish in a skillet—from James Beard's American Cookery—I tried it, and found it works beautifully.

Since the eggs should cook slowly and evenly, it is essential to use a very heavy skillet and the standard one I use is the good old-fashioned cast iron monster. Mine is 12 inches across the top, 10 inches across the bottom, 2¼ inches deep, has a five-inch handle and weighs seven pounds. Since I have owned it for 12 years and use it constantly, it is well seasoned.

And here's how I make scrambled eggs.

Counting two eggs for each person, I take enough out of the fridge last thing at night so they will be at room temperature by breakfast time. For each egg broken into a basin, I add ½ tablespoon water, a dash of salt and a few flicks of Tobasco hot sauce and beat lightly with a fork. The skillet is put over a low heat and enough butter or 70 per cent butter-margarine mix added, to lightly coat the bottom of the skillet.

When the butter has melted, the eggs are allowed to warm just long enough to see a change in coloration. By this time, I have layed the breakfast table, grilled bacon or sausages and popped them into the oven to keep warm and drain off fat, put out juice, made the tea and yelled that "breakfast is on the table."

With the eggs warmed, I turn up the heat and at once begin to scrape the eggs from the bottom of the pan in long curds, using a spatula. The eggs tend to come on swiftly and I often remove the pan from the heat and keep turning up the scramble from the bottom, until the whole dish shows creamy and quite loose. With the pan off the heat, warm plates are prepared with the bacon, ham or sausages, the scrambled eggs portioned out and each plate in turn served. It all calls for precise timing and careful control of the heat. Warm plates, rather than hot plates, are used, since a hot platet will overcook the eggs.

This is such a versatile system of cooking, with simple and inexpensive ingredients, that I don't confine scrambled eggs to just a breakfast dish. The basic recipe I've just given lends itself to glorious combinations.

For a delightful lunch or a late-night snack, one can prepare all kinds of delights to combine with the scrambled eggs, such as crisped bacon bits, chopped fresh herbs, chopped and cooked pastrami or corned beef, flaked cooked fish, grated cheese, diced ham and finely chopped mushrooms.

One day when several visitors dropped in around lunch time and I had nothing in the fridge, I had a brainwave and prepared a sort of devilled scrambled egg dish served open-faced on slices of toast.

I toasted one side of each slice of bread under the broiler and then chopped up a couple of cans of sardines with one small can of anchovies, very lightly browned the bread again with a thick layer of the sardine-anchovy mix facing the heat, kept them warm in the oven, whipped up a big batch of scrambled eggs and topped each open-face delight with a thick layer of soft curded eggs. It was an instant success.

There are many other dishes that can be prepared in similar fashion and within a matter of a few minutes. But the success of your creations rests strictly upon the quality of your scrambled eggs which are always prepared LAST.

REMEMBER — DOWNTOWN VICTORIA ONLY

Two-Way Bad Taste

DEAR ABBY: I would like to respond to DISGUSTED about his concern for beauty on the streets and in the shopping centres. "Queen-sized" women in tight pants are indeed unsightly, if not klutzy.

However, has it occurred to DISGUSTED that while he is so zealously championing legislation against such visual pollution, he might also include certain male Klutzes?

I refer to men with obtrusively protruding beer bellies, thinly covered by overstretched T-shirts. Trousers cannot begin to scale such heights and dutifully ride low, all the better to reveal proud displays of ridiculously laden overstuffed abdomens.

You see, DISGUSTED, there are two sides to every coin and, really, personal decorum rests with the individual. Or should we also attempt to make illegal body odor, runs in stockings, nail biting, etc.?

Poor taste is hardly a matter for legislation, and while there is much to be said for a More Beautiful America, surely there are more weighty problems on which we should expend our efforts!—SEES BOTH SIDES

DEAR BOTH: It's only fair to show both sides. And I'm on yours.

DEAR ABBY: I am steaming mad about all of the pollution going on. Not just air and water pollution, but littering. Today at lunch, I saw a middle-aged woman sit in her car in a restaurant parking lot and throw not ONE but THREE paper napkins out the window.

Being responsible citizens, my girl friend and I picked them up and clamly handed them back to her through her open window and said, "I think you dropped these."

At this point she got hot and mouthy. I calmly informed her that what she did was against the law and was called "littering." Then I walked away.

What kind of example is the older generation setting for young people today if this is their normal practice?—SUSIE IN W. COVINA

DEAR SUSIE: A very bad one. And good for you and your girl friend for having the courage and taking the time to do as you did.

LEAVE THIRD BREAST

By LESTER COLEMAN, M.D.

My 12-year-old daughter came running to me the other day and said, "Mommy, I think I've got three breasts!" After my initial shock I looked and realized that she was right. The spot beneath her left breast looks exactly like a nipple. I've noticed the spot before, but never gave a thought to such a possibility. Have you ever heard of such a thing? — Mrs. G. E., Mich.

Dear Mrs. E:

This occurs in boys as well as girls far more frequently than is commonly known. "Extra" or "supernumerary" nipples appear on the chest in the same line as the normal nipples. Many cases have been reported of three or more nipples on each side of the body.

In most instances, the recommendation is made to leave these alone. The extra nipple usually does not develop into a full breast.

Simple surgical removal by a plastic surgeon may be necessary, to spare your daughter any embarrassment. The scar is hardly noticeable. The emotional benefits are great.

What should a good routine physical examination include for a man who is 70 years of age? — Mrs. I. W., Pa.

Dear Mrs. W.:

For a person in relatively good health at the age of 70 there are no special tests that differ markedly from those of a man of 50. A complete physical examination usually includes examination of the prostate, a proctoscopic examination of the lower bowel, a complete blood study, urine examination, electrocardiogram, a thorough eye examination with a test for glaucoma, and inspection of the circulatory system.

If any findings occur during such an examination, then the doctor will pursue other avenues for further investigation.

I'm at college and am a weight lifter. I've heard that some of the great weight lifters use steroids to help them achieve their maximum potential. Is this dangerous? — Mr. S. W., Ga.

Dear Mr. W.:

The use of steroids (cortisone) has been one of the great contributions of modern medicine and science. Yet all physicians use steroids only with careful judgment. I must emphasize for many readers who are terrified of cortisone that under the doctor's supervision it is not dangerous.

However, it is certainly extremely hazardous if used to give added prowess in the sport of weight lifting. Don't do it.

Quiz Tests Supermarket Metric Skills

TRUE OR FALSE? TRY IT

Here's a quiz to test your skill of metrics at the supermarket. If your score is low, then it's time you became a sharper-eyes shopper.

Q. — T or F? The 2 kg package of sugar has replaced the 5 lb. size.

A. — True. One kilogram weights just over 2 pounds so 2 kilograms weights just over 4 pounds. The new 2 kilogram package actually contains 12 per cent less sugar than the Imperial package which it replaces.

Q. — T or F? If you used to buy the half gallon container of ice cream you would now switch over to the 1 litre size.

A. — False. One litre is just under a quart. Therefore 2 litres are just under 2 quarters or a half gallon. The 2 litre size provides about 16 average-sized servings — plenty for a family of ice cream lovers.

Q. — T or F? 300 g of jam at 60 cents is a better buy than 1 kg of Jam at$ 1.50.

A — False. Metrics make comparison shopping easy because there's no converting of pounds to ounces. If 300 g jam cost 60 cents then 100 g (1 kg) cost 1000 divided by 300 times .60 equals $2.00.

Therefore the 1 kg jam at $1.50 is a better buy.

Q — T or F? Eggs are now sold by the tens rather than by the dozens.

A. — If you said True, then you're really off-track. There's been no change in merchandising of eggs. We'll continue to buy eggs by the dozen for a long time to come.

Q. — A package of cereal marked 24 oz. 680 g has already "gone metric".

A. — False. This package has dual labelling in both metric and Imperial measurements. A product has "gone metric" or undergone "hard conversion" when it is labelled only in round metric numbers. For instance, the 24 oz. would become hard conversion if it were increased in size to 700 g. If the 6870 g were retained, this would be a "soft conversion."

Common ¢ents

By KATE MacQUEEN

The next time you polish shoes, remember all of the fine scratches in your wood furniture. Tan wax covers scratches in light woods. Cordovan is best for mahogany. Black wax hides scratches in black lacquered pieces. Use a cotton-tipped swab to apply a thin coat of wax, then buff. You can even change the wood tones on picture frames with shoe polish.

Perfumes, medicines or anything containing alcohol can damage many furniture finishes. Blot up spills, then dip your finger in silver polish, salad oil or even cigarette ashes. Rub over the damaged area. If the spots are old, try running the finish with rottenstone (a fine abrasive powder sold at paint stores) and a few drops of salad oil. Rub with the wood grain; wipe the area. You'll soon see a sheen to match the original finish.

Blakeney Rejects Drought Plan

REGINA (CP) — Progressive Conservatives Tuesday called on Saskatchewan Premier Allan Blakeney to mount a special task force to deal with drought conditions in the province. Blakeney told PC members of the legislature that a joint committee of the departments of agriculture, environment and municipal affairs, headed by Agriculture Minister Edgar Kaeding, had already been established.

He said it was easy to overestimate the power of the premier and better to turn the job over to those with more time and expertise to deal with it.

But Conservative leader Dick Collver wasn't satisfied. He asked the premier to undertake the job personally, using the the influence of his office to marshall all of the forces available in the province to deal with the potential emergency.

"We believe that a special task force, bringing together all of the energies that we have in the province is in order right now to be prepared in case this situation develops any worse than it presently is," Collver said.

"We all pray for rain. We would all like two inches of rain in the province but I don't think we, as a province, can bank on that."

He said if an emergency develops, the province should be ready for it. He said the power and influence of the premier's office should be used.

"We've got to bring together the facilities of the Emergency Measures Organization, the railroads, the trucking companies, the private sector, the drilling companies, the oil industry. All of these could play a part . . . if this develops into a real state of emergency."

Meanwhile, drought-stricken central Alberta received a drop of hope Tuesday when it was announced the Red Deer regional water line will be in use two months ahead of schedule.

Dr. Hugh Horner, deputy premier and minister responsible for disaster services, made the announcement in the legislature when he told of drought assistance measures.

He said Alberta Environment will make up to $1.2 million available for the deep drilling of 300 wells to help water-short communities, some of which have a self-imposed form of water rationing.

The towns of Torlield and Holden, in east central Alberta, are having water pumped to them at present and Vegreville is next on the list. Crossfield and Ryley will also get help.

Horner said the Red Deer line, designed to serve communities along Highway 2 from just south of Red Deer to just north of Calgary, will be brought into temporary early operation June 15.

It will function at a daily capacity of 500,000 gallons — about one sixth its final capacity — and run for about 50 miles.

Alberta disaster services will direct drought co-ordination activities and a basic contingency plan will be issued to municipal authorities and agriculture service boards in the next few weeks, the minister said.

Horner said under the authority of the Water Resources Act, the environment department has recently managed reservoirs in the irrigation system in an attempt to fill them up.

"Some are presently filled and the others are in a position to be topped by June 1," Horner said. Power companies will also co-operate with their reservoirs.

The minister said about 17 municipalities with potential water shortage problems had been indentified and each could be assisted by pumping or trucking water to drilling wells.

The trucking industry had been contacted about the availability of equipment should there be a need to move water.

Meningitis Fears Dismissed

CALGARY (CP) — Kenneth Gary Mash, 19, of no fixed address, a hitch-hiker sought for being possibly suffering from meningitis, was released from hospital Tuesday after being examined for a highly-contagious form of the disease.

City health officer Dr. David Hosking said Mash may be a carrier but he does not have clinical meningitis.

Hosking examined Mash after Mash had been found hitch-hiking in the city earlier Tuesday by city police, and wastaken to hospital for examination of an extremely communicable form of meningitis.

"You can be a carrier without actually contracting the disease," Hosking said in an interview.

"I don't think he (Mash) presents much of a problem."

Meningitis is an inflammation of the meninges at the base of the brain. Meninges are the three membranes that envelop the brain and spinal cord.

Vancouver city police had earlier warned the public that Mash, whose hometown is not known, had meningitis but was unaware of it.

Hosking said meningitis is not a rare disease and about 20 persons a year are tested for it in the city.

Calgary Motels Doubling Rates

CALGARY (CP) — A few city motels which have nearly doubled their normal daily rental rate for the annual Calgary Stampede July 8-17 will give the city's tourist industry a black eye, a spokesman for the Calgary tourist bureau said Tuesday.

In reply, a spokesman for the Calgary Motel Association said he thought those motels did not realize the damage they are doing to the city's motel industry.

A survey of more than a dozen motels and hotels here prompted the reactions by both groups.

The survey's results showed that one motel had doubled its daily rate on a room for two persons to $50 a day from $25 a day during the stampede festivities.

Another motel had increased its double occupancy room rates to $45 a day from $28.

One city motel demanded full payment of the anticipated bill three months in advance with forfeiture of the full amount if cancelled two weeks after the booking was made.

Doug Johnson, executive vice president of the Calgary Tourist and Convention Bureau, said the high rates being sought by the motels did not surprise him.

He said he met with representatives of the Calgary Motel Association more than a week ago to discuss the situation.

Gerry DeGagne, a spokesman for the motel association, said an attempt to set up a meeting with certain motels ended in failure.

He said the association may approach the department of consumer affairs regarding the sudden rate increases.

"I don't think they understand what they're doing to the rest of the association or the rest of the motels," he said of the motels which have increased their rates.

"A 75-per-cent or 90-per-cent increase can't take place overnight."

Part of the problem may be the large number of absentee owners who have taken over the city's motel industry, DeGagne said

He estimated 75 per cent of the city's 50 motel and motor hotel owners do not live in the city.

Johnson said the situation is a blllack eye for the city.

"The unfortunate thing is that for one (motel owner) who does it there are five who don't," he said.

Bionic Woman Given Reprieve from NBC

LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC-TV said Tuesday it is adding the Bionic Woman to its evening schedule next fall, but is dropping six weekly series, including its four-season Sunday Mystery Movie.

The Bionic Woman, dropped by ABC after 1½ seasons, becomes the third cast-off ABC show to be picked up by another network this week. CBS earlier said it will air Wonder Woman and The Tony Randall Show next fall.

An NBC spokesman in New York said the Columbo segment of the Sunday mystery series may appear next season as an occasional TV movie. Other Mystery Movie segments such as McCloud and McMillan have been dropped.

NBC's other cancelled series are Sirota's Court, cut once earlier this year but brought back for a second try; Baa Baa Black Sheep; Best Sellers; Fantastic Journey, and Kingston.

NBC said it will have eight new weekly shows next fall, ranging from a comedy-variety hour starring Richard Pryor to a western, The Oregon Trail, starring Rod Taylor.

It also said two of its hit comedies—Sanford and Son and Chico and the Man—will be back next fall, but with a new title and format for the former and a new cast member for the latter.

Sanford and Son, set in a junkyard, lost star Redd Foxx to ABC this season and his co-star, Demond Wilson, has been dropped from the show. NBC said it will appear next fall under the title Sanford Arms, be set in a residential hotel and star Lawanda Page, who now plays Aunt Esther.

With Chico and the Man, whose young co-star, Freddie Prinze, committed suicide last January, a Mexican-American boy, age 11, will be moving into the rundown garage of Ed Brown, played by Jack Albertson.

PLACING second and winning an award of $2,000 in the CBC Talent Competition Finals held in Quebec City, was clarinetist Timothy Paradise, member of the University of Victoria music faculty and the Pacific Wind Quintet and until recently, principal clarinet of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra. He was the only B.C. winner and one of three Westerners, the others being pianists Jamie Syer of Calgary and Douglas Finch of Winnipeg.

Narayan On Mend

SEATTLE (AP) — Jayaprakash Narayan, 74, India's spiritual leader, underwent successful surgery Tuesday to improve his treatment by kidney machine and was resting comfortably, a hospital spokesman said.

Dr. Robert W. Mack, who performed the surgery, said he feels the surgery was a success.

Mack said earlier the operation was serious but not life-threatening. Mack said the "prognosis is good for a permanent access to his circulation."

SOME WINDY ROOTS...

THIENSVILLE, Wis. — A mixup at Doubleday and Co., left a number of books bearing the bindings and dust jackets of Alex Haley's best-seller Roots but containing the text of the 1930s Margaret Mitchell classic Gone With the Wind.

Doubleday was printing Roots and a new run of Gone With the Wind at the same time.

Tuned-in Convict Took Tube Both in Crime and Confession

KALAMOZOO, Mich — George Quinn takes television programs very seriously. Quinn, 19, of Kalamazoo, was sentenced this week for kidnapping a service station attendant during a robbery last March. He told the judge he got the idea for the caper from a program summary in TV Guide. Quinn told Kalamazoo District Judge Donald Anderson he followed the script of the program plot, which he did not detail, and the crime went off without a hitch. He robbed a gas station by faking a gun in his pocket. He took the station attendant hostage and drove south, dropping his victim unharmed in Macon, Ga. Then he drove on to Daytona Beach, Fla., where he booked a hotel room. In his room, he said, he tuned the television to a late-night talk show and found himself listening to an ex-convict encouraging lawbreakers in the television audience to go straight. "I slept on it that night, ate breakfast the next morning and then turned myself in," Quinn said.

NAIROBI, Kenya — Ugandan President Idi Amin said he may have to stay at Buckingham Palace if his hotel accommodation is inadequate when he visits London next month for the Commonwealth conference, Kampala radio reported Tuesday. The radio quoted him as saying that if the hotel is not adequate, "arrangements should be made for me to stay at Buckingham Palace."

WARSAW — A 50-year-old ex-miner known as the Vampire of Katowice, who once admitted killing "perhaps 20 or 26 women," has been executed for murder, the Polish news agency PAP reported Tuesday. It said the death sentence on Zdislaw Marchwicki, convicted two years ago of beating 14 women to death, was carried out after Poland's Council of State refused a reprieve.

WASHINGTON — The 1961 Lincoln Continental in which John F. Kennedy was riding when he was assassinated has been retired from the fleet of presidential limousines. The limousine has been returned to the Ford Motor Co. for future display in a museum. A Ford spokesman said officals at the Henry Ford museum have not decided whether to exhibit the car as it looked when Kennedy rode through the streets of Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963, or to show it in its current remodelled condition.

BOYS TOWN, Neb. — Entertainer Bob Hope has been named the 1977 recipient of the Father Flanagan Award for Service to Youth. Rev. Robert Hupp, director of Boys Town, said Hope was chosen because his "help to young men and women serving their country in time of conflict in show business." Hope will receive the award June 15 at a dinner in Omaha.

LAS VEGAS — Country music star Buck Owens has taken out a licence to marry Jana Greif, a member of his band. Their wedding plans were not announced. The licence application said Owens, 47, has been married twice and Miss Grief, 33, once. They live in Bakersfield, Calif.

BOSTON — The 82-year-old man, nattily attired in a French beret, was escorted down the aisle at Symphony Hall by a youth wearing a French gendarme's uniform. That's how Arthur Fiedler made his entrance Tuesday for the 92nd opening night of the Boston Pops. It was Fiedler's 48th opening performance. Fielder took over the Pops in 1930.

Scrap City Clerk's Job, Report Urges

A Vancouver firm of management consultants has recommended that Victoria city council scrap the city clerk's department and not fill the vancancy created by the retirement of former clerk Morran Waller last November.

Instead, G. H. Newhouse and Associates Ltd. suggests that the assistant city manager assume the statutory responsibilities of the city clerk, and that an administrative assistant be appointed to handle the day-to-day duties of the clerk's office.

This assistant would be responsible to the city manager and assistant manager.

According to city manager Jim Bramley, who submitted the Newhouse report to council on Tuesday but gave reporters only his own three-page summary of the main recommendations, the administrative assistant "would eventually be available for special work projects and studies as soon as the office routines are functioning satisfactorily."

Bramley said he agreed with all three proposals, and with a fourth urging retention of the present staff — one secretary and one stenographer — in the clerk's office.

But he gave only partial endorsement to another recommendation, for the establishment of an "executive secretariat" to include the manager's office, solicitor's office and clerk's office, as well as the multilith and central switchboard now under the personnel department.

Bramley recommended that the centralization process initially be restricted only to the manager's and city clerk's funcions, and that the proposal concerning the solicitor's office should be studied further.

Among other areas of disagreement with the Newhouse recommendations, Bramley queried the wisdom of assigning to assistant city manager Colin Crisp the direct responsibility for day-to-day co-ordination of civic departments.

Under that system, he said, "I do not see how I could be expected to answer the many questions that are put to me at council, committee and through direct aldermanic enquiries," unless he himself were directly involved in all aspects of the city's operations.

The Newhouse report, which will be discussed at Thursday's Group A committee meeting, was commissioned more than two months ago, following a controversy in which former acting city clerk Terri Durshel resigned over the delay in appointing a full-time successor to Waller.

Crash Victim Identified

Police have identified a woman killed in a hit and run accident in downtown Victoria Monday.

Isabel Catherine Dick, 44, of 4-229 Government, died in Victoria General Hospital early Tuesday three hours after the 11:05 p.m. mishap.

Police are still searching for the driver of the car, described as a dark blue or black Meteor or Mercury, either a 1964 or 1965 model.

An inquest into the woman's death opens next Monday.

Police believe the vehicle that struck the boy may have been slightly damaged on the right front side. Some debris from the truck was left at the scene and police are attempting to establish positive identification of the make and model of the truck.

Meanwhile, an inquest opens tonight into the death of Terrence John Patterson, 33, of 5686 Wellsview, who died Saturday in a single-car accident on the Pat Bay Highway near the Quadra Street overpass.

The inquest, at McCall Bros. funeral home, 1400 Van couver, starts at 7:30 p.m.

ALBERNI BANK ROBBED

PORT ALBERNI — A 35-year-old man is in custody as a suspect in one of this area's rare bank robberies.

RCMP said a man approached a teller at the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday and got away with an undisclosed amount of cash "but less than $1,000."

Less than 30 minutes later, a man picked out a new suit in a Port Alberni department store. As he left the clerk to pay for his purchase, police moved in. They gave the suspect's description to the clerk, then arrested the man as he was paying the cashier.

Racquet Club Asks Aid

The Racquet Club of Victoria wants a grant from Saanich to cover half of its tax bill on the grounds it is a non-profit club and relieves the municipality of providing extra recreation facilities.

In a letter to the finance committee Tuesday, president J. S. McBride reported, "the financial situation of the club has become quite precarious with the opening of the Oak Bay recreation centre and subsequent reduction in number of members."

Finance chairman Ald. Ian Cass said the club's taxes have risen to $55,000. Before the assessment structure was changed taxes were about $37,000.

Comptroller treasurer Roy Broughton said no provision for financial assistance to the club had been included in the municipal budget so any relief, which would have to be given as a grant-in-lieu, would have to be taken from the contingency fund.

It was suggested that Saanich's recreation department might be able to use some of the club's facilities for its programs. The club could then receive payment for those services.

The committee agreed a club spokesman should be invited to attend the next meeting to state the club's case.

In other business, the committee agreed to recommend that council approve a $2,000 donation to the Open Space Gallery. The gallery is seeking a total of $8,000 from the four core municipalities in order to fireproof its building and meet the fire marshal's standards.

Cass said today the $2,000 grant is recommended because the gallery operators have shown that they have been able "to overcome considerable difficulties and work quite hard themselves".

Israel Backs Middle East Conference

TEL AVIV (WP) — Israel's acting prime minister, Shimon Peres, Tuesday warned against attaching a "miracle-type" importance to the reconvening of the Geneva conferecne on the Middle East but said he understands the political and psychological need to begin the process of negotiation toward peace.

"If we raise expectations that later we cannot fulfill we shall become the victims of our own exaggeration," Peres said in an interview. "Yet the Geneva conference may fulfill both a political and a psychological need that somewhere, somehow, we start something. It is very much for that reason that Israel has never asked to postpone either the date or the idea of a Geneva conference," he said.

Asked about President Jimmy Carter's recent statement that there is a consensus among Middle East nations, he said: "I can see one consensus existing in the Middle East, and it is a wish to put an end to wars and to reduce the war machines . . . I do not believe that any war has solved anything in the Middle East."

Peres said the desire to reach a "negotiated and peaceful settlement is today deeper and larger than ever before," but "We still have to negotiate a very complex set of issues."

He added that he does not believe that anybody would claim there is a consensus between Arabs and Israelis on the major issues.

Peres, who is also defence minister, took over as acting prime minister last week following Yitzhak Rabin's decision to step down because of scandal involving illegal bank accounts in Washington.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Today's real, although not a complicated one to handle correctly, is nevertheless a well-played hand. Its theme is a recurring one: keeping the dangerous hand out of the lead. The deal arose in a Copenhagen, Denmark, rubber-bridge game.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	4 ♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♠.

Dummy's ace of clubs won the opening lead, South discarding his three of diamonds. It was quite obvious that, if the four adversely held trumps were divided 2-2, South would not only avoid the loss of a trump trick, but would also make at least one overtrick, since he could subsequently discard another of his diamonds on dummy's fourth spade. And if East happened to possess the diamond ace, then declarer's king would also become a winner.

But, through experience, our declarer knew that it doesn't pay to adopt an optimistic attitude in the play of the cards. So he assumed that not only were the trumps divided unevenly, but that West might well be the possessor of the diamond ace. And if such were the case, then the East defender had to be kept out of the lead, to prevent a diamond lead through South's king.

At trick three dummy's three of trumps was led, and when East followed suit with the eight, South inserted his nine-spot. West captured this trick with the ten. It didn't matter what West returned, for South's contract was now unbeatable. He returned a club, which South ruffed. The ace and king of trumps were cashed next, picking up East's queen and jack; and on dummy's fourth spade he discarded one of his diamonds. Eventually the defenders made two diamond tricks.

It will be observed that if declarer, at tricks two and three, had chosen to cash the ace and king of trumps (hoping for a 2-2 division), he would have gone down. In this case, East's queen of trumps would have become the supreme trump, and he could not have been prevented from obtaining the lead with that card before declarer got rid of another losing diamond. A diamond shift by East would then have enabled the defenders to make three diamond tricks.

Start Prize Pumpkins This Week

Each year parents remind their youngsters about growing a prize pumpkin for the fall shows. Usually it is then too late for sowing the seeds outdoors with any hope of fruits reaching record sizes, or even usable sizes.

Because the fruits are large, the pumpkin plants need a long growing period which means, in this slow climate, an early start indoors. Choose the seed of a large variety, not of the smaller so-called Sugar type.

Sow 12 pumpkin seeds this week before Saturday, indoors, to get them started. The little plants will then be ready for setting out into the garden near the end of May when early morning frosts are less likely to occur.

Frost in the fall does no harm to pumpkin fruits nor to many other plants which, in spring, are damaged by even one degree or two while the growth is still young and tender.

If a half-dozen three-inch diameter flower pots are available, use them to grow the seeds in. Fill them with good garden soil — from the old compost heap preferably. Sow two seeds in each, just below the surface.

Keep the soil damp, but not wet or the seeds will rot before they germinate. The coiled stem of the seedlings will be seen at soil level in five to seven days according to indoor temperature.

When the first plain smooth seed leaves expand, keep the pots in a light warm window where the plants will grow quickly but strongly.

If small flower pots cannot be found around the home, the litre size milk cartons can be cut down into bottomless squares and set into the plastic top of an egg carton for a base. Fill the squares with good garden soil and sow two pumpkin seeds into each square.

When seedlings are well started, leave only one strong plant in each pot or square, cutting off the second one at soil level with sharp scissors to prevent loosening soil around remaining plant.

Don't give any fertilizer while in the pots. The plants need only warmth, strong daylight with sun when possible. Damp, but not wet, soil is another need.

Possibly by May 20, the young pumpkin plants can go outdoors daily in sunshine or warm rain showers, still in the pots or cardboard squares. They will quickly get stronger, spreading their large leaves. They should be brought indoors again about six o'clock in the evening. If the early mornings are free of frost by the month end, they can be planted into the garden.

The place chosen for pumpkin growing should be in well dug garden soil where early summer sun reaches. If sweet corn or runner beans give dappled sunlight by late July, that is fine.

Take the complete rootball from each little pot without losing the soil from the roots. Plant three groups of the best six plants, two to a group. And be prepared to water them at the roots not over the plants, for when the big golden flowers are blooming they must not have water splashed into them or there will be no fruits.

NEW HOMES FROM $64,750

—daylite basements — easy to develop that extra 4th bdrm, party-room or second full bath.
—many have 2 finished rock-faced fireplaces.
—fancy wallpapers, extra finishing.
—walk to busline, shops, all schools.
Prices from $64,750 up to $69,750 and two unique 1½-storey homes nearing completion at $78,900. Low down payments possible to qualified purchasers. Vendor may carry a second mortgage. Interest rates 10 to 10¾%.

Waste-Wood Fuel Already in Use

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Clearwater Timber Ltd. says it is way ahead of a British Columbia government plan to save energy in the province's forest industry because it has been using an "Energex" system for seven months.

Mill manager Fred McLellan said Tuesday that he couldn't understand why little interest had been shown in the system, which has almost ended the use of expensive butane in his firm's dryers.

The system uses waste shavings from Clearwater Timber's planer mill to operate the drying kiln. It is also used at two mills in Quebec and at several in the southern United States.

McLellan estimated that within two years the $350,000 capital cost of the two Energex units will be recovered.

Clearwater is about 65 miles north of Kamloops.

Energy Minister Jack Davis announced Monday that a provincial project to co-operate with industry and the federal government to save energy in the forest industry would employ waste wood as energy. He said, however, that it would be a month or two before it starts.

WIND PROMOTED AS FUTURE FUEL

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — The American Wind Energy Association, touting wind power as the energy of the future, has organized what it calls the largest windmill conference ever held May 11-14 in Boulder.

Among those participating will be the U.S. Energy Research and Development Administration, NASA, Lockheed Aerospace, Rockwell International, Sandia Laboratories, Colorado State University and Georgia Tech.

Conference organizer, John Sayler of American Energy Alternatives in Boulder, said Carter's energy message indicates wind power will be a viable means of future energy.

"As the nation switches over to renewable energy sources, wind power will be a much more viable alternative," Sayler said Monday. "We're predicting a sharp increase in sales and production. The President's proposed tax credit for purchasers of wind and solar units will certainly be a contributing factor."

Sayler said the purpose of the four-day meeting is to evaluate the industry's progress, exchange technical information and formulate policies for the future.

"We're considering the needs of both the manufacturer and the consumer on an equal basis," he said.

'Hard Core' Juveniles Subject of Alta. Law

EDMONTON (CP) — A bill enabling judges to crack down on "hard core" juvenile offenders has been introduced in the legislature.

Helen Hunley, social services and community health minister, introduced a bill which would allow judges to lock up youths for an unspecified period of time.

"The bill is in response to concern expressed by parents, the courts, welfare officials and police," Hunley told reporters.

"I have heard it said police work hard to solve a crime — and then meet the kids concerned on the way home at night."

Hunley said a new institution for juvenile offenders — a vocational training centre — is being considered by the attorney-general, and if set up, would house about 50 youths aged 12-18.

Hunley said her bill, the Child Welfare Amendment Act, countered the pendulum towards liberalized institutions where "walkways" had become a problem.

Security at present establishments is to be tightened up, including measures at the youth development centre in Edmonton.

But Hunley said officials estimated there were only 100 to 150 "hard core" juvenile offenders in the province.

Amendments would allow a juvenile court judge to approve 90-day periods of detention if the child presents a danger to himself or others, is otherwise out of control, or if it is in the best interests of the child.

The judge must hold a hearing every six months to cancel or confirm the "compulsory care." Detentions can be appealed to the Supreme Court of Alberta.

The direction of child welfare can detain a child for an initial period of 30 days, then for additional 90-day periods — as long as the judge does not object — up to the mandatory hearing at six months.

Hunley said the bill was not at odds with recommendations anticipated from Mr. Justice W. J. C. Kirby, of the Alberta Supreme Court, who is at present reviewing the juvenile-judicial system.

"We drew up the legislation in consultation with the judges," Hunley said. "And we felt there was a need to implement it now."

The provisions replace those thought to be too lenient which defined confinement as any period "in excess of that which a parent would reasonably impose upon his child in the exercise of discipline."

GARBAGE HUNT RAISES FUNDS

EDMONTON (CP) — There may be nothing heavenly about garbage but an Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship spokesman says sthe success of the group's annual garbathons has been "miraculous."

Marg Long, one of the fellowship's 16 full-time staff members in Alberta, said members and friends of fellowship clubs at the universities, colleges and public schools will stage their annual garbage hunt in this city's ravines May 7. They now are soliciting sponsors to pay for each hour individuals work and the funds raised go to support the Pioneer Lodge near Sundre and the Pioneer Ranch Camp near Rocky Mountain House.

Other fellowship people will be scavenging garbage at Calgary, Red Deer, Lethbridge, Medicine Hat, Olds, an Leduc.

Last year the province-wide effort raised $47,000 and this year the fellowship expects to be able to burn the mortgage for Pioneer Lodge, started about seven years ago with nothing.

"For us Christians, that's nothing short of a miracle," she said.

Gaming Rules To Tighten

EDMONTON (CP) — Suppliers in the gaming industry are generally keeping silent about Attorney-General Jim Foster's plans to tighten up Alberta's control of casino, bingo and lottery operations.

Several industry suppliers Tuesday either offered no comment on Foster's plans or said any effect on their business would be minor.

The new regulations are being prepared by Foster's department and scheduled for implementation in about two months.

The four major changes propised are a new fee structure which would eliminate fees for very small bingos; a change in licensing from individual groups to a licensed operator; licences limiting groups to their own geographical area and a limit on expenses organizations can pay operators.

Colleges Changed

EDMONTON (CP) — A change of status for four provincially administered colleges has been announced by Advanced Education Minister Dr. Bert Hohol.

Hohol said the colleges of Olds, Fairview, Lakeland and Keyano will become public colleges, with boards of governors appointed by cabinet, similar to universities.

The changeover will take place when appropriate arrangements can be made, but no later than September 1978.

Employees Low

WINNIPEG (CP) — Premier Ed Schreyer says the Manitoba government has fewer employees than most other provinces in relation to its population.

The government has been under attack during the budget debate for allowing rampant growth of the public employees payroll during the eight years since the NDP government came to power.

The premier based his statement on a report from Statistics Canada which showed Manitoba's ratio of provincial employees to population to be the third lowest in Canada as of Dec. 31, 1976.

Jail Planned

REGINA (CP) — Saskatoon will be the site of a new provincial correctional centre, Social Services Minister Herman Rolfes has announced.

Rolfes said in a prepared statement the correctional centre will be comprised of 104 beds with an adjacent 25-bed remand unit. A new 100-bed jail and 20-bed remand unit to be constructed in Prince Albert was announced earlier.

Fatalities Rise

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta Safety Council says 69 drivers were killed in the province and 1,199 were injured in 9,043 traffic accidents during the first two months of 1977.

This represents a 30 per cent increase in fatalities over the same period in 1976, although injuries are down eight per cent and total accidents have decreased 1.8 per cent, the council said.

Utility Over-Billed

EDMONTON (CP) — Northwestern Utilities Ltd. has been ordered by the Alberta Public Utilities Board to return to its customers $639,000 in excess revenue collected during 1976.

The ruling gives the firm two weeks to inform the board on how it intends to make the refund.

J. H. Pletcher, the firm's vice-president, said: "We haven't decided how to give it back."

Critics Attack Foreign MD Bill

SASKATOON (CP) — Proposed legislation that would require all foreign-trained doctors to pass examinations before practising in Saskatchewan would give the medical profession in the province uncontrolled and uncontrollable powers over all medical practice in the province, a spokesman for the Saskatoon Community Clinic says.

Dr. John Bury, a member of the clinic's medical staff, told a news conference the proposed legislation would allow the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Saskatchewan to restrict the practice of physicians already in the province as well as those entering in the future.

Bury said the bill would allow the college to prevent physicians from setting up practice in areas where the college feels the number of patients would not be high enough to keep a physician's skills well developed. He said the clinic's legal advice is that the provision could apply to any doctor in Saskatchewan.

"We believe the powers given to the college will significantly reduce the ability of community clinics and rural areas to recruit physicians," said Margaret McKechner, president of the clinic's board of directors.

"It should be realized that over half of all physicians currently in Saskatchewan were trained outside Canada. In rural area locations 62 per cent of all family practitioners came from overseas."

She said the draft legislation — Bill 51 — should be withdrawn and replaced with more appropriate legislation designed to reduce medical costs and improve the quality of care.

Meanwhile, Huntley Schaller, president of the Saskatchewan Young New Democrats, said the proposed law would put a dangerous degree of power in the hands of the organized medical profession.

"We find the potentially discriminatory nature of the bill . . . disturbing," Schaller said in a prepared statement.

Health Minister Wes Robbins told a news conference passage of the bill would both reduce the number of foreign doctors coming into the province and raise the standard of immigrating physicians.

Drapeau Vision . . . Without Debts

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

For their first ever executive director, Victoria Jaycees have imported a former Montreal Olympics official who brings to Vancouver Island "some of the Drapeau vision but without the deficits."

For Dave Murdoch, 36, the vision begins with the annual fair, which will be improved this year and will be "a totally new experience" in 1978.

"I would like the fair to involve the whole community, the whole city," he said in an interview.

"It doesn't have to be confined to the fairgrounds, the whole city could be the fair."

Murdoch's first task is find more space at the crowded fairground site. This means finding some constructive use for the rocky section, a wasteland taking up 30 per cent of the total area.

It has been idle, wasted land for the 31 years the fair has been held, Murdoch said. All events are crowded into the remaining space.

"That rocky area is an opportunity. Maybe I am just infected with the Drapeau spirit but I see that area as being a focal point for the fair. It could be an area of picnics and family gatherings. We could construct an old-time village, including a sawmill."

The Murdoch story began when Victoria Jaycees voted to hire their first executive director, a full-time paid position. They informed national headquarters of their plan.

Canadian officers were not impressed. No other Jaycee branch has an executive director and they weren't too sure it would be a good idea. They sent out Canadian Jaycee executive vice president, David Murdoch, from Montreal to dissuade them from this course of action.

"I came out with the idea of telling them it was a big mistake," Murdoch said. "But the more I saw of the opportunity in Victoria the better I liked it. If any place could use an executive director to advantage it was Victoria."

The idea of a paid employee runs counter to traditional Jaycee thinking, he said, because all work is supposed to be a learning experience by volunteers.

"But I saw that an executive director could produce a variety of programs here, all of which would in themselves add to the learning experience. There could be more members and more activities.

"In addition, I thought it was folly for a group of people to try to organize something as big as the fair on a volunteer basis. So I applied for the job."

He was appointed March 15 but continues as Canadian Jaycee executive director until July 1.

"I am just getting the feel of British Columbia and I realize it is not like the other provinces. There is a fairly strong pro-labor attitude here, although it is still a free enterprise province.

"I spent the first few days here talking to people about the Victoria fair. I would go up to people on the street and ask them what they thought about it. I asked them what bugged them about it and why. I learned a lot that way.

"There will be some improvement in the fair this year but the big changes can not be brought in until next year.

"We will be bringing back the original agricultural idea to the fair and we will make sure there are events for the whole community."

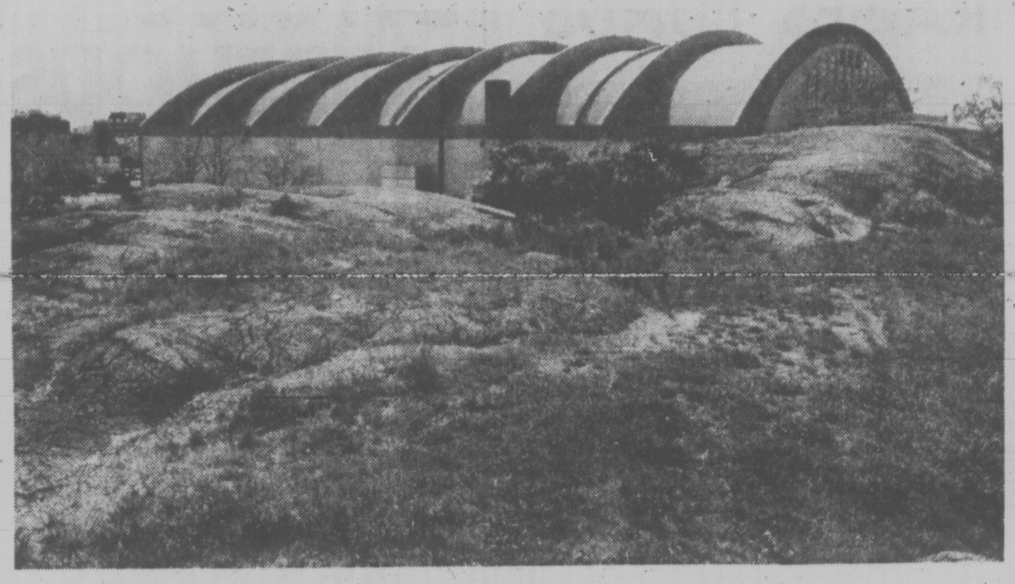
Space is the immediate problem. Using the rock is only part of the answer. Eventually, the fair events will have to be scattered across the city — "not a bad idea in itself" — or move to a larger park.

Murdoch said the city missed the boat in not buying up the block-long area between the fairground and Royal Athletic Park. This would have produced a continuous park from Blanshard to Cook and would have joined Central Park on the north.

Instead, they have let people build in that area and it may be too late to consider buying it up. Still, it's an idea worth considering. It would give Victoria a downtown park unmatched in almost any Canadian city."

His immediate target with the Jaycees is to increase the membership rolls. At present there are 43 and there will be 100 by July 1. In one year there will be 300 and the ultimate target is in excess of 1,000, Murdoch said.

He is also planning clean-up campaigns and tourist promotions.



Empty fairground land, idle for 31 years, to be put to use

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 22-year-old Central Saanich man received an absolute discharge after he was convicted Tuesday in Victoria provincial court by Judge Fred Green of striking his dog in front of officials of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals on Sept. 23.

Richard James Mutrie, of 1583 Mount Newton Cross Road, was charged by SPCA manager Don Adams, who testified in the trial that Mutrie swatted and kicked the dog, a German shepherd-samoyed mongrel which was not quite a year old.

Adams, who went after Mutrie after the incident, also claimed he was pushed by the accused man when informed that a charge could be laid.

Kennel master Nelson Hickson told the court he brought the dog from the pound to Mutrie, who began yelling at the animal as soon as it came into view. Hickson said the dog immediately began to cower and cringe and crawled behind him.

He said Mutrie then grabbed the dog by the scruff of the neck, pushed it forward and directed a kick at the hind quarters of the animal. However, the dog turned slightly just before impact and received the blow to the hip and ribs, Hickson said.

Hickson said the dog then ran to a corner of the building and Mutrie grabbed it again, this time striking it with a fist.

Testifying in his own defence, Mutrie said his actions were for disciplinary reasons and said the kick was similar to "pushing him with my foot."

Under cross examination by crown counsel Armand Petronio, Mutrie admitted that it was the fourth time he had had to retrieve his dog from area pounds.

Mutrie also admitted that he said to one of the SPCA officials: "$13, Jesus Christ, I suppose you're going to add sales tax."

He denied that he went after his dog the second time and struck it with a fist.

In the matter of pushing Adams, Mutrie said he was moving his truck from its parking place closer to the SPCA building to get the dog when Adams approached him. He said he told Adams it was none of his business and to get out of the way and then "pushed him lightly on the shoulders with my fingertips."

Before announcing his verdict, Green said he accepted the evidence submitted by Adams and Hickson and accepted the facts that the dog was cuffed, kicked and hit with a fist.

He said that Mutrie was most obviously in a state of extreme agitation and anger and said the actions were obviously a result of a loss of temper by Mutrie.

Defence-lawyer Fleming Hansen said his client intended to take a study group on a trip to China and that a criminal record might jeopardize his chances of obtaining a visa and passport.

Green said although the actions were wilful and went beyond normal chastisement, he felt they were "not outrageous in a criminal sense."

Heather Dawn Pipke, of 2552 Vancouver, pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance by being drunk.

Court was told she was shouting at about 11:20 p.m. Monday night on Douglas Street, near Ardersier, at passing cars.

Horner Aids Defeat of Own Plan

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Jack Horner joined his new Liberal colleagues Tuesday night in defeating a Progressive Conservative Motion identical to one he had introduced Nov. 1, 1973 when he sat on the Conservative benches.

Aided by Horner, the Liberals outvoted the three opposition parties 114 to 81 to defeat the non-confidence motion against Liberal agriculture policies.

An aide of Conservative Leader Joe Clark pointed out to reporters that the two motions were identical and even distributed copies of Horner's 1973 motion.

Horner's vote against the recycled Conservative motion and an accompanying amendment by the New Democratic Party was the first time he had voted in the Commons since becoming a Liberal minister without portfolio.

The motion deplored the government's "inability to give leadership in developing and implementing" agricultural policies and maintaining a strong farm economy.

A New Democratic Party amendment condemning the government for alleged failure to support an orderly marketing system to protect farmers from "the power of large corporations" was defeated by a vote of 196 to 9.

The debate on farm policy was initiated by the Conservatives as part of an opposition day — one of a number of days set aside during each session of Parliament.

Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan defended his agricultural policy, saying farmers and consumers now enjoyed higher incomes and lower food costs than most other countries.

MPs assailed federal handling of food marketing systems, financing for agricultural research, farm income and planning to cope with a possible drought in the Prairies this summer.

Nfld. Skipper's Son Takes Helm Of Wage, Price Control Board

OTTAWA (CP) — The new anti-inflation board chairman, Harold Renouf, bills himself as a firm believer in the free market economy but says the work of wage-and-price controls is not yet done.

The soft-spoken Renouf, a 59-year-old chartered accountant, arrived here from Halifax this week to start his new role as head of the board. He replaces Jean-Luc Pepin.

Renouf, who had served on the seven-member board as the regional representative from the Atlantic provinces, said he expects the wage-and-price control program will run "well into 1978" unless the government wins a commitment from labor and business to voluntary restraint.

Renouf, the son of a sea captain, said he believes in private enterprise and the free market economy but inflationary circumstances in 1974 and 1975 led him to support drastic government action. He was then president of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants.

"At that time I, among others, was calling for restraint on the part of government to subdue the rate of increase in government expenditures . . .

"By the fall of 1975, when the invitation came for me to join the board, I was of the view something more drastic than voluntary restraint was needed. We haven't reached the degree of stability in the rate of inflation or in the inflationary psychology to terminate the program immediately."

Renouf

The Newfoundland-born Renouf said he is unsure how long the program will last. It was originally set to continue until Dec. 31, 1978, but there has been discussion of an earlier termination.

Renouf said he thinks a majority of the public wants the program to continue although there is a degree of criticism.

He said he does not see the job of board chairman as being different now from what it was when Pepin, a high-profile public figure, occupied it.

There now is not as much need to sell the program to the public but nevertheless the job is more than just an administrative one, he said.

METRIC GRAIN DELAY

OTTAWA (CP) — The government plans to delay use of the metric measuring system in the grain industry until farmers who now oppose it are convinced it is worthy of support, Small Business Minister Len Marchand said Tuesday.

He told the Commons the government will not proclaim into law parts of the legislation after it gets approval in the Commons until "further consultations" are held with the grain industry, especially farmers.

Marchand attributed his decision to Jack Horner, the Alberta Progressive Conservative MP who turned Liberal last month and joined the cabinet and to the MPs "from the Prairie region."

Pipeline Held Back

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie indicated Tuesday he favors referring the issue of a northern natural gas pipeline to a Commons committee for discussion before the government makes any decision.

Gillespie told the Commons national resources committee no decision has been taken on whether recommendations of the National Energy Board should go to the committee or face a full debate in the House of Commons.

Earlier in the Commons, Prime Minister Trudeau refused to make any commitment to call the House back from summer recess for a debate on the pipeline. A decision on the project is expected early this fall.

Gillespie said he anticipates that the Berger Commission study on the economic, political and environmental impacts of a pipeline in the north — scheduled for release Monday will rereferred to a committee.

Board chairman Marshall Crowe told the resources committee he anticipates that the National Energy Board decision on the pipeline will be in the government's hands by July 1.

That would mean any committee consideration would have to come during the summer months when the House normally does not sit. Gillespie said he had found precedents for committee sessions outside normal sessions of the House.

In the Commons question period, Prime Minister Trudeau repeated government fears that a decision on the pipeline will be made in the United States if Canada does not make up its mind quickly.

Trudeau said the Canadian government will do its best to select a route by early fall, although it is under no obligation to meet the Sept. 1 deadline he promised U.S. President Jimmy Carter Canada would try to observe.

If Canada does not decide soon on a pipeline route, the U.S. could go ahead with the El Paso route, "which is certainly not in the Canadian interest," Trudeau said.

Under the El Paso proposal, Alaskan natural gas would move to the Alaska coast by pipeline and from there to California by tanker.

Women Holding Low-Pay Positions

OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservative Lincoln Alexander said Tuesday the small number of women in upper-echelon jobs in the federal manpower and immigration department shows women are still "hewers of wood and drawers of water."

Alexander, who represents the riding of Hamilton West, said Manpower Minister Bud Cullen should "hang his head in shame" for not acting more quickly to correct the imbalance.

He made his remarks after hearing J. L. D. Manion, senior assistant deputy minister in the department, read figures showing that although there are only slightly fewer men than women workisg in the department, women hold the most low-paying jobs.

Manion was appearing before the Commons manpower committee which is reviewing the department's spending estimates for the next year totalling about $1.2 billion, up from $1.06 billion a year earli-

He told the committee there are about 6,100 men and 5,200 women in the department. At the clerical level, the lowest payingt here are 3,088 women and 394 men.

"Isn't that a shameful statistic, sir," Alexander said.

French Finding a Chill in Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — French-Canadians living here say the attitude of Toronto residents towards Quebecers has cooled noticeably since the Nov. 15 election of the Parti Quebecois.

Francine Robitaille Maston, who has lived in Toronto 11 years, is among the French-Canadians who feel the atmosphere changing.

Interviewed recently, she said intolerance had gradually eroded over the years, but that changed with the Quebec election.

"Since the election, people have become nasty again," she said. "There has been such a change, such backlash since November.

"People have become very cold and distant. I've been experiencing that. Quebec has put us in a funny situation here."

Francois Tarsne, editor of a French-language weekly newspaper, said he felt the same thing after the election that put Premier Rene Levesque and his separatist party in power.

"A wall went up between the English and the French in Toronto and we have been able to feel it ever since."

The city's French-Canadian cultural centre, La Chasse Galerie, had its federal operating grant cut off the day of the Quebec election, forcing it to close.

Micheline St.-Cyr, a founder of the centre and a former director, said she does not know if the slashed grant was a coincidence but adds that things are worse for French-Canadians in Toronto now than they have been for years.

Christiane Beaupre, a student at York University, said she has been told to "speak white" when she speaks French.

"It's more than resentment, it's hate," she said.

SUBURB WON'T GET SECESSION VOTE

MONTREAL (CP) — The 36,000 residents of middle-class, predominantly English-speaking Dollard des Ormeaux will not get a chance to vote on whether they should secede from Quebec and become a "satellite" province of Ontario.

Councillor Jim Sheridan, who last month filed notice of his intention to introduce a bylaw permitting the Montreal suburb to hold a referendum on the matter, rose sheepishly Tuesday before a packed city hall to withdraw the notice and say it was all a misunderstanding.

Sheridan said his motion should not have been interpreted "as one of separation but as one desirous of remaining in Canada."

Mayor Gerald Dephoure said the referendum was strictly Sheridan's idea.

"Such a move was outside the jurisdiction of the town," the mayor said. "Municipalities are created by the province. They have no right whatsoever to change territorial limits.

"My personal opinion is that we should all stay in Quebec and keep this can of worms together."

In serving his notice-of-motion April 5, Sheridan had denounced the Part Quebecois government as "anarchistic."

He said he was not advocating an 11th province, but annexation to Ontario. A movement to create an 11th province from areas of Quebec which want to remain in Confederation was launched recently by an English-speaking member of the national assembly, William Shaw.

'Dirty Business'

OTTAWA (CP) — Social Credit MP Rene Matte calls it "dirty business" for the prime minister to say Quebec's proposed language law could endanger the creation of federal jobs in the province.

The MP for Champlain said in a statement Tuesday he found it even worse that such statements came from some of Quebec's representatives in Ottawa. Was such "financial blackmail" needed?

He was referring to statements by Prime Minister Trudeau that the Quebec law could delay the decentralization of more federal government operations in to Quebec.

The proposed law would stress the supremacy of French and, as it stands, prevent English-Canadians moving to the province from sending their children to English schools.

Earlier, Supply and Services Minister Jean-Pierre Goyer said any government ban on movement of federal jobs to Quebec would be a drastic step but that the rights of individuals must be protected.

Goyer told a Parliamentary committee it would be hard to decide what action Ottawa would take until the Quebec language bill is adopted by the legislature.

In the Commons, Matte failed to get approval for a motion asking the government to give Quebec the same amount of money it would have spent on decentralization to the province.

Senate Group Will Study Childhood Crime Origins

OTTAWA (CP) — A 10-member Senate subcommittee is being appointed to look into childhood experiences as a cause of criminal behavior.

The Senate announced Tuesday the subcommittee will call experts to discuss the effects of prenatal, birth and postnatal experiences up to the age of three.

The subcommittee was formed after a two-year campaign by Senator Fred MacGrand (L—New Brunswick), who is convinced much criminal behavior results from harmful, and avoidable, experiences in early life.

"The disability came first and the delinquency second," he has told senators.

Quoting other studies, he said minimal brain damage caused by poor diet during pregnancy or injury at birth and abuse after birth have been connected often with troubles in later life. "What is the alternative to the death penalty?" The 80-year-old physician asks.

"The answer is obvious, but not an easy one. The remedy is to get the child as soon as minimal brain disfunction is recognized, or, better still, to prevent minimal brain disfunction from taking place. It has many causes. It can happen before birth, at birth and after birth."

He and six other senators have so far been named to the committee. The chairman will be Lorne Bonnell, 54, (L—Prince Edward Island), a medical doctor. The other members are senators Chesley Carter, 74, (L—Newfoundland), Elsie Inman, 85, (L—Prince Edward Island), Charles McElman, 56, (L—New Brunswick), Margaret Norrie, 71, (L—Nova Scotia), and Donald Smith, 71, (L—Nova Scotia).

Obstetricians, pediatricians, child psychologists, criminologists and anthropologists will be invited to appear before the subcommittee of the Senate health and welfare committee.

CYCLAMATE CURBS MAY BE LIFTED

OTTAWA (CP) — An application to allow wider use of cyclamates, an artificial sweetener partly banned in 1969 because of suspicions it may cause cancer, is being studied by the federal health department, a spokesman said Tuesday.

Cyclamates now are allowed as table top sweeteners. The health department spokesman said the health protection branch has asked the manufacturer for further information before it makes its decision on whether to allow wider use of the chemical.

The studies needed to produce this information may be done by the end of the year and a decision on the sweetener's fate might be made as early as next spring.

Recent studies have shown that relatively low doses of the sugar substitute cause testicular atrophy, shrinking or improper development of the testes in laboratory rats.

There has been increased interest in artificial sweeteners since the federal government announced March 9 it was banning the use of saccharin because a three-year federal study on rats linked consumption of the sugar substitute to increased rates of bladder cancer.

It Pays To Quit Smoking

OTTAWA (CP) — The office employees at Canadian Hockey Industries in Drummondville, Que., have found it literally pays to quit smoking, a conference on occupational alcoholism and drug abuse was told Tuesday. For the last 26 months, any office worker who kicks the habit has been given a $500 bonus by company president Marc Ruel, who for the last three years has spent another $150 a year on each of them so they can go three times a week to exercise at the local gym. Ruel says the smoking and fitness experiment with the 15 office workers of the company, the second largest, manufacturer of hockey sticks in Canada, has wiped out absenteeism and increased productivity so much that within a year he hopes to make a similar programs available.

Piano Adjudicator Declines to Allot Marks

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

Piano adjudicator Phllis Schuldt exercised her own judgment at Tuesday evening's Newcombe Auditorium session which concluded a large piano concerto class spread over two years. She declined to allot marks.

"All these young people know exactly what they're doing," she commented, "and they're doing it up to 100 per cent of their present ability. But I'm certainly not about to give everyone a mark of 100."

"Playing a concerto is very different to being a solo recitalist," she told her audience. "The soloist with an orchestra must lead — he has to be aggressive. The conductor is leading the orchestra to do what you want them to do."

Most of the players in the concerto class had shown a realization of this, Mrs. Schuldt felt. She gave first place and high praise to Walter Prossnitz; second place to Miranda Wong.

"Does the winner of this class get a chance to play with the symphony?" she asked. "Well, they certainly should." Tonight's concerto session was absorbed in the first two, leaving Newcombe dark tonight.

Earlier in the day she had expressed some disappointment with the diploma level Bach sessions which had occupied morning and afternoon. Mrs. Schuldt (who had studied with the great Bach interpreter, Harold Samuel) was disappointed because at diploma level she felt there should be less preoccupation with technical aspects, more freedom of expression.

"Bach must be played from the heart, not just the head," she said. "Many of you played the piece pretty well — but you hadn't really learned it."

Nevertheless she had a lot of good things to say concerning six of the performers who received certificates of merit. First place also went to Walter Prossnitz for this one; second to Carla Dodek. Others receiving the certificates were Janet Pennington, Malcolm Woodland, Maudie van Klaveren and Maureen Nielsen.

Dance, school choral sessions and brass and woodwind instrumental classes occupied all of Tuesday and today at Oak Bay Junior Secondary, Victoria High and First United Fellowship Hall, with school bands in the evening at Lansdowne Junior.

Describing a woodwind ensemble consisting of Isabel Ramsay, Denise Devries, Casey Pechet and Philip Thompson as "a flute salad . . . quite a treat . . . what lovely sound," Dr. Robert Cook awarded the group the high mark of the day's sessions at First United — 89.

At Oak Bay, Soonee Lee is providing close analysis and constructive criticism for the ballet and dance studio section of the festival. Mrs. Lee is head of the new ballet program at Vancouver's Community Music School, and has studied in part at the Royal Ballet School and the State Ballet Academy in East Berlin.

Flood Warning

EDMONTON (CP) — The city of Calgary is living on borrowed time, facing a flood threat that could cost $20 million to $30 million, says Ron Hilton, water resources manager for the Calgary region.

Hilton, in an interview here, said Calgary has "the greatest potential for flood damage in Alberta" — far greater than that which exists in the northwestern Alberta community of Fort McMurray which recently suffered flood damage estimated near $4 million.

Hilton said homes and businesses have been allowed to be built on the floodplains of the Bow and Elbow Rivers in Calgary.

No Strike On Ferries —Williams

By LIZ HUGHES
Times Staff

The provincial government will not allow a ferry strike and will impose a 90-day cooling off period if necessary, Labor Minister Allan Williams said today.

Williams said if ferry officers go ahead with a threatened 10 a.m. strike Thursday, cabinet will impose the cooling-off period "perhaps by 10:05."

A cabinet-ordered cooling-off period of up to 90 days is provided for under the Railway and Ferry Bargaining Assistance Act.

"The government is concerned that the ferry system continues to function. It is essential for the tourist industry and the normal flow of commerce between Vancouver Island and the mainland and the mid and north coasts," Williams said.

"The government cannot stand idly by and allow a strike when there are other avenues."

Williams said the ferries corporation and the union would be offered every form of assistance available under his ministry, including special mediators and fact finding teams.

Union spokesman was not available to comment on Williams' statement.

Members of the B.C. Government Employees Union and the B.C. Ferry Corp. were meeting to discuss with the Labor Relations Board the legality of the officer's strike vote as well as other issues in dispute between the employees and the crown corporation.

The officers voted 89 per cent in favor of a strike and filed 72-hour notice Monday allowing them to walk out at 10 a.m. Thursday.

The validity of the officer's action was thrown into question last week when the LRB ruled that they should become part of the same bargaining unit as the other ferry employees.

Prior to the ruling, the 500 officers had formed a separate component, distinct from the 1,700 unlicensed personnel.

News stories of the strike possibility have already had an effect, Williams said.

Williams said he talked this morning with a local hotel operator who said the strike threat has increased the number of reservation cancellations.

PRIVATE GROUP OFFERS FERRY

ANACORTES, Wash. (AP) — A private organization has offered to operate a passenger only ferry service between here and Victoria if the state toll bridge authority cancels its service.

Lynn Campbell, owner of Harbor Tours in Seattle, said Tuesday he would be the local liaison for a California group planning to operate the service.

The toll board will meet May 24 to decide whether the Anacortes to Sidney service should be cancelled to release an additional ferry for Puget Sound runs.

The Los Angeles-based group is the same one which had made arrangements to operate another ferry between Seattle and Victoria when Canadian Pacific dropped its Princess Marguerite run. The provincial government decided, however, to resume the ferry service on its own.

Al Sewgar, Anacortes Chamber of Commerce manager, said he had been contacted by the Los Angeles firm, but was not anxious to pursue that at the present time.

"There's too many unknowns," he said. "We're counting on trying to maintain the present run.

Grad Glut Until 1990

OTTAWA (CP) — A Statistics Canada report says the glut of university and community college educated students will continue for the next 15 years, possibly creating massive social, economic and political problems.

The report, released Tuesday by the federal agency, says young people leaving post-secondary schools until about 1990 will face grim employment prospects even if enrolment in those schools is curtailed.

Zolta Zsigmond, one of the report's authors, said it is the first time a statistical study has been done in Canada to indicate what happens to students leaving post-secondary schools.

Although the study is focussed on Ontario because it was financed in part by the provincial government, general trends and predictions can be applied to other provinces, Zsigmond said.

He said in an interview the 224-page document warns students not to necessarily expect to ever get a job, let alone expect to have a white collar job.

The 224-page report also shows that :

—The labor force is becoming increasingly better-educated. In 1966, one-quarter of all Ontario students leaving school had attended a university or community college, but by 1986 this figure will rise to 50 per cent.

—Young people began leaving Ontario in droves in 1974 to find jobs in other provinces, particularly in the West.

—The myth that a university degree is a passport to a job is effectively dead. Four months after graduation from a university in 1974, 28 per cent of students were still unemployed or underemployed.

—A second but less dramatic baby boom will start to occur this year as members of the original post-war baby boom start having children. The peak of the second baby boom will increase high school enrolments in the mid-1990s after a considerable decline.

—Despite the second baby boom and immigration, Ontario's population will decrease by about 6,000 persons a year.

The report says the second baby boom will not have as dramatic an effect on the education system and the labor force because the Ontario birthrate has dropped. The province entered the age of zero population growth in 1974, meaning that couples had on an average fewer than two children.

But the report says it may take until 1990 before the job market supply matches the demands of the labor force if new graduates end up competing with old graduates who are under-employed and trying to improve their situations.

The result could be that over-qualified young people push the less educated out of skilled and semi-skilled jobs.

I MUST go down to the sea today is a thought that enters most people's mind now that summer is near. Belfast Police Attacked

Times News Services

BELFAST — Protestant extremists attempting to enforce a general strike in Northern Ireland today attacked a police vehicle and two buses carrying workers to their jobs.

The violence flared in East Belfast when strikers attacked a police Land Rover with a hail of stones and bottles. Two buses stopped nearby and the mob surged over them, smashing the windshields of both vehicles.

Seventeen other bus drivers were injured today in attempted vehicle hijackings.

Police reinforcements rushed to the area and threw up barricades to divert traffic.

Police also called in British troops to help combat the stone-throwing demonstrators.

Government spokesmen, however, said support for the strike was waning.

The statement came despite the fact that strikers gained support today from technicians at Northern Ireland's main power station who voted unanimously to join the agitation.

Bob McSpadden, senior union official at Ballylumford power station, said he is waiting for instructions from the predominantly-Protestant United Union Actionist Council on when to let the plant "run down."

Ballylumford is the key to Northern Ireland's electricity supply and a shutdown there could reduce power to virtually zero.

A spokesman for the Ulster Unionists Action Council, which called for a total shutdown of non-essential services in the province, said Tuesday they were ready for a long campaign and would "eat grass" if necessary to insure a drawn-out victory.

The Action Council, led by Rev. Ian Paisley, wants the British government to crack down on the outlawed Provisional Irish Republican Army and to hand over control of Northern Ireland to a Protestant government.

7% Inflation Rate Forecast

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Canada's inflation rate this year likely will surpass the six-per-cent limit set for the second year of price and wage controls, Finance Minister Donald Macdonald told the Commons Tuesday.

"I hope we will not go to the seven-per-cent level," but the rate is being pushed higher than the six-per-cent target, Macdonald said in answer to Lincoln Alexander (P C—Hamilton-West).

Alexander, Conservative manpower critic, asked Macdonald to comment on statements by anti-inflation board officials, who had said the inflation rate had been revised to seven per cent from six per cent for the second year of controls.

Macdonald replied that he had said in his March 31 budget speech that the inflation target would be hard to meet.

Revision of inflation targets would have wide-ranging effects throughout the Canadian economy because controls are linked to the inflation target rate.

The second year of controls will end this October. The government has said it intends to lift the controls, probably this year, but has refused to give a date.

Macdonald said he expects to present to Parliament this month a green paper discussing the government's idea of how it plans to lift controls.

He said voluntary targets for wage and price increases likely will be set for the decontrol period.

The government would have "to set reasonable standards parties could follow."

In a related dvelopment, the labor department announced today in Ottawa that annual wage increases negotiated for

Times News Services

PARIS — The United States has agreed to drop its opposition to Vietnam's admission to the United Nations, a joint communique issued by the U.S. and Vietnam said today.

The U.S. had previously vetoed Vietnam's application to the United Nations on three occasions. The last veto was in November, 1976.

Vietnamese deputy foreign minister Phan Hien said the two delegations will resume their talks here within two weeks "to seek a rapid normalization of relations" between the two countries.

Diplomatic sources also said an agreement may be reached within a few weeks on the exchange of ambassadors, and American aid for Vietnam's postwar reconstruction.

There was no sign at this early stage if the major obstacles to diplomatic relations — U.S. demands for co-operation in tracing 800 Americans missing in action and Vietnamese demands for U.S. aid — have been dealt with.

The two sides have agreed to keep the negotiations strictly private for the time being with few press briefings.

The chief negotiators were wreathed in smiles when they emerged Tuesday from their first 3½ hours of talks.

"We had a frank, friendly and very useful conversation," Assistant Secretary of State Richard Holbrooke told reporters.

"I fully agree with him," said Hien.

The Vietnamese say former President Nixon in a 1973 letter promised $3.25 billion in post-war aid. But former U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger denied Tuesday there was a U.S. commitmentq.

GLASGOW (Reuter) — Britian's ruling Labor party lost ground Tuesday in municipal elections throughout Scotland — the first national test of political feeling in Scotland since the October, 1974, general election. The chief beneficiary in early results declared today was the Scottish National party SNP.

PHYSICAL VIOLENCE FEARED IN QUEBEC

QUEBEC (CP) — The vice-president of Quebec's human rights commission says he fears the danger of physical violence in the language debate in the province.

"It seems to me that we risk directing ourselves towards violence and we have already done so in our attitudes and language," says Maurice Champagne-Gilbert.

"The intolerance, the blackmail which some people use, the rigidity, the narrowness and the ideological narcissism which others exhibit, some of whom are in positions of responsibility which should lead them to give a better example, are so many forms of psycholsocial or moral violence."

Champagne-Gilbert says the simplification and polarization of the debate are factors of latent violence.

Some people are looking for the "black sun" of Ireland and that situation will develop if a greater effort for peace is not made, he said.

Plumbers Negotiate Pact

Negotiators in the B.C. construction industry continued to make progress Tuesday as tenative agreements were reached with a Victoria local of the Plumbers Union and six Mainland locals of the electricians' union.

Meanwhile in Trail, it was announced a tentative agreement was reached Tuesday between Cominco and its 5,200 union employees following lengthy negotiations.

The company, the United Steelworkers of America and the Association of Commercial and Technical Workers announced in a joint statement that a memorandum of agreement would be prepared and a ratification vote taken.

Union members had been working without a contract for three days while negotiations continued almost around the clock to reach an agreement with Cominco.

Strike notice was issued Thursday by the Steelworkers, representing 4,600 employees, and ACTE, representing 585 workers, but an announced strike for Monday was postponed while negotiations continued.

In Vancouver, the construction labor relations association said terms of the agreements reached with the unions will be put to the member companies for ratification. CLRA bargains for the companies.

The tentative one-year contract, the same as that reached Saturday with 10 other building trades unions, provides an increase of 99 cents an hour.

Jim Kinnaird, president of the B.C. and Yukon Building Trades Council, said it appears all the trades unions are going to settle for the same package. Results of the ratification votes are expected in about two weeks.

Tonight, Thursday: Showers, Cool

Wine Prices Fall 20 to 40 Cents

The price of "the drink of moderation" in B.C. was cut this week.

Both domestic and foreign wines prices dropped 20 to 40 cents depending on the product.

It is all part of a plan announced in March by Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair to encourage British Columbians to develop a taste for wine and get away from hard liquor and beer.

"If there is a drink of moderation, wine is," the minister said in March when announcing the price cuts as well as other liquor policy changes.

It is too early yet to say whether Mair's move will lead to a swoop on the wine section of liquor stores but the Liquor Distribution Branch is getting ready.

Nick Clark, stocks director for the branch, said in an interview from Vancouver the inventory on domestic wines has been increased by 20 per cent and on foreign wines by 25 per cent.

He said the effect of the price cuts likely won't be evident until the end of the month or even the end of June.

The price reductions on wine were brought about by a decrease in the markup percentage.

The markup on B.C. wines was dropped to 46 per cent from 66, and on imported wines from 117 per cent to 100 per cent. The government estimates this will mean a drop in revenue of $5 million to $6 million a year.

Clark said the prices were reduced May 1, the same time a number of other changes took place, due to renegotiation of supplier contracts, changes in freight costs or devalued currencies.

Under the changes in liquor and wine prices, the cost of 784 of 800 items went down.

Clark said a reduction in freight rates for some California wines, for example, plus the government's price cut, resulted in a drop of as much as 65 cents a bottle.

The price cuts will be passed along by B.C. restaurants.

Don Bellamy, executive director of the 500-member Restaurant and Food Services Association, said most restaurants charge the maximum allowable markup of 100 per cent on wines.

Therefore, he said, they will have to drop their prices because of the government's latest move.

He said B.C. wines now are holding their own in popularity at restaurants and will no doubt be better off as a result of the price reductions.

House Prices Slumping by About 10%

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Houses are starting to sell briskly in the Victoria area — but selling prices are averaging about 10 per cent below asking prices. According to Victoria real estate firms, a home on the market for $50,000 will sell at $45,000; one listed at $80,000 will sell at $72,000.

There are exceptions. A few houses are already listed at sacrifice prices and these are selling quickly at the asking price. At the other extreme, some people are just testing the waters with a very high asking price. Some of these people have had to choose between accepting a much lower offer — down $15,000 or more — or removing their property from the market.

"In this kind of market there are some terrific bargains," says John Thomson, president of the Victoria Real Estate Board.

"The market was a little slow during January and February while buyers watched to see what would happen to interest rates. But it is clear they will not go any lower. The rate will be stable for a while and then it will go up."

In March a total of $17.8 million worth of property was sold through the Multiple Listing Service, up 34 per cent from $13.3 million the previous March.

April sales totalled about $14 million, the same as last year.

A number of recent sales were at $80,000, the type of home that was very difficult to move before March. Homes listed at $50,000 or less tend to sell within weeks but anything above $60,000 takes more than a month, on average.

A few homes that two years ago would have been listed at $150,000 are listed at $125,000 and may sell for less.

The present conditions are expected to last for at least two more months. A boost in interest rates for mortgages could cool off the pace of sales.

Mortgage interest rates have fallen from a 1976 high of 12.5 per cent to the present level of 10.25 per cent.

The next change is expected to be upwards, unless the federal government makes a counter-order through the Bank of Canada.

Wally Vogelfang, mortgage manager for Royal Trust, said he would not be surprised to see mortgage interest rates go to 10.5 per cent by summer.

"The demand for mortgage money is high and many people are refinancing their 12 per cent mortgages at 10.25 per cent."

J. A. Baines, manager of the main branch of the Bank of Montreal, said he expects the mortgage rate will eventually go to 10.5 per cent, but possibly not for several months.

It's all smiles as Peter Montgomery (Peter Pun) and Karia Leschke (Markaria) lead the Maypole dance, which has survived to become present-day tradition

An Imaginative Return to Middle Ages

'Twas May Day on Sunday and being such, I decided to slip away to the Shire of Seagirt for a right royal May revel.

There under the giant boughs of the speading oak trees, Lady Ceridwen y Gwenneth, Cathal Sean O'Connlan and his lady Makaria danced softly through the daisiess and bluebells to the lilt of medieval music.

While Daphne of Avalon and Dafydd ap Rolland sat engrossed in the ancient game of chess, nearby at a large bench Bryan and Joan of Faversham, Giles Fitzjohn, Peter Pun the poet and the others sipped wine and feasted on herb fritters, daryols, stuffed tuna, mete dishes of lamb and pork hocks, rosewater junket and barley frumenty.

Later, well rested from the feast, after they'd all been presented to the visiting Baron and Baroness of Lions Gate, after Peter Pun had read his epic saga detailing the creation of the Shire of Seagirt, there was more frolicking on the lawns, ending with a wild dance around the Maypole.

All this in Oak Bay and in the 20th century? Right.

But why?

Well, the residents of the Shire are members of the newly-formed Vancouver Island branch of the Society For Creative Anachronism. It's a world-wide society and, in case you didn't know, North America is divided into four kingdoms. The king of the West — King Terrence of Halliday — lives in the San Francisco Bay area.

The society, Vancouver's baron told the gathering amidst much mirth, was founded 11 years ago in protest of the 20th century.

Members — and that included everyone there except for the hosts of the day, Rolland and Mimi Jones, who nevertheless wore costumes and said they felt the whole thing was "very delightful idea" — choose a "persona" from some period in which they are interested.

Karen Jones chose Kady Ceridwen, a Welsh person from the 12th century as her persona. Karen works in a bookstore, has studied medieval literature and loves music and dancing.

But why do they do this? Is it another form of escape? Are they dissatisfied with life as it is today?

"Oh, no," says Karen, "it's just fun and it's nice to have someone kissing your hand and saying 'Good day, my Lady'."

She looks distant, as though she's gazing back in time.

"Lady Ceridwen loved to dance . . . and when I'm in costume, I become her. It's kind of fun, really, to become someone else for a while. This is the Middle Ages as we would have liked them to be, rather than the way they were. That's where the creative anachronism bit comes in."

Karia Leschke becomes Markaria for the day and says she does it because she's interested in fantasy and because her husband is into it.

"But also, I think we can't go anywhere new because it's too expensive to take a space ship to Mars; so we can go into the past."

The Society knows no age limits. There are retired people and the youngest to join are 13-year-old Pamela Hay (Daphne of Avalon) and 14-year-old David Jones (Dafydd).

Of course, they expect it to grow, but right now the society has 12 members ranging in backgrounds from a journalist (Times staffer Bryan Hay was one of the founding members) to a retired minister, a professor of English and a waiter.

Peter Montgomery, who teaches English at Camosun College, chose Peter Pun as his persona.

"Apparently, we're allowed to have very ridiculous names and, as punning is one of my hobbies, I thought I might as well live up to it," he explains. He joined, he says, mostly for the fun of it, although he has had some training in medieval philosophy and so was sympathetic.

"We do this, I think, not so much for an escape, but for a way to enable the imagination to grow," Peter adds.

"Because television has created a desire for our imagination to grow, but frustrated the possibility for it to grow . . . we do this instead. Subconsciously, this is a way of being in a television show."

It's definitely not escape, says Peter, because it takes a lot of effort to make costumes and to prepare authentic food using only ingredients that were known of in the Middle Ages (no things like potatoes or tomatoes which weren't developed at that time).

"But it's like a museum putting you in the right environment," he explains. "We're a sort of living museum, if you like."

Baron Gerhard Kendal of Westmoreland, the Baron of Lions Gate, regaled the ladies and gentlemen with his tales of jousting and battles on the Lower Mainland and in the States. But Bryan of Faversham says the Shire of Seagirt has no immediate plans for such hostile stuff.

"Right now, I think this is about our speed, feasting and dancing," he says.

You can tell the Baron loves every minute of it.

"It's great and glorious fun," he says. "I find I can be a totally different person from the one I am in the 20th Century. It's kind of nice to be able to be chivalrous and do a lot of hand-kissing without someone saying 'You can't do that to me, I'm a Ms.' There is no such thing as a Ms. in our society."

Baron Gerhard is ad man Gerry Stevens. He works for a Vancouver ad agency.

"That's what I am in the fantasy world," he says with a grin. And he glances down at his splendid costume, "... this is what I am in the real world!"

Driver Unnamed By Jury

A coroner's jury Tuesday found that the death March 16 of 18-year-old Peter John De Haan was due to dangerous driving.

The jury, however, did not indicate in its finding who drove the car which crashed causing the death.

Earlier in the inquest, witness Jennifer Jean Green, 29, who was also in the car, testified she could not remember being involved in the accident, in which De Haan's sports car left the Trans-Canada Highway near Malahat Chalet.

De Haan died of head injuries.

RCMP who investigated the accident found evidence which, according to Crown counsel Armand Petronio, suggested Green had been driving.

However, counsel Humphrey Waldock, representing Green, told the jury this evidence could also be construed to indicate De Haan was the driver.

Before retiring, the jury was told by coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre that Green was "either the cleverest actress in the world" or had actually suffered a temporary loss of memory.

Green testified the last thing she recalled was eating pizza with De Haan and another employee of the Century Inn during a staff party she thought was Saturday or Sunday, three days before the accident.

Study Two Years Old, Fire Chiefs Impatient

Victoria Fire Chief Eric Simmons today called for the provincial government to act on some of the 37 recommendations in the Keenleyside report on firefighting.

The government got the report two years ago, Simmons said, and provincial fire chiefs are growing impatient for action.

Simmons' comments were made in a telephone interview from Penticton where he is attending the 46th College of B.C. Fire Chiefs' Convention.

The firefighting report was prepared by Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, a former co-chairman of B.C. Hydro.

One of the recommendations given high priority by college members is the establishment of a firefighters' academy in the province — similar to the training centre for policemen in Vancouver.

Before a Victoria city policeman even dons his uniform he receives 10 to 12 weeks training in the academy, Simmons said.

But a firefighter starts his first shift without any training.

"We begin training him ourselves from the start, but it's possible for a fireman to start his first shift at 8 a.m. and be involved in a major fire at 8:10," he said.

What course of action members of the chief's college take to get the government to implement the Keenleyside recommendations will be discussed Friday.

The fire chiefs also want a fire commission that would operate like a police commission in governing municipal forces in the province.

A third recommendation the college wants implemented is the creation of a Fire Act setting province-wide standards, including the number of men per vehicle and the minimum amount of training needed.

Training is a key issue. Simmons said the police department in Victoria receives $48,000 annually to train men, while the fire department receives $4,000.

Attorney-General Garde Gardom was invited to attend the convention, but he was too busy to come, Simmons said.

MEDIATOR CALLS MEETINGS

Mediator Ed Sims is to meet next week with negotiators for six Canadian Union of Public Employees locals and the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association.

Meetings are set for Tuesday and Wednesday.

Sims had been involved earlier in the negotiations but stepped out during discussion of non-cost items. However, talks broke off April 21 and the mediator was recalled.

Union spokesman Bob Cunningham said today there are still some unsettled non-cost items but the talks next week will centre initially on the cost items.

He said he hopes GVLRA negotiator Carl Anshelm will budge "from the same offer he has given us four times."

"Otherwise, I can't see much hope for Mr. Sims."

Police Promotion Sparks Grievance

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

The Esquimalt police union has launched a grievance over the promotin of former constable Peter Merriott to inspector, the second top position on the 32-member force.

A union spokesman said today the action was decided on after a meeting of union members Monday night.

He said that according to the grievance procedure Chief Art Burton has five days to try and resolve the problem. If he is unsuccessful the union will take the matter to the police board and if the matter is not resolved, a government-appointed board of arbitration.

The union spokesman refused to say how many of the 13 members who applied for the position are grieving Merriott's promotion.

Mayor Art Burton, chairman of the Esquimalt police board, said today that although he expected "some rumblings," he hadn't heard of anyone lauhcing a grievance.

Bu the said he is not surprised by the move.

"If I was a sergeant and felt I had done a good job and then had a constable jump over me in a promotion competition, I'd probably take the same action."

But, Burton said, the decision to promote Merriott was based on a number of factors and "we're not running a popularity contest."

Merriott came out the winner in a department competition to fill the vacancy created by the retirement last week of Staff Sgt. Jim Owens, a 30-year veteran of the force.

At age 37, Merriott is the youngest-ever policeman to achieve the rank of inspector in the Greater Victoria area.

NO SNOW JOB AT CITY HALL

The white stuff may fall in Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt, but there will be little or no snow in Victoria this winter.

That's the comforting word from the long-range weather forecasters down at City Hall.

In the city's 1977 budget approved Tuesday, city council has confidently earmarked only $1,000 for snow removal — $9,000 less than the sum originally requested by the public works department.

The argument appears to be: As it was, weather-wise, in 1976, so shall it be in 1977.

Last year the department had budgeted $10,000 for snow removal but actually spent only $200 during the exceptionally mild winter.

Medicine Today: Patching Up the Gluttons

By DON VIPOND
Times Staff

A lot of today's medical care is devoted to patching up people who have consumed too much of too many things and society is due to enter an era of more self discipline, says a local doctor.

Dr. Robert Peet, chairman of the B.C. Medical Associaiton's Health Planning Council, says each of us has to make a personal decision on whether to be healthy or not.

"It will not be an easy decision for some of the flabby, unhappy consumers abused by over-eating, alcohol, smoking and lack of exercise."

He also says that the age of our population is rapidly shifting "and we must be ready for the geriatric explosion which is almost upon us."

Peet's comments are part of reports from each committee of the council, for presentation next week at the annual meeting in Victoria of the B.C. Medical Associaiton.

He says that historically, doctors improved health by good hygiene and vaccination programs, but progress beyond this point is complex and difficult in a consumer society.

"The large vested . . . interests are the producers, often as not allied with the professions, unions and politicians. These power and economic forces, aided by the vast sales-oriented media, are continually molding and manipulating the individual to consume more, much of which is detrimental to his health."

People have been programmed "to develop insatiable appetites and expectations," he says, "to keep politicians in power and the coffers of their symbiotic allies full."

But the pattern runs in cycles.

"When greedy appetites build to rapacious levels, the individual consumer becomes alarmed. The politician senses danger. He turns off the taps to allow the consumer to thin down by belt-tightening.

"Finally his allies scream to turn on the taps again, and so the cyclic process."

Today's consumer medicine spends much of the time "patching up accelerated degenerative diseases and injuries due to super consumption," Peet says.

Future medicine may even provide spare parts rather than repairs.

"We are about due to return to an era of self discipline and obviously less consumerism by the individual to promote his positive good health.

"To be healthy or unhealthy will be his decision."

Self-discipline by bloated government is not evident yet; he says, but there is a lot politicians can do.

"Harder decisions must come to curb alcoholism in teenagers and young adults. This is our most serious health hazard.

"Harder still will be the decision to deal in a positive way with narcotic addicts.

"The non-addicted consumers now demand it, if only for the selfish reasons of protecting life and property from unfortunate addicts who commit most of the crime in B.C., to support one of the biggest and wealthiest industries on the west coast."

The lawmakers can make it easier for communities to vote on fluoridation by a simple majority vote, Peet says.

"They can improve physical fitness programs for our children and adults through to a happy, active old age."

On the swing to an older population, he said the work of public health nurses in particular must change radically, allowing for more innovation and responsibility.

Senate Group Will Study

OTTAWA (CP) — A 10-member Senate subcommittee is being appointed to look into childhood experiences as a cause of criminal behavior.

The Senate announced Tuesday the subcommittee will call experts to discuss the effects of prenatal, birth and postnatal experiences up to the age of three.

The subcommittee was formed after a two-year campaign by Senator Fred MacGrand (L—New Brunswick), who is convinced much criminal behavior results from harmful, and avoidable, experiences in early life.

"The disability came first and the delinquency second," he has told senators.

Quoting other studies, he said minimal brain damage caused by poor diet during pregnancy or injury at birth and abuse after birth have been connected often with troubles in later life. "What is the alternative to the death penalty?" The 80-year-old physician asks.

"The answer is obvious, but not an easy one. The remedy is to get the child as soon as minimal brain disfunction is recognized, or, better still, to prevent minimal brain disfunction from taking place. It has many causes. It can happen before birth, at birth and after birth."

He and six other senators have so far been named to the committee. The chairman will be Lorne Bonnell, 54, (L—Prince Edward Island), a medical doctor. The other members are senators Chesley Carter, 74, (L—Newfoundland), Elsie Inman, 85, (L—Prince Edward Island), Charles McElman, 56, (L—New Brunswick), Margaret Norrie, 71, (L—Nova Scotia), and Donald Smith, 71, (L—Nova Scotia).

Obstetricians, pediatricians, child psychologists, criminologists and anthropologists will be invited to appear before the subcommittee of the Senate health and welfare committee.

The emphasis will be on the effects of malnutrition or use of drugs during pregnancy, brain damage at birth, learning disabilities, prenatal experiences, and cultural or other factors influencing child development.

CYCLAMATE CURBS MAY BE LIFTED

OTTAWA (CP) — An application to allow wider use of cyclamates, an artificial sweetener partly banned in 1969 because of suspicions it may cause cancer, is being studied by the federal health department, a spokesman said Tuesday.

Cyclamates now are allowed as table top sweeteners. The health department spokesman said the health protection branch has asked the manufacturer for further information before it makes its decision on whether to allow wider use of the chemical.

The studies needed to produce this information may be done by the end of the year and a decision on the sweetener's fate might be made as early as next spring.

Recent studies have shown that relatively low doses of the sugar substitute cause testicular atrophy, shrinking or improper development of the testes in laboratory rats.

There has been increased interest in artificial sweeteners since the federal government announced March 9 it was banning the use of saccharin because a three-year federal study on rats linked consumption of the sugar substitute to increased rates of bladder cancer.

Writer Kidnapped

BUENOS AIRES (Reuter) — Armed men kidnapped an Argentine journalist Tuesday after ransacking his home, informed sources said. It Pays To Quit Smoking

OTTAWA (CP) — The office employees at Canadian Hockey Industries in Drummondville, Que., have found it literally pays to quit smoking, a conference on occupational alcoholism and drug abuse was told Tuesday. For the last 26 months, any office worker who kicks the habit has been given a $500 bonus by company president Marc Ruel, who for the last three years has spent another $150 a year on each of them so they can go three times a week to exercise at the local gym. Ruel says the smoking and fitness experiment with the 15 office workers of the company, the second largest manufacturer of hockey sticks in Canada, has wiped out absenteeism and increased productivity so much that within a year he hopes to make a similar programs available.

Victoria Holds Line on Property Tax

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

Victoria city council has succeeded inh olding the line on property taxes.

Council wrapped up its 1977 budget on Tuesday by approving a staff proposal to juggle some revenue and expenditure estimates and produce a one-mill reduction in the city's general purposes levy.

Coupled with a nine-mill drop in the edueation levy, that means a total tax bill 6.85 per cent lower than in 1976.

The budget bylaw will be introduced at a special council meeting on Tuesday and given final approval at the regular council meeting two days later.

At last week's caucus meeting, when 3½ hours of debate failed to produce any budget savings; city manager Jim Bramley and comptroller Mason Sheldrick were asked to suggest ways of lopping about one mill from the budget.

Their recommendations, endorsed Tuesday after only brief discussion, produce the required reduction by raising some revenue estimates and slashing more than $172,000 from the special contingencies fund, which previously stood at $810,500.

Finance committee chairman Ald. Murray Glazier expressed some doubts about depleting the contingencies reserve, as most of the axed sum had been earmarked to meet the city's costs if it is unsuccessful in litigation involving OK Paving Company.

(The firm has launched an action in B.C. Supreme Court seeking damages in connection with the delayed construction of its Store Street paving plant, for which it alleges the city is responsible).

But Mayor Mike Young said he is confident that the money need not be set aside for that purpose, indicating his belief that the city will win the case.

Revised revenue items account for more than $119,000 of the one-mill ($246,757) net decrease in the operating budget. The bulk of this, $85,000, is expected to come from the sale of building and electrical permits, now running at a level higher than earlier forecasts indicated.

Among other items that received last-minute shuffling on Tuesday, $35,000 was reinstated in the street lighting budget, which had been chopped back from $220,000 to $185,000.

Bramley advised restoring the original spending allocation, pending council review of a report on street lighting recently prepared by city engineer John Sansom.

Glazier told council he believes significant economies can be achieved by ensuring that street lights are turned off as soon as it turns light in the morning.

He said he is not advocating any cutbacks in lighting for the downtown area, because "there is a correlation between lighting and crime."

but savings were possible in residential areas.

On a recent day, he said, the sky was light at 5:30 a.m. but street lights at the Richardson-St. Charles intersection were still burning at 7 a.m.

Ald. Ron McKenzie, chairman of the parks and recreation committee, told council he hopes to obtain more use and revenue from Royal Athletic Park by encouraging outdoor concerts and similar attractions.

McKenzie later told reporters that city recreation manager Jack Morgan has already booked two or three such shows for this summer and he hopes more will follow.

"Royal Athletic Park is definitely not getting the use it should," he said.
